Ferries' Aldous Shifted

The provincial government is looking for a replacement for long-time B.C. Ferries general manager Monty Aldous, 58.

In a written statement this morning Transport Minister Robert Strachan said "growing demands on the service and future expansion plans require new management capabilities."

It did not state specific reasons for Aldous' replacement but said he has been offered "an opportunity to remain with the ferry service in another senior position."

Aldous was not avaiable for comment today and Strachan's office reported the minister was tied up with meetings and would not be able to make any further statements.

The government is advertising across Canada for the new manager and is offering a salary of $31,000 to $33,000 a year.

The position of general manager, according to Strachan's statement, involves responsibility over fleet operations, maintenance depots and a staff of 2,800 ferry employees.

Aldous was appointed general manager of the system in 1960 after serving as an assistant to the premier.

Ouster Cry Swelling

WASHINGTON (CP) — Members of Congress, shocked and confused over President Nixon's sudden firing of his tough Watergate special prosecutor, were returning today to a Washington suddenly alive with talk of impeachment.

Both houses are in recess in observance of Veterans' Day and the rapidly developing crisis caught many legislators out of town.

However, a number of congressmen said they will introduce impeachment resolutions in the House of Representatives when it reconvenes Tuesday.

Among those out of town were a dozen members of the House, in Ankara for a NATO meeting. They were recalled hurriedly by telephone at the orders of Speaker Carl Albert.

Senators scheduled to join their colleagues at the Turkey meeting cancelled their trips.

In Miami Beach the AFL-CIO unanimously called today for President Nixon to resign or be impeached to preserve democracy in the United States and restore a fully functioning government.

The resolution passed on a voice vote with no dissent.

However Nixon, described as confident there are "no grounds" to impeach him, worked quietly in his office today, with indications he was preparing a report to the nation shortly — perhaps in a nationally televised speech — to explain the firing of Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

White House officials — who made it plain they were reflecting Nixon's views — said the president is confident there are "no grounds" to impeach him as a result of his ouster of Cox, whom he believed set himself up as a "fourth branch of government."

Nixon was said to be studying some public response to counter hostility displayed in some quarters against the weekend events.

Officials said that Nixon felt Cox's position was intolerable and felt "in retrospect the establishment of a special prosecutor's office was an error."

White House staff members and secretaries made dozens of telephone calls Sunday, polling Congressmen and local Republican leaders on their reaction to Nixon's course.

These were the events which touched off the crisis:

Fired — Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox, Harvard law professor who has served under four presidents in special assignments and who vowed to pursue the Watergate case "wherever the trail might lead"—even into the White House.

'Smell Of A Coup'

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

WASHINGTON — During his few minutes as acting attorney general, William Ruckelshaus had a telephone call from the White House chief of staff, Gen. Alexander Haig. Haig conveyed President Nixon's order to fire Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor. Ruckelshaus, like Elliot Richardson, refused. Then Haig said:

'Your commander-in-chief has given you an order."

There it was, naked: The belief that the president reigns and rules, that loyalty runs to his person rather than to law and institutions. It is precisely the concept of power against which Americans rebelled in 1776, and that they designed the constitution to bar forever in this country. It is in fact a form of power that no English monarch has exercised since George III.

Haig's military phrase was significant in another sense also. Over this extraordinary weekend, Washington and the smell of an attempted coup d'etat. Like the plotters in a novel, Nixon and his men invoked threats abroad. They skillfully enlisted political elders enfeebled by years of subservience. They tried to cut out the judges, the lawyers, the constitutionalists. They sent the police to seal

Davis Unveils Plan for Seas

VANCOUVER (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis says Canada wants to either licence or sweep its seas clear of far-ranging fishing fleets deployed by Japan, the Soviet Union and other countries.

The minister made the statement at a meeting with west coast fishermen to outline Canada's likely presentation to the Law of the Sea conference next year in Chile under the United Nations.

Davis said Canada will ask that coastal states be given responsibility for managing fish stocks on their continental shelves, a move that would push Canada's jurisdiction 200 miles into the Pacific and 450 miles into the Atlantic.

He said if two-thirds of the 125 nations and states attending the conference approve the measure, countries like Japan will be pushed off the seas.

But, he said, some countries would be allowed to remain to continue fishing in Canadian coastal waters.

"We would phase out rather than abruptly shut out other countries and in some instances we might allow foreign fishermen to remain and pay for exploiting our fish stocks. After all, there are many fish we do not harvest ourselves that others could be allowed to take."

Davis suggested foreign ships could be licenced to harvest twice the present Canadian catch without disturbing proper management of fish stocks on continental shelves.

Ken Lucas, senior assistant deputy minister of fisheries, said one of the key points of Canada's fishing claims will be that coastal states should have exclusive or preferential rights to fish stocks confined to continental shelf waters.

Another point will be that there should be no fishing on the high seas for anadromous fish, like salmon, which range between oceans and inland waters, and no anadromous species should be taken except by agreement with the country where they originate.

Canada will also ask that countries of origin of anadromous types be charged with over-all management of these fish stocks and have preferential rights to harvest them. The countries of origin of anadromous fish types should also have jurisdiction over the fish even if they stray into foreign territorial waters, as in the case with West Coast Canadian salmon swimming into United States waters.

Davis said Canada's full claims may not be recognized and it may have to settle for management of fisheries out to the 200-mile mark.

Homer Stevens, president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, warned that Canada's demands may be rejected or ratification of them may take years.

He said Canada is only asking for proper recognition of its rights to its offshore fisheries.

Shaky Truce For Mideast

Times News Services

A shaky ceasefire was imposed on the Middle East today with the two major combatants — Israel and Egypt — warily accepting it, other Arab states refusing to abide by its terms and the Palestinian guerrilla movement vowing that it would continue to wage war against Israel.

Arranged by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, it went into effect 12 hours after the United Nations security council passed a joint Soviet-American resolution.

Fighting went on for positions in the hours before the deadline and 15 minutes after it was supposed to take effect, an Israeli national radio correspondent reported the Egyptians were still firing artillery and anti-aircraft shells "apparently deciding to finish off their clips."

The U.N. resolution called for a ceasefire and peace negotiations "under appropriate auspices."

It also called for implementation of the 1967 U.N. resolution ending the Six-Day Middle East War but there was still wide disagreement of whether that meant Israel would have to withdraw from all the Arab territories it occupied then.

There has been no word about how the truce would be policed.

Israel Claims Victory

Israel immediately claimed victory in the war by virtue of the bridgehead it occupied on the Egyptian side of the Suez Canal.

The ceasefire left Egyptian troops on the East Bank of the Suez canal. The Israelis said the Egyptian penetration was three to five miles deep but the Egyptians said it was up to nine miles.

However, Israel succeeded in driving a wedge across the canal into Egypt which it said was 475 square miles and within 45 miles of Cairo. The Egyptians said it was much smaller.

The Israelis claimed they beat off Egyptian counter-attacks in the final hours before the ceasefire.

They also said they pushed the Syrians off their last outpost on Mount Hermon in the north in hand-to-hand fighting.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union and the United States agreed in principle not to renew their arms lift to the combatants, diplomatic sources said today in London.

This understanding of the superpowers was an important driving force behind acceptance by Israel and Egypt of the ceasefire, they said.

Arms Running Short

The superpowers left their respective client governments in no doubt that they would receive no new major weapons shipments if they chose to go on fighting, the sources added.

Neither, apparently, could afford to face such eventuality.

Both sides were already running out of important weapons when Soviet and U.S. arms lifts were set in motion last week.

Col. Moammer Khadafy of Libya, in a Paris newspaper interview, criticized the ceasefire as a "time bomb" and blamed the Soviet Union and other Arab leaders for Arab military failures.

Speaking to Eric Rouleau of Le Monde, Khadafy said, "a ceasefire imposed by the Americans and the Soviets? Never!"

Khadafy said Arabs and been duped by the Soviet Union.

"If the Russians hadn't done so much gabbing about their arms deliveries to Arab states, if their propaganda machine hadn't spoken so much about the air lifts, the Americans would never have supplied Israel.

"We are the victims of Soviet demagogy.

The Arabs, just as much as the Jews, are the victims of the rivalry between Moscow

SEATTLE DIM-OUT

SEATTLE (AP) — Every other light brightening Seattle's arterial streets will be turned off as part of a program to conserve electricity, Mayor Wes Uhlman has announced.

Turning off the lights between November and March will save one million kilowatts of electricity, he said.

He also announced support for a plan by the billboard industry here to voluntarily turn off "all lights on outdoor advertising structures during the winter months."

Loyalty Guides Nurses

Federal government-employed nurses at Veterans' Hospital in Victoria came to work today while their colleagues in some other Canadian cities stayed off the job.

Illness and the urge to study was expected to grip many of the 2,200 federal government-employed nurses across the country at 8 a.m. local times as the nurses vent their dissatisfaction with a contract arbitration award Thursday.

The 95 Veterans' Hospital nurses plus several nurses at Canadian Forces Base Esquimalt voted Friday not to take part in the protest.

"I believe it was because of loyalty to the patients, loyalty to the administration and the nurses' own integrity and conscience," said Irene Decks, an assistant head nurse who is chairman of the local nurses' sub-group.

The nurses felt it was their professional duty to come to work today, she said.

Hijackers Threaten To Kill

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Four guerrillas who hijacked an Argentine jetliner in a bid to get to Cuba threatened to begin killing their five hostages today unless they got a smaller plane to take them out of the country.

Bolivian President Hugo Banzer refused the smaller plane but sent word to the terrorists that he would grant them the necessary papers to leave Bolivia if they released the hostages. He said if they made any attempt against the lives of the hostages the hijackers would be killed.

The hijacked Aerolineas Argentinas Boeing 737 cannot take off from the small airfield in the Bolivian city of Yacuiba, 900 miles southeast of La Paz.

The plane is surrounded by heavily-armed soldiers and policemen, who have refused to provide food or drinks to those on the plane since it landed.

The four hijackers — two men and two young women — released 40 passengers and crew Sunday. But they held as hostages the pilot, the co-pilot, a congressman, a Frenchman and another passenger whose nationality is not known.

Gastown Fire Claims Five

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five people died here Sunday in a downtown hotel fire that could have been safely extinguished with a proper sprinkling system, acting Vancouver Fire Chief Jim Tuning said.

Tuning said the Commercial Hotel, 340 Cambie, was one of a number of older hotels that had been ordered by city council to install adequate fire escapes or a sprinkler system — but given until 1975 to comply.

"If the building had a sprinkler system we wouldn't have the tragedy we had," said Tuning.

He noted that the four-storey hotel had no sprinkler system and only one fire escape on the fourth floor. The fire escape was accessible only through another room.

The fire, extinguished in little more than an hour, apparently started in a washroom or adjacent storage room and quickly engulfed the top floor, blocking a nearby stairway.

A fire officer at the scene said at least two men died after jumping or falling out of the fourth-floor windows.

Several others dangling by their hands from window ledges on the top floor of the old brick building were urged to hang on until firemen could get to them with ladders. Blood stains from cut hands streaked the front of the hotel.

Injured in the fire and in critical condition was Moladie Durant, 38. In satisfactory condition were Don Kirchner, 38, Alex McKay, 86, and Paul Bruno, 62.

Don Thargo, 24, whose room was on the third floor, said two men fell from window ledges just seconds before firemen arrived.

"The firemen got there 30 seconds too late to save Wally and Don," he said. "They were coming around the corner when Wally fell.

"It was 2:20 a.m. by my watch when the alarm bell went off. People were running along the halls waking other people up. It was too long before the alarm was turned in.

"But the firemen sure worked fast as soon as they arrived. They saved two men trapped in their rooms at the back. One was hanging by his hands and the other had his legs and part of his body out the window."

It was estimated there were more than 40 persons in the hotel when the fire broke out.

Police said rooms in the hotel, on the edge of Vancouver's Gastown district, were generally occupied by transients.

Cellist Casals Dies

SAN JUAN — Pablo Casals, 96, the world's greatest cellist who became a symbol of resistance to dictatorships during 34 years of self-imposed exile from his native Spain, died today.

Casals, renowned as one of the 20th century's greatest musicians and conductors, died of massive lung, kidney, circulatory and heart complications which developed from a heart attack suffered in September.

Casals' wife Marta, 36, and his brother Enrique, 81, who had flown to Puerto Rico from Barcelona, were at his bedside when he died.

Rallies Woo Quebecers

MONTREAL (CP) — With Quebec's election day one week away, the Parti Quebecois and the Parti Creditiste held large rallies in Montreal Sunday.

The Parti Quebecois packed the Montreal Forum with a huge go-go rally complete with rock band. Estimates of attendance ranged up to 16,000.

The Creditistes met in an east-end arena with a brass band on hand. Their attendance was about 6,000.

Such rallies cannot be considered a reliable guide to party strengths — particularly when, as was the case Sunday, many of those attending come from out of town.

Premier Robert Bourassa, meanwhile, campaigned with Jean Chretien, federal Indian affairs minister and the only federal minister so far to make public appearances in support of the provincial Liberals.

Bourassa told a meeting of 350 persons in Grand' Mere, 90 miles northeast of Montreal, his Liberal government can provide Quebec with a coherent social system within economic federalism.

In Beloeil, near Montreal, Bourassa accused the Parti Quebecois of racism in its campaign to have persons struck off electoral lists.

The campaign came to light last week when Immigration Minister Jean Bienvenue said persons with non-French names were being removed from voters' lists by Parti Quebecois workers who signed statements saying individuals were not entitled to vote.

Gabriel Loubier, Union Nationale leader, took a rest Saturday after encountering a strikers' picket line at a radio station where he was to participate in an open-line show. In addition, his voice was be-

IMPEACHMENT: HOW IT'S DONE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Constitution gives the House of Representatives the responsibility to initiate impeachment of a president, the Senate to act as a jury and the chief justice of the Supreme Court to serve as presiding officer.

The subject of impeachment occupies three paragraphs — five sentences — in Article I, where the powers of Congress are discussed.

Article II, which deals with the presidency, states: "The president, the vice-president and all other civil officers of the United States shall be moved from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

Conviction means removal from office and disqualification from future offices. Any subsequent penalties are assessed under the normal judicial process of indictment and trial.

The House can enact an impeachment resolution by a simple majority but the Senate's verdict after trial requires agreement by two-thirds of the senators.

The only impeachment action brought against a president, Andrew Johnson in 1868, fell one vote short of approval in the Senate.

OUSTER DEMANDS GROWING

Fired—William Ruckelshaus, deputy attorney-general, former head of the Environmental Protection Agency and one-time acting head of the FBI the man who refused to fire Cox under presidential order.

Resigned — Attorney-General Elliot Richardson, former defence secretary and head of the department of health, education and welfare, who also refused to fire Cox.

Elevated — Solicitor-General Robert Bork, former Yale law professor. As third in line in the justice department, Bork assumes the post of acting attorney-general.

AIDES STEP DOWN

Eight other members of the justice department four special aides to Richardson and four members of Ruckelshaus's staff resigned immediately. There were reports others might follow.

The train of events was set in motion Saturday, after Nixon came into direct confrontation with Cox.

Ordered by the appeal court to produce secret tape recordings made in the White House and said to concern Watergate, the president replied he would make available a summary of the information contained in the tapes. He ordered Cox not to pursue the matter to the Supreme Court.

Nixon offered to allow Senator John Stennis, one of the most respected men in the Senate, to listen to the tapes to confirm the authenticity of his summary.

Cox balked at the compromise. Richardson resigned rather than fire Cox. Ruckelshaus followed, sending in his resignation even as his dismissal notice was on its way.

Bork, as the surviving top man in the department, carried out the president's order and fired Cox. The office of special prosecutor was abolished and its records and files sealed.

Until this weekend, congressmen have been reluctant to face the prospect of impeachment. Now, the possibility is being discussed openly by such respected legislators as House Democratic Whip John McFall (Dem. Calif.), Representative B. F. Sisk (Dem.Calif.), Senator Edmund Muskie (Dem.Me.) and Senate Democratic Whip Robert Byrd (Dem.W.Va.).

The Democrats control both the House and the Senate.

Any impeachment proceedings must begin in the House of Representatives. A simple majority in favor would be enough to send the case to the Senate, sitting as a "jury" under Chief Justice Warren Burger.

A two-thirds majority is needed in the Senate to remove the president from office.

White House aides, usually reticent to discuss presidential decisions, have spoken out in support of Nixon.

J. Fred Buzhardt, President Nixon's lawyer in charge of Watergate matters, said Sunday that talk of impeachment "will pretty much go away" when the president's position is fully understood.

Special adviser Melvin Laird said he is confident Congress will take "a negative attitude" toward impeachment, at least until after Senator Stennis has had a chance to review the controversial Watergate tapes.

Nixon is under federal court order to surrender the tapes to District Judge John Sirica for the judge's inspection and decision on whether to turn them over to a grand jury as evidence. Sirica's order was upheld by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and Nixon declined to seek a Supreme Court review before the order went into effect at the end of the week.

Sirica, who is out of the city until Tuesday, directed his staff to research alternatives for his next step, which could include holding the president in contempt of court.

With the controversy and speculation mounting, the president was reported working on a statement he intends to issue to Stennis concerning the tapes a document expected to be ready by Tuesday.

There was no immediate announcement of a statement to the country, but one White House source said advisers were strongly suggesting the president defend himself publicly on television.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Cox's 80-member special prosecution force, announced that the team is determined to carry on under the mantle of the justice department and will show up for work Tuesday without Cox. But whether the force will be allowed to remain apparently is up to Bork, who is to announce the future of the Watergate investigation Tuesday.

And, outside the White House, the normal weekend quiet was shattered by motorists spontaneously demonstrating their support of sidewalk pickets who flashed placards reading "Honk for Impeachment."

Only one president in U.S. history has faced impeachment Andrew (Tennessee) Johnson, who succeeded the slain Abraham Lincoln, retained office by one vote in a Senate trial in 1868 after the impeachment motion had cleared the House.

Johnson came under fire for his policies toward the South following the Civil War.

NURSES LOYAL

"We are still unhappy with the government offer," said Deeks.

"We feel nurses should be paid equal to other professions," she said.

Deeks said each nursing sub-group within the Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada was free to decide whether it would join the protest.

Federal nurses were offered wage increases of 12.5 per cent over two years in a contract retroactive to Jan. 1, 1973.

Those in the Atlantic region were offered increases of 7.3 per cent the first year and 11 per cent the second.

However, spokesmen for the nurses say the arbitration award would still leave them between $100 and $1,500 below their provincial counterparts in various areas of the country.

In B.C., the award would put federal nurses slightly ahead of their provincial counterparts in salary.

However, the provincial Registered Nurses Association of B.C. is bargaining for a 3 per cent increase in starting rates and an over-all 25 per cent pay hike in its new contract, effective in January.

B.C.'s other veterans hospital, Shaughnessy Hospital in Vancouver, is operating with a reduced staff today because of the protest.

A hospital spokesman said the day shift was operating without 40 of its 150 day nurses. About 250 nurses work at the hospital.

The spokesman said Shaughnessy has stopped elective admissions and has been assured by the nurses that if an emergency arises some of them will return to work.

Both Edmonton's Charles Camsell Veterans Hospital and Calgary's Colonel Belcher Hospital have had their day shifts halved by the protest.

In Prince Albert, Sask., all six public health nurses booked off sick today.

They are employed in administering public and preventive health services to rural communities in the area. Much of the service is performed at Indian reserves.

In Victoria, a spokesman for the national health and welfare department said Indian health nurses on Vancouver Island are at work today.

ginning to give out after two weeks of campaigning.

Loubier spoke hoarsely at rallies Sunday where he blamed the threat of separatism on Premier Bourassa and Prime Minister Trudeau.

"If Bourassa had had more guts, and if Trudeau had been less arrogant . . . maybe there would be no extremists in Quebec today," he told about 350 persons in Gentilly, 60 miles northeast of Montreal.

At the PQ rally in the Forum, Rene Levesque blasted the Bourassa government as "spineless."

He charged that during the 1970 October crisis, the Liberals had "served as servile agents of a fundamentally foreign government which swooped on the chance to paralyze Quebec society and set up bobyman images that still sow fear in Quebec.

"This featherweight government has never stopped acting as a branch office of the mother house on the other side of the Ottawa River," Levesque said.

Creditiste leader Yvon Dupis, who appeared with Real Caouette, federal Social Credit leader, lashed out against public opinion polls which show the Creditistes with 6.7 per cent support.

Young Pianist Fifth in World

Placing fifth in a world radio competition for pianists 15 years of age or under, is the striking achievement of Shawnigan Lake School student Jackie Parker.

The international competition for young musicians is known as Concertino Praga '73. It has been held for eight years under the sponsorship of Czechoslovakia Radio Prague.

Jackie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Parker, 1220 Eastlawn Drive, North Burnaby.

He is a boarder at Shawnigan Lake School and a pupil of Robin Wood at the Victoria Conservatory of Music. At school he is an honors student in Grade 9.

In March the Parkers were approached by CBC with an invitation for Jackie to make a tape as a possible entrant in the competition which is conducted throughout the world by way of radio stations in each country.

The tape was made at the Victoria Conservatory and submitted to a panel of judges in Toronto who chose Jackie to represesnt this country.

For the final taping the young pianist was required to tape three pieces by Czech composers and a 15-minute program of pieces of his own choice.

Most of the preparation for this was done during the summer, part of which spent at the Conservatory attending a special summer course with Professor Wood.

This tape was sent by CBC to Czechoslovakia where an international jury appraised all performances, awarding Jackie a certificate of honorable mention for fifth place in the piano category.

In last spring's Victoria Music Festival, Jackie was a close contender and runner-up for the top piano trophy, the Victoria City Medallion.

ONE DAY IN OCTOBER

the dangerous files. Cox's assistant, Henry Ruth, caught the feeling when he said: "Maybe it isn't Seven Days in May, but it is one day in October."

But short of a real military coup, the attempt has failed. Most important, the issue facing this country has been made so clear that no one with eyes to see can avoid it any longer. That issue is the legitimacy of this president.

The American system gives enormous presumptive weight to the legitimacy of any president, and rightly so. Fixed presidential terms and orderly succession have been anchors of stability in our turbulent history. But the framers of the constitution did not stake all on the Executive, they did not make him absolute or immovable. In the end, they rested their faith on law.

By his acts of the last few days, Richard Nixon has made manifest his contempt for law and for the very tripartite structure of our government that he so often invokes. He has sought to teach Americans the lesson that the great among us may choose whether and how to obey the law.

He has broken a solemn vow to the United States Senate — the promise to let the truth of Watergate be discovered and the law enforced.

It is impossible now to resist the inference that Nixon has been trying to conceal evidence of his own violations of the criminal law. That would explain his dogged refusal to disgorge not only the White House tapes but much other documentary material — and explain his fear of Archibald Cox.

Much that has happened in this last week was really designed to get rid of Cox. So obsessive had that aim become in Nixon's mind that it was like the cry of Henry II about Thomas a Beket: "Who will free me from this turbulent priest?" Eventually someone was found to wield the dagger. His name was Robert Bork, but it will count no more in history than the forgotten names of Becket's murderers.

Oct. 20 was a frightening day in Washington. But it was also profoundly encouraging to those who have maintained their faith in the American system during the horrors of the Nixon years. For there were men who, despite the most terrible pressures, followed the path of honor and the law.

No one who watched Archibald Cox could be altogether cynical again about the good that lies in the American character. It was Mr. Smith goes to Washington, for real: the almost naive decency, the sense of duty, the care for personal kindness even in that extreme situation. And then came the redeeming support of Eliot Richardson and William Ruckelshaus.

Nixon will try to meet the crisis now with one more effort to rally the country behind his person. The answer to that is that royalism has no place in America — and besides, the king is dead. We must look elsewhere for continuity, for legitimacy.

The struggle of the next few days and weeks will require many of us to give up comfortable assumptions. Government officials will have to think again about where their loyalties lie. The lawyers of this country will have to speak out. Constitutional conservatives, above all Barry Goldwater, will have to recognize that Nixon has betrayed them especially.

Today even Congress, which so often rolls on its back like a spaniel, is beginning to face the necessity of impeachment. It need not come to that; for the good of the country it should not. Rather, before long, someone in Richard Nixon's shrinking palace guard will surely tell him that he must listen as the country sends him the same cry that went across the floor of the House of Commons to Neville Chamberlain in 1940: "In the name of God, go."

CRASHING WELCOME

LONDON (AP) — A wall of a balcony for spectators collapsed at Heathrow Airport during the arrival of an American pop-singing group Sunday. At least 20 young girls were injured, none critically.

An airport spokesman said the wall gave way under the pressure of thousands of teenagers screaming for the Osmond Brothers.

The collapse sent a ton of metal and concrete onto more youngsters on ground level.

Six girls fell from the balcony onto the crowd below. Eighteen were treated at the airport medical centre and others were taken to nearby hospitals.

Teamsters Slam Grape Boycott

VANCOUVER (CP) — The grape boycott campaign launched by the British Columbia Federation of Labor may result in cancellation of an agreement between the Teamsters and the United Farm Workers Union, teamster provincial president Senator Ed Lawson said today.

He said a tentative agreement has been made between UFWU leader Cesar Chavez and the teamsters in which the teamsters would turn over farm workers' contracts to the UFWU.

But he said the newspaper advertising campaign being conducted by the federation urging boycott of certain grapes "is threatening that agreement and may result in the agreement being cancelled."

Lawson said the boycott campaign is "patently dishonest."

$10B Proposal To Tap Coal, Oil Energy Potential

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Atomic Energy Commission will recommend to the White House a five-year plan of energy research that calls for spending $10 billion, an increase of more than $1 billion a year. The goal is to use twice the domestic coal and oil the U.S. burns today.

The AEC is under White House charter to come up with a five-year plan by Dec. 1, when President Nixon wants to crank a whole range of new moves in the field of energy into the 1975 budget. The White House order to the AEC implicity called for plans that would exploit vast U.S. coal and oil reserves that go untapped today because of environmental or technological restraints.

"We must learn how to use more of our coal and recover more of our oil," said Dr. Norman C. Smith, who heads up the AEC's energy reorganization commission drafting the five-year energy plan for President Nixon. "Those two things must be given our top spending priorities."

To hear the AEC's Dr. Smith tell it, the foremost research priority is to find ways of mining and burning U.S. coal, which under present techniques takes an enormous ecological toll. Most east coast cities ban the burning of coal because of its sulfur emissions.

"We must begin to supply a larger fraction of our energy supplies with coal," Dr. Smith said in an interview, "and we must begin to do this immediately. We can't wait on coal, we've got to start right now."

Dr. Smith said the AEC will recommend spending $10 billion in energy research over the next five years, with as much as $3 billion being alloted for coal research.

Whatever money goes for coal research will be spread over half a dozen programs, a few to improve methods of mining coal, a few to better techniques of burning it and a few to turn coal into a gas or a petroleum-like liquid.

The immediate coal priority is to learn how to burn it just the way it is, in other words to come up with methods of removing the sulphur and other pollutants that rise up the smokestacks when coal is burned.

Second to that is development of methods to extract liquid energy from coal, methods that will allow technicians to remove some of the sluphur and permit them to move liquid coal through pipelines the way oil is shipped.

The third priority is for the future, Dr. Smith explained, but it is probably the one that will require the most money and which offers the most promise.

This is the so-called gasification of coal, development of methods of extracting from coal a sulphure-free methane that would be almost identical to natural gas.

Most energy experts feel a coal gasification program will take $1 billion a year for the next 10 years, an estimate with which Dr. Snith did not disagree.

Land Act Delayed Plan—Mayor

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today delay in drafting a community plan for north Gordon Head had been caused by pressure of work on municipal staff caused by the provincial government's Land Commission Act.

He rejected inferences made by Barrie Goult, president of the Gordon Head and District Ratepayers' Association, suggesting political reasons for the delay.

Goult said, "The plan might not be acceptable to a great many residents of the area. There's always the possibility in these circumstances it would be better for them politically" to wait until after the Nov. 17 election in order to debate the plan in a more objective manner.

"That's an inference with which I cannot agree," Curtis, who is not running for municipal office, said, "the plan will go to the community. I think it should be done at the most appropriate time for council to work."

Curtis said municipal staff "and at least three members of council" had been kept busy all summer on work caused by the agricultural reserve bill.

He said a special in-camera meeting of council was held Tuesday at which a "draft concept" for north Gordon Head planning had been studied.

"There were some statements of principles," he said, "which were either approved or rejected."

He said public discussion would probably not begin until 1974.

"We could bash it out now," he said "but the elections are only three weeks away."

Goult's group is sponsoring an all-candidates meeting 8 p.m. Nov. 14 in Gordon Head parish hall, Tyndall and San Juan.

$3 MILLION GRANT TO NORTH INDIANS

The provincial government today agreed to provide an unconditional grant of $3 million to an Indian co-operative group to establish a fish processing plant at Port Simpson on the province's north coast.

The money is going to the Pacific North Coast Native co-operative and will be accompanied by a further loan of up to $3 million, legislation for which will be introduced today in the legislature.

The money to be loaned will allow the Indians to purchase a core fleet of fishing boats.

Work is to start on the fish processing plant so that it will be in operation in time for the 1974 fishing season.

Dogs, Helicopter Seek Missing Man

An RCMP helicopter and tracking dog were brought into the Ash River area, 15 miles northwest of Port Alberni, today as part of a full-scale search for a hunter reported missing Sunday.

Al Harper, 24, of Port Alberni, was supposed to meet his hunting partner at their car Sunday, Port Alberni RCMP said.

The search involving 20 men began shortly after thick fog in the area lifted, said police.

Harper, an experienced hunter, is "not familiar with that particular area," RCMP said.

Harper is the second hunter who's become lost in the Ash River area this month. Last week Metro Lazorko, 41, of Port Alberni, spent a night in the rain after his compass broke.

A $750 BARBECUE DOWN THE DRAIN

An outdoor barbecue dinner resulted in a kitchen fire Sunday, causing $750 damage to a Victoria house.

Firemen were called to the residence of Carl Evers, 1819 Fern, to put out a fire which started when a can of burning white gas was poured down a sink.

Evers said the can caught fire when his son was trying to start the barbecue on their verandah.

His wife tried to douse the blaze by pouring the burning gas down the drain.

Weed Act Protest

A handful of protesters met with Agricultural Minister Dave Stupich today in an effort to stall or amend the government's new Weed Control Act.

The protesters, members of Citizens' Association to Save the Environment and the Vancouver-based Informed Citizens Union, also set up signs on the lawn of the legislative buildings decrying the use of chemical weed killers.

They hope the government will delay bringing in the proposed legislation until the royal commission on herbicides and pesticides brings down its report.

The legislation, they say, is vague and leaves the use of chemicals wide open.

The new act replaces the old Noxious Weed Act and is designed to make weed control more practicable and workable by giving increased opportunity for local participation in control programs.

The environmentalists say the bill should outline what kind of control can be used and urge that manpower rather than chemical agents be the prime method of control.

To Find a Way Around

It was expectable enough that as the public became more aware of the value of its rural environment and the need to preserve it, it would also become more interested in enjoying natural attractions at first-hand. The resulting wide interest in hiking and similar outdoor recreation, along with concern for conservation, is one of the promising developments of our times.

Unfortunately, people frequently mean pollution. This extends all the way from mere littering of picnic grounds and trails, to more serious effects resulting in health hazards. As more people look for recreation in the woods and along the rivers and seashores of our Island, the greater becomes the threat to the environment. Contaminated water, loss from carelessly caused fires, erosion of areas because of heavy traffic — such are the threats arising from human resort to the outdoors. The situation calls for unceasing educational campaigns, but there are always exceptions to the general good behavior of people in the woods — and these include the activities of the unthinking, the malicious and the just plain stupid.

It is a pity that the excellent proposal for a hiking and cycling trail along the old CNR route to Sooke Lake and beyond has run into a problem while it is still in the idea stage. The right-of-way runs along the eastern shore of Sooke Lake, which is the source of Greater Victoria's excellent water supply. With limited exceptions, that whole area has been under restricted access, and it is now feared that the expected popularity of the hiking trail would inevitably result in a threat of contamination of the lake.

We enjoy one of the world's best fresh water supplies and it is unthinkable that anything should be done to place it in hazard in any way. It is hardly to be supposed that sizable public traffic along the lake shore could long exist before some deterioration of the lake would take place. Certainly the threat would always be present, and that is not an acceptable situation for anything so important as our water supply.

On the other hand, it would be unfortunate if the benefits of the rest of the CNR right-of-way were to be lost because of problems arising from one section. A possible answer may lie in compromise. One might be the possibility of clearing out a detour trail that would take hikers in a wide swing around the lake and bring them back to the railway at a point safely past the watershed. This could be one way out of the difficulty, although it might entail some public expenditure and perhaps considerable work by outdoor organizations which would benefit most from the project.

In any case, the purity of our water supply should come first, and the restricted watershed area should not be opened to risk from persons without a full sense of responsibility. As the population of the southern part of the Island grows, there will be increasing pressure on water board authorities to relax their efforts to maintain the property inviolate. It is much too early at this date to lower the standards.

A Question of Time and Money

It is a sobering thought to know that direct American investment in Canada increased by $1.7 billion last year, and most of this increase can be chalked up to expansion of existing U.S. firms in this country. With a $25.8 billion stake in Canada it is conceivable that American investment here will continue upwards in a geometric progression, held back only by recessions in the business cycle and U.S. corporate taxation policies.

American funds in Canada represent almost one quarter of the entire amount the U.S. has invested in foreign countries. The size of the figure alone makes Canada an economic client state of the U.S., not to mention the fact that most of our secondary industry capabilities are in foreign hands. Retardation of Canadian research and development — necessities for any industrial nation that wants a place in modern world markets — is only one of the detrimental spin-offs from such a situation.

The government has often stated that it would be financially impossible and a naive dream to "buy back Canada." Instead the white paper on foreign industry has recommended a screening process for foreign firms wishing to invest in Canada, coupled with taxation policies designed to encourage native industry. These measures, plus creation of the Canada Development Corporation, have been deemed enough to tighten the national grip on the economy which is slowly slipping beyond our grasp.

But the facts and figures from the U.S. Department of Commerce speak more plainly than Ottawa's legislation. We are losing the battle, at least for the time being, to keep the remnants of the means of production in Canadian hands. If the trend increases it will become necessary to "buy back Canada" if we want to preserve our independence.

In the Canada Development Corporation the country has one tool at hand. Whether or not the willing arms are ready to employ the tool is another question. But if we wait too long the arms may be so weak they can't use any of the existing tools, let alone fabricate new ones.

MAURICE WESTERN

Policy of Manna From Heaven

OTTAWA — It is not surprising that members of Parliament are ranging well beyond the important matter of child care in considering the government's new family allowance measure.

So they should. For the original scheme, fathered by the King government, was intended to counter an expected post-war recession by distributing new purchasing power widely through the economy. Federal Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde's new billion-dollar baby also has an economic purpose, being designed, it would seem, to counter an inflation which the government regards as unavoidable.

Mr. Lalonde, in his speech on second reading, did not put the matter in quite this way. Nevertheless, he came rather close to it; noting that the interim increase in allowances to $12 was intended "to mitigate the effects of rising prices" and observing also that the new average payment "can be increased from time to time to take account of changes in the cost of living." This will be done by order-in-council after House approval.

Interesting Distinction

In making obeisance to the past, the minister also made this interesting distinction. "The original family allowance program was introduced for the purpose of giving a maximum measure of income support to families to help ease the financial burden of bringing up children and to provide a measure of equal opportunity for children regardless of a family's economic situation. The objective of the new family allowance program is to provide a supplement to the income of Canadian families in such a way that those with the greatest need will receive the greatest benefit."

As the bill is presented as a measure of social reform, the minister was naturally at pains to discount suggestions that it may aggravate the population problem.

Mr. Lalonde produced a variety of general statistics, including some from France and Czechoslovakia, to discredit such notions. But the over-all effect is not the matter of prime concern. Generalized statistics are scarcely relevant of the specific criticism that a tripling of allowances may have a significant impact on under-privileged communities. It is the fact, as noted by Heath MacQuarrie, that the present birth rate is highest in the Northwest Territories, often described as one vast welfare area.

It cannot be said, however, that the plan is intended to be an instrument of a population policy because there is no evidence that the government has a population policy.

As viewed by the minister, the scheme is markedly superior in all respects to its predecessors, not all of which were implemented. Some of his claims seem incontestable. For example, the plan has been carefully developed to permit the payment of different rates in the various provinces, which should remove one source of discord in inter-governmental relations.

Mr. Lalonde also observes with approval that the taxation of family allowances will achieve a substantial degree of selectivity. It is clear, of course, that even greater selectivity might have been achieved if the government, against NDP opposition, had stood by its FISP convictions. For the earlier and abortive scheme, in part a response to criticism by the Economic Council, would have denied payments to those of higher incomes who do not need them.

Another virtue of the program, in the eyes of its parent, is the contribution it will make to "the development of a more equitable regional redistribution of income across Canada." Mr. Lalonde's estimates are none too helpful in clarifying this claim. Of an annual total of $1,830 million dedicated to the program, no less than $1,479.7 million, according to his figures, will flow to the central provinces and the two most westerly provinces. Evidently something less than a bonanza will be left to be shared by the other six and the two northern territories.

WELFARE MINISTER LALONDE
... at no expense

As described by the minister, this most attractive plan seems to offer something to every family with children at no expense to anybody.

To quote Mr. Lalonde: "It may be useful to illustrate the effect of taxing the family allowance. Assuming that the national norm of $20 per child is paid; a non-taxpayer would receive a net benefit of $20; the average Canadian taxpayer would receive a net benefit of $15; the taxpayer in the highest tax bracket would receive a net benefit of $8."

At the same time families without children have nothing to fear. "We intend to fund these higher allowances without having to increase taxes to do so."

Even in Ottawa, it is not openly suggested that money grows on trees. Presumably, therefore, the government in these times of inflation foresees a vast new flow of revenue. Although John Turner, earlier in the week, gave up more than $400 millions, with the tax-indexing scheme there is still the additional $840 million to accommodate Mr. Lalonde's bold new program.

It may occur to ill-disposed taxpayers that it was within the power of the government to use this vast windfall for the purpose of lowering tax rates. If there is no widespread sense of loss, it is not because a subsidy has dropped from the skies but because the government, in its wisdom, has chosen to deprive the taxpayer of money which he has not yet clutched but which he might otherwise have hoped to enjoy.

Mr. Lalonde states the matter in a more felicitous way. "The government has decided that priority in the allocation of government revenues will be given to the financing of increases in family allowances."

There is no doubt — certainly none in the minds of the parties — that the allocation of so large a sum will be of benefit to many in this inflationary era. How much will actually go for child care and how much for payments on TV sets or automobiles, the government has no means of estimating. Hopefully, some may go to help young families meet the very high prevailing mortgage rates, although Mr. Lalonde does not present the bill as a housing measure.

Annual Increases

What does seem reasonably clear is that, without some check to inflation, the advantage will be lasting only if the government is prepared to inject about half a billion annually into the plan, given the present price trend. For the inflation bite, as measured over the past twelve months by Mr. Turner, is equivalent to half the new money being pumped into allowances.

Experience with unemployment insurance has accustomed, although it may not altogether have reconciled, the public to these seven-figure programs. With rising prices, very high permanent costs are obviously being built into government. There is apparently no disposition to inquire into possible consequences if inflation turns out to be less than perpetual; if, in some uthinkable tomorrow, the accepted wisdom should prove faulty and the economy turn down.

FRANK RUTTER

Crucial Long-Range Problem

WASHINGTON — The Alaska pipeline legislation that was refined into language acceptable to members of Congress last week raises an issue which has been anathema to Canadians — negotiation of a continental energy policy.

The word continental has assumed an intonation inappropriate to diplomatic conversations between the two countries, at least so far as Canada is concerned. But it is no secret that it remains in the U.S. diplomatic dictionary and that the government here would very much like to enter into agreements sharing the development and transportation of natural resources, especially energy fuels.

The rewritten pipeline legislation opens the whole field to President Richard Nixon, and his successors, if they should choose to make advances to Ottawa.

There has been much bad feeling generated during the preamble to the trans-Alaska pipeline project and it is almost certainly far too late to alter the scheme to suit Canada.

Desire to Mollify

However, evidence of a desire to mollify Canada was apparent in last-minute additions to the legislation, including detailed requirements for liability on the part of the oil companies and shippers in the event of an oil spill and recognition of the right of Canadians to claim damages should such a catastrophe occur.

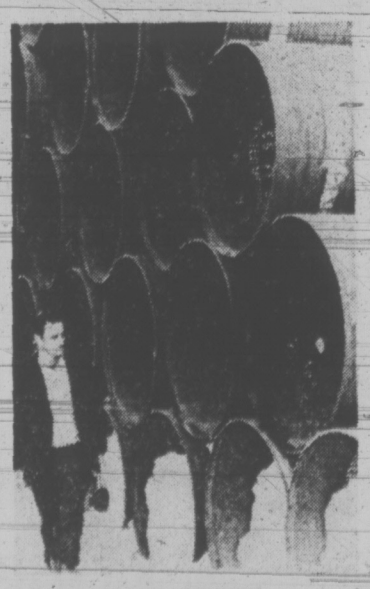
Whether or not the proposals for negotiation of continental energy arrangements will be as enthusiastically received in Ottawa is another matter altogether. But the legislation, as now phrased, amounts to an expression of intent by Congress to seek such arrangements, whatever their chance of consummation.

The major expression is a blanket clause authorizing the negotiation of measures "to insure that the respective energy requirements of the people of Canada and the U.S. are adequately met." Such measures would include joint studies to ensure protection of the environment and to "reduce legal and regulatory uncertainty."

The legislation also proposes negotiation—the president is "authorized and requested" but not directed to hold talks —on the possibility of carrying natural gas and oil from Alaska by tankers through the Northwest Passage.

This revives a contentious question of sovereignty explored — and dropped — after the voyage of the Manhattan through the icebound passage three years ago.

Also explicitly suggested are talks on intergovernmental understandings, agreements or treaties to protect the interests of both countries in the transportation of Arctic gas and oil. Another section authorized negotiations on the possible construction of pipelines across Canada, although no routes are specified.



PRUDHOE PIPE
... too late to alter

The Americans may be more optimistic about obtaining additional oil from Canada than Ottawa is about supplying it. William A. Johnson, a U.S. treasury official attached to the president's oil policy committee, conceded this week that Canada is concerned about conserving its resources and about rising prices.

"To put it bluntly we must stop kidding ourselves that we can easily turn to imports to meet major deficits of crude oil and finished products in the U.S." Johnson said. "We will have to work to obtain the foreign oil we must have."

Johnson issued projections, compiled by the U.S. interior department, anticipating that the U.S. could import 1,300,000 barrels of oil a day from Canada (about the same as it does now) in 1975. By 1980 the amount was projected at 1,800,000 barrels and by 1985 it was 2,200,000 barrels a day.

However, Canada's national energy board has different projections which offer the U.S. a much gloomier prospect. It estimates that exports could drop to 803,000 barrels by 1980 and rise again to only 1,726,000 barrels by 1985. These projections include additional oil production from the Athabasca tar sands and the Mackenzie Delta in the Arctic. Without such development, however, Canada might have to halt all exports as early as 1979.

Capital Needed

Despite Canada's best efforts to achieve more economic independence, or at least a measure of interdependence, the fact remains that development of new energy resources will require enormous amounts of capital and technology. The sums and skills will be hard to raise without outside help. It remains a question for Canada to decide where such help should originate.

The Japanese are both interested and active in Canada but they, like the Americans, are primarily interested in shipping off Canadian resources for their own use.

Canada and the U.S. are still each other's best customers in general and in energy. Economically and geographically it is logical that they remain so. There is bound to be increased pressure on Canada to export more energy to the U.S. and to consider joint developments, as implied in the pipeline legislation. The pressure will probably soon be felt, when a U.S. delegation, scheduled to be headed by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, goes to Ottawa, tentatively planned next month.

Whether Canada can resist or to what extent is a very crucial question for the Trudeau government to consider in the long range, not just for short-term advantage.

New Style

The Victoria Status of Women Action Group would like to take this opportunity to congratulate you for the changes in policy concerning job classifications in your classified advertisement sections.

The new designations are more appropriate and reflect the changes in society at this time.— Ms. Vaughn McMorland, Corresponding Secretary.

Evening Meetings

It appears fairly obvious that Victoria is in a slump, both for prospective election candidates, and the general public who have to live with decisions made.

We have an arrogant mayor; a council which makes street decisions without thought for the citizen; and an overabundance of fighting on two points — homeowner versus highrise, and tourist versus year-round civic trade.

The best mayor we have had in years was a workman, the late Alf Toone. Although from the Victoria Trades and Labor Council, he was head and shoulders above businessmen and lawyers, and very highly respected.

It is time the man who works be given a chance again at City Hall in the form of evening meetings, so that the working citizen can participate. Also evening radio telephone periods and meetings for the taxpayer before election, instead of luncheon meetings.

I am against political influence of either provincial or dominion on candidates, but surely we can come up with something better than we have at present. We, the taxpayers, support the city the year around. — Joan and Garnet L. Young, 1431 Richardson Street.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of October 22, 1913

LONDON — George Bernard Shaw, lecturing to a gathering of women artists, said art could not flourish beside poverty, and society could not afford to be poor. Poverty ought to be a penal offence, and every hungry child found on the streets ought to be seized by the police and ruthlessly fed. Everybody from birth ought to have a life pension. "What is the value of the artist's work," asked Mr. Shaw? "Intrinsic merit has nothing to do with it. A young lady displaying her art on the stage has motor cars and furs and enters society. Jesus Christ and Joan D'Arc were put to the cruelest deaths. The price of talent equalled the price of fish, being regulated by the supply and demand. The artists' only escape from competition lies in the formation of a union demanding subsistence wages.

Agnew's Fall Leaves More Americans in the Lurch

By HAYNES JOHNSON
The Washington Post

Only five days before his historic disgrace, Spiro Theodore Agnew coined his own epitaph. "A candle is only so long before it burns out," he said.

It wasn't only Spiro Agnew's flame that was extinguished so dramatically the other day. Nor was his final fall merely an unprecedented personal — and national — tragedy. Indeed, the ultimate American tragedy is that the end of the Agnew story is so familiar.

Once again a national leader has been taken abruptly from the scene. Once again a sudden casualty has created another political void and left a collective feeling of bitterness, betrayal, frustration and impotence.

It matters not whether one thought Agnew a political fool or prophet, villain or victim. To millions he was a symbol of hope and stability, independence and integrity. He spoke for them.

Now Agnew joins that long line of recent political vicitms who represented the widest range of political thought and attitudes, whether of the right, left or centre: the Kennedys; Martin Luther King; Malcolm X; George Wallace; even, it can be argued, Richard Nixon.

The constituencies have been shattered. No one has yet emerged to take their places. The result is a reinforcement of national cynicism and a numbing of the vitality of the political process.

In the immediate aftermath of the Agnew fall, a number of serious questions are being debated.

Agnew's case, it is being said, is another example of the mighty receiving favored treatment not given to the ordinary citizen. A vice-president does not go to jail, nor is he prosecuted for the more serious charges compiled against him. Does the law really apply impartially to the powerful and the powerless? What is the proper price of a pound of flesh?

Questions are also again being raised about the process by which our highest officials are chosen.

How is it possible that no investigative agencies perviously failed to turn up so massive a pattern of classic corruption as seems to have existed in the political corridors of Baltimore County?

Were those rumors that are said to have floated for years through the legislative chambers of Annapolis checked and dismissed as groundless by both prosecutors and press?

Are the cynics correct after all in assuming that everyone does it, that politics is synonymous with the take, the bribe, the extortion, the payoff, the big men and their bundles of cash?

Agnew's departure has brought forth another theme: the necessity of removing the taint of money from politics.

In this year of Watergate, the denouement of Agnew drama adds one more chapter to that sordid aspect of American politics. It brings home with perhaps more force than all the assorted Watergate characters put together the ignobling realities of the seamiest side of our elective process. And it raises again the troubling question of whether only the wealthy can afford poltical life or be free to follow their own consciences.

All these questions, too, are familiar. But important as they are, essentially they take a narrow view of Agnew's tragedy—and ours.

Forget the rhetoric he employed and the anger or pleasure his presence aroused. Think of him neither as a conservative nor an ideologue. He was neither.

His spectacular success came because he was so ordinary, because so many saw in him an image of themselves, because they believed in him. He was the quintessential self-made man. His themes were neither elegant nor eloquent, but they were the common chords that struck the most response in the most people: patriotism, family thrift, firmness, tradition, the virtues of hard work.

A large part of his appeal was easily explained. He came to national prominence at the end of the 60s and all the attendant traumas of the decade of riots, assassinations, bombings and war. No matter what slogan one wanted to employ — whether "forgotten" or silent" or "middle" Americans — he spoke out at a time when many people clearly were weary, fearful, frustrated and looking for another way out.

Like George Wallace, he made political capital out of "anarchists" in the streets, anger at student protestors and a strong, if inarticulated belief that the news media had fomented strife and deliberately distored the "real" America most people thought they knew.

His harshest language about "impudent snobs" and the "effete elite" and "rotten apples" attracted the most attention, but Agnew was saying something else that suited the times. He was promising to create order out of disorder. In a period of continuing disillusionment, he appealed to a basic desire for security and stability.

In one of his speeches then, he expressed his message by saying: "The last decade saw the most precipitous decline in respect for law of any decade in our history. Some of those who call each other 'intellectuals' helped to sow the wind, and America reaped the whirlwind. And then the years of permissiveness and indulgence finally culminated in the days of disorder — in violence in our cities and on our campuses."

He spoke for an older generation shaken by what it perceived to be the American present. A crumbling of authority. A rejection of the old values. Pot, promiscuity, permissiveness, long hair and seeming uncleanliness. Hedonism. A failure to appreciate the sacrifices and suffering of the past.

At the heart of Agnew's appeal was one belief — that he was a moral man. He might be outrageous at times, he might be too controversial, too hot, too intemperate, too divisive, but he was honest. He said what he really believed.

When David Broder and I made the first of our long trips across America interviewing voters, we invariably encountered the same reaction to Spiro Agnew.

"Spiro?" the voter would say, a laugh, a pause, and then: "Well, he really says what he thinks."

In a kind of embarrassed, awkward say, many Americans were proud of him. He was one of them, and they knew it. They understood him when he spoke about his upbringing, responded favorably when he would say: "I am proud to say that I grew up in the light of my father. My beliefs are his and my father believed deeply in America. My father was deeply involved in the life of the Greek community; for this, to him, was part of being an American."

Or when he spoke about his country in a time of trouble: "I am not ready to run up a white flag for the United States of America, and I don't think you are, either." Or, in a typical Agnew phrase: "Those who burn banks can bank on being burned."

Even the way Agnew looked fitted the popular impression. Like many men who struggled to make it, and did. Agnew dressed with a somewhat self-conscious style, a fashion that said, in effect, "look at me."

He was always impeccably, if not fussily, attired. The trousers carefully creased, the tie and shirt conservatively chosen, the material expensive, the French cuffs extending just the proper length from the suit coat, the coat buttoned, the quiet four-in-hand tie firmly in place, the hair neatly combed, never a strand out of place.

Nothing casual about him. He gave the impression of a man coolly in control. Dignity and decorum, not informality, were the dominant tones. The camaraderie, the conviviality, the sense of sleeves-rolled-up, tie-loosened-air always came out of public view. That, presumably, was for Palm Springs and Frank Sinatra and the glamorous setting of "stars" and "celebrities." But that was all right; that was every man's old dream of success and fame and underneath it all every man knew that old Spiro was playing out his secret desires.

In public, and particularly before the press that he genuinely distrusted, he was distant, aloof, solemn, always on guard. Four years ago, when I travelled with him across the country for this paper, only once did he let down his guard.

He had gone down to his condominium at St. Croix in the Virgin Islands for relaxation and there, sitting around the pool in bathing trunks, a towel draped over a shoulder, his feet propped up on a chair, sipping beer from a can, he gradually opened up.

Agnew said two things that day which, in retrospect, are worth recalling.

"I've always relied on my own instincts," he said at one point. "Politics is a high-risk business. You have to be prepared to take those risks."

Later, he added: "I have always believed that the best defence is a strong offence."

So he did, and all America now knows just how many risks he was privately prepared to take — and just how aggressively he would take the offensive in his own defence.

To the end, of course, he continued to strike that indignant stance of a righteous man wronged. To the end, it seemed hard to believe, even for those who disagreed totally with him politically, that he was still not telling the truth. For those millions who believed in him both politcally and personally, there is no way to fathom the final disillusionment and feeling of betrayal.

Several years ago, when he was riding high, Spiro Agnew said something else worth remembering.

"Right now we have a choice," he remarked, in a sober moment. "Will we treat all that is wrong with America as a challenge or as an indictment? Will we repudiate democracy because it moves slowly or revitalize it as its pace quickens?"

He knew, he went on to say, that "the answers are far from self-evident" and that "the jury is still out."

Those answers to Agnew's — and our — questions are even farther from resolution. The doubt and disbelief are now deeper and more widely held. In this present climate of universal pessimism, perhaps there are no answers to any of his questions or to any of the country's problems. But Agnew at that time chose to take a positive view.

"I trust," he said, "that Americans understand history well enough to see in our imperfect past the promise of a more perfect future."

Spiro Agnew, as the cliche goes, was not capable of practising what he preached. That does not make his prescription for the ills of democracy any less valid. His own tragic example is yet another lesson to be learned.

State Secrecy Breeds Evils

By NORMAN COUSINS

(An editorial in the Saturday Review World by its editor.)

Too many people seem to regard Watergate as little more than an open chamber of political horrors, a vastly diverting interlude in the national life in which scheming and overblown men are trapped in the full glare of powerful public searchlights.

But the American people will deprive themselves of the main historical value of the Watergate exposures if their only reaction is one of gratification at seeing men in high station cut down to size and made subordinate to the investigatory and judicial process.

For the central meaning of Watergate is that it has disclosed a large and ominous flaw in the form and substance of American government during the past quarter-century. The flaw is represented by the fact that secret and undercover operations have become standard operating procedure in government, with a consequent threat to the nature and traditions of an open society.

When did it begin? The starting point would probably be the decision by Congress in 1947 to establish what in effect was a government within a government. The secret agency was exempted from the constitutional requirements and limitations that applied to other government agencies. It would have vast sums at its disposal for which it would not have to account to Congress in the ordinary manner. It would be powerful enough to mount or support substantial military operations, subvert or overthrow other governments, and even engage in assassinations.

To the extent that such operations call for agency officials who possess extraordinary judgment and balance, it is apparent that the CIA was successful in finding responsible leadership. But the very existence of such a powerful and secret facility, as the Watergate investigation reveals, has served as a magnet to political chiefs in government.

For political leaders live in an unremitting state of frustration. They have to cope with unimaginable pressures from multiple quarters, including their own party. They have to deal with conflicting economic and social interests. The presidency of the United States is a post of both vast power and vast limitations. The power is prodigious when underwritten by public consensus and erodes very rapidly without it. On top of everything else, the president has to work for the success of his own political party.

A president who is confronted and confounded by all these problems and roadblocks, and who is personally not averse to short cuts, is not apt to ignore the existence of a secret agency inside government that has the advantage of high manoeuverability, unvouchered funds, and secret-police capability.

In the present case, the American people are fortunate that key CIA officials resisted attempts of the White House to involve the agency in illegal and unethical schemes.

The main point here, however, is that the American people should not have to depend on their good fortune in having men in appointive office who are willing to risk their jobs by standing up to the nation's chief executive or his aides on matters of principle. The existence of such an agency is the signal, significant, and ominous fact. A president or his aides may decide to use the presidential appointive power in a way that ensures he will not be rebuffed.

With or without respect to presidential manipulation or control, however, the very fact of a clandestine agency creates both a mood and style that inevitably extend beyond the agency itself. For the president to set up a secret-police operation in the White House may seem an outlandish violation of the Constitution, but he had a working model close at hand.

Secret-police and undercover activities for a quarter-century have been an integral part of our foreign policy and operations. Is it contended that it is legal and ethical to violate the security and rights of individuals so long as they are citizens of another country? The trouble with this position, of course, is that the U.S. Constitution was designed not just to protect American citizens but to prevent representatives of the U.S. government from violating the national rights of any human beings, whatever their nationality.

It is ironic that a clandestine agency designed to protect American security should become inimical to it. When the president tries to invoke our national security as the justification for violating the rights of U.S. citizens, he seems to forget that the historic purpose of American security is not just to guard against invasion but to protect the individual citizen against government itself when necessary.

Security begins not with the creation of a vast army and mammoth arsenals but with a social contract in which the government accepts the central responsibility for safeguarding the rights of its citizens.

A return to sanity and safety in the nation requires an end to the entire concept of secret police, secret budgets, secret military operations, secret political activities. It was historically false and dangerously absurd, to begin with, to assume we had to imitate the forces we feared in order to cope with them.

STATISTICS UNFAIR TO SMALL CARS

TORONTO STAR

A U.S. study, by no means the first on the subject, has shown that occupants of small cars are more likely to be injured or killed in the event of an accident than those in big cars.

There's no reason to doubt the statistical evidence, even though the study was conducted at the University of Michigan (in a state that also happens to be the home of the big U.S. auto industry), and even though it was first made public at a seminar sponsored by General Motors Corp., and even though it was recently quoted with approbation by two Chrysler executives.

In fact, the findings shouldn't surprise anyone. There's little doubt that the occupants of a Volkswagen would come out second best in a clash with a Cadillac. It's also not hard to imagine who would fare better in a collision between a Cadillac and a Greyhound bus.

The real flaw in the study is that it looks at only one side of the coin. Another recent study, this by the New York state department of motor vehicles, looked at both sides. And, while it concurred in the conclusion that accidents prove much more severe for small cars, the small cars are much less likely to become involved in accidents in the first place. To take a popular example, Volkswagen showed the highest severity rate, but the lowest incidence.

The Michigan study does make one interesting point: The likelihood of injury or death is the same in a small-car-to-small-car collision as it is in a crash involving two big cars. That, taken with the New York state finding, leads irresistibly to the conclusion that there would be fewer accidents, with no change in severity, if everyone drove a small car.

And that's only a safety argument. Small cars pollute less, consume less energy, need less parking space, and are cheaper both in the initial outlay and in subsequent maintenance. In view of all of which, the North American auto industry would do well to meet the small car competition head-on — so to speak — rather than try to discredit it by using selective statistics and one-sided studies.

Back From Mouth of Hell

By JOHN NICHOL

Dental Jitters Are Overcome In Three Steps says a recent headline in a Toronto newspaper. The article, written by a doctor, tells us of three techniques which will "truly reduce our fear and avoidance of dental offices."

First—he says "take a good look at what you really expect when you get to the dentist's office."

Second—practise relaxed responses when you think about the dentist. The doctor continues — "Then you could practise relaxing when you look at pictures of dental offices or procedures in process." He also suggests deep breathing, muscle relaxation and listening to relaxing music.

Third—he suggests a technique called modelling. This involves, says the doctor, observing someone else go through the "dental patient experience." When we see the other person experiencing relatively pleasant and painless dental work, we may model after that person.

Well, the doctor sounds to me like a man who has never been to the dentist. But let's look at his suggestions one by one.

First he advises you to take a good look at what you expect at the dentist's office. You expect old blood-stained copies of the Readers Digest in the waiting room. You expect the dentist to stick a shiny needle four inches into your gum. You expect your jaw muscles to cramp. You expect to stare mutely at an armory of glistening instruments. You expect your mouth to be jammed with clamps, rubber dams, suction tubes, and wads of cotton. You expect to choke to death.

Secondly the doctor suggests that the patient practise relaxed responses, but who for instance has "pictures of dental offices and procedures in progress" with which to practise? And although breathing, muscle relaxing, and listening to relaxing music sounds pleasant enough, how can you do these things with the scream of the drill resounding in your sinus bones? And what about the nurse lurking behind the chair? What is she up to? Roll your eyes as far back as you wish. You will not see her—but she is there—her hands full of chisels and nerve picks. She is laughing to herself because she knows what you do not know — that you have another appointment next week.

Thirdly the doctor suggests that we model ourselves on someone else going through the "dental patient experience." My stepfather once had his plate snatched by a seagull from a dentist's window sill in Vancouver. This occurred in 1939 at the Medical Dental Building. The gull, realizing that he had been lured by an inedible object, dropped the plate 13 floors onto Georgia Street. Luckily no pedestrian was hurt. Aside from this one exciting "dental patient experience" I know of no exception to the long sad chronicle of cavities, fillings and extractions.

But why should we be negative about the doctor's suggestions? He has tried to help. It is just that he isn't being practical. So to end on a constructive note here are three solid tips that I know from experience will really work:

One—avoid making any dental appointment. If you have one, postpone it if you cannot cancel it. Only go as a last resort, if you are in agony and your face is swollen beyond recognition.

Two—do not relax. Grasp the chair arms until your knuckles are white. Arch your back and squeeze your eyes shut. Take this position before the dentist touches you and never let up.

Three—as you go down in the elevator smile a sad knowing smile at the other people there. Remember you are a very calm, brave person who has come back from the very gates of hell.

If you haven't seen that scrawny little cousin in Toronto lately, do it now for only $174. (And save 30%)

'Fight Belongs To All'

THUNDER BAY (CP) — "No one has the right to arbitrarily decide that I am not an Indian," Jeannette Lavell, president of the Ontario Native Women's Association, said Sunday.

Mrs. Lavell, who lost her case before the Supreme Court of Canada after she had protested the denial of her rights as a treaty Indian for marrying a non-Indian, told a meeting of the northern women's group:

"Nationality is a guaranteed right but with the Supreme Court ruling we lost the right and we have to get our people to realize it."

Her fight, she said, was no longer a personal one but now involves all Canadian women.

"All women should recognize the loss of rights ... women have to make their feelings heard in legislative bodies."

The Supreme Court had ruled against Mrs. Lavell in a 5-4 decision but she said she hopes to make voters "aware of the importance of the decision."

Mrs. Lavell said her case had failed partly because of a mistaken attitude on the part of Indians themselves. She said many Indians on reserves feared the Indian Act would be invalidated if her case had been upheld.

"We are trying to make the Indian Act stronger to look at it from the point of view of women."

The womens' group had met to discuss plans for a national day of mourning today on the death of the Canadian Bill of Rights as it applies to native women, and the denial of their birthright as status Indians when marrying non-status Indians or white men.

A resolution endorsing the national day of mourning was passed.

The group will also ask the federal government to amend the British North America Act to incorporate the Canadian Bill of Rights.

Pickets Jab Test Baboons

NEW YORK (AP) — Pickets protesting the use of baboons in auto safety tests for General Motors marched outside an automobile show at the Coliseum on Saturday.

The pickets included 60 members of the Society for Animal Rights and two from the Vegetarian Activist Collective.

Georgiana Morrison, a lawyer and one of the pickets, said a similar campaign caused Ford Motor Co. to stop using animals for research.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Love prevailed upon Victoria provincial court Saturday and won.

It came in the guise of Wesley Morris Chowen held in custody since Friday on a charge of theft under $200.

Appearing before Judge E. F. N. Robinson, Chowen, of 260 Gorge, asked for a release in his own undertaking in order to get married.

"I have the licence in my suitcase," he said, explaining he tnd his common-law wife of 3½ years planned to wed over the weekend.

Chowen made his request after prosecutor Wally Anderson asked the accused be remanded in custody until Tuesday when he is scheduled to appear in court on another matter as "he seems to have some intentions of leaving the area."

Chowen protested saying he had never before failed to keep an appointment in court.

Robinson acceded.

But the honeymoon will be a short one.

The judge ordered the accused back to court today to enter a plea on the charge.

Two Victoria men received jail sentences in court Friday after pleading guilty to impaired driving offences.

Maurice Edward Crumly, 30, of No. 32, 2150 Haultain, was sentenced to 14 days on an impaired charge and an additional seven days for driving while under suspension.

Crumly was charged Thursday after his car collided with another at Pandora and Johnson.

He admitted a prior conviction for impaired. A second conviction carries a mandatory jail sentence.

Police said Crumly received a partial suspension on his licence June, 1972, for an indefinite period.

Alder ordered six months probation following release.

In the other case, Ellis Ervin Stevens, 37, 882 Dunsmuir, was sentenced to 14 days to be served on consecutive weekends and three months' suspension.

Getting the Most For Your Meat Dollar

Recently it seems that hardly a day goes by without some news item or mention of another rising cost related to food costs. This is a problem that affects everyone, and although much has been said, unfortunately no solution has been found at present, as any homemaker can tell you. A more knowledgeable outlook in food buying will help to aid the shopper in answering such questions as "What substitutions can be made?" . . . "What alternatives are available?" . . . "What can a homemaker do?"

Meat, of course, is a major concern to most of us as it consists of about ⅓ or more of our food budget. A guide to use when purchasing meat is to calculate cost per serving rather than price per pound. In many instances fat and bone are included in the meat, and in the long run it could cost more. So you may find that while you pay more per pound for lean boneless meat, there will be little or no waste as compared to bone-in cuts. Serve average size meat portions. To satisfy heartier appetites, supplement your meal with more of the less expensive foods, such as bread. "Meatless" dishes will give a change of pace to menu planning. Dry beans, peas and lentils can become tasty substitutions for meat, as well as an economical source of protein. Learn the more economical cuts of meat. While your family may prefer pork chops, for example, pork steaks may cost less and be as nutritious. Become creative with left-overs by preparing appealing casseroles, sandwiches, salads and skillet dishes (even the bones make tasty soups or broths). When considering buying a "freezer special" determine whether all cuts will be of your family's taste. If not, it may be wiser to buy several specific cuts of meat when advertised at special savings. Lastly, glean helpful hints and tips to aid in food buying from consumer articles in magazines, newspapers and cookbooks. Become an aware shopper.

AFTON MINES LIMITED

E. P. Chapman, Jr., P.Eng. L. G. White, P.Eng.

Dr. N. B. Keevil, Chairman of The Board, Afton Mines Limited, announces that E. P. Chapman, Jr., and L. G. White will stand for election to the board of directors of the company at the annual meeting to be held in December. Mr. Chapman and Mr. White are well known consulting engineers, whose many years of experience in western Canadian mining will make an important contribution to Afton.

Mr. Chapman is president and a founding partner of Chapman, Wood and Griswold Ltd., a consulting engineering firm with extensive experience in the U.S. and Australia, as well as in Canada. He has been associated with the development of many important new B.C. mines in the past decade.

Mr. White has been involved with Western Canadian mining for many years, both as an operator and as an independent consultant. He is a director and advisor to a number of mining companies, financial institutions and community associations, and is presently Chairman of the tax committee of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines.

Bank President 'Apprehensive' About Provinces as Partners

VANCOUVER (CP) — W. Earle McLaughlin, chairman and president of the Royal Bank of Canada, is apprehensive about proposed federal legislation which would give provinces the right to own up to 25 per cent in a chartered bank.

"I don't object in principle, I don't mind competition, but I wonder if this is normal competition," he said in an interview.

McLaughlin said governments grant many kinds of licences in primary resource industries and other fields. He said he felt it was likely governments would exert directive influence in getting business for banks in which they had interests.

Changes in the Bank Act are made every 10 years and so far no legislation has been introduced although it has been promised. All Canadian bank charters expire July 1, 1977, and are subject to renewal at that time.

McLaughlin predicted that interest rates have not reached their peak. This week the commercial rate, 9¼ per cent, exceeded the prime rate of nine per cent. This frequently precedes a rush on the banks to provide money at the lower rate.

He said money supply is being increased at between 13 and 15 per cent annually and without this extra money things would be very tight for banks. McLaughlin said there is a squeeze on large borrowers as it is.

The bank president said Canada can afford major projects such as the James Bay development and the Mackenzie pipeline providing they are not on at the same time.

"Canada can raise more money than most people think. We would have to borrow externally but we would use offshore borrowings to pay for offshore purchases which would ease the upward pressure on the Canadian dollar," he said.

Despite inflation Canadian interest rates are among the lowest in the world, although borrowers everywhere may have to get used to higher rates of interest as a way of life, he said.

McLaughlin also said there is no urgency to finding a new world system to manage currencies.

"The present non-system is working extremely well. Finding a solution is going to take a lot longer than they think and when it does happen the net result, I suspect, will be a set of rules formalizing the existing situations," said McLaughlin.

The national bank president said regional banks may be useful but they provide no service not available through national banks.

"If we had only regional banks in Canada, Ontario would be the only provice to have gotten anywhere. Ontario's monetary surplus is used throughout Canada to finance activities in other provinces."

Placer Development

Placer Development Ltd. had consolidated net earnings of $47,171,000 or $3.93 a share for the nine-month period ended Sept. 30, the company reported.

The earnings included extraordinary items amounting to $10,333,000 or 86 cents a share.

Net earnings for the corresponding 1972 period amounted to $10,635,000, or 89 cents a share, including extraordinary items of $2,318,000, or 20 cents a share.

Sales for the nine-month period were a record $809.8 million, up from $656.1 million last year.

Quaker Oats

Quaker Oats Co. of Canada Ltd. reports a profit of $1,807,000 on sales of $47,866,000 for the year ending June 30.

This compares with a profit of $990,000 on sales of $47,049,000 a year ago.

Capital expenditures totalled $2.2 million, an increase of $1.4 million over the previous year.

Inco

International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. reports an 84-per-cent increase in net earnings for the first nine months of this year to $151.2 million U.S. of $2.03 a share.

This compares with $82.1 million and $1.10 a share in the corresponding period in 1972.

Third-quarter earnings of $58.6 million or 79 cents a share were the highest in any quarter of the company's history.

Texaco Canada

Texaco Canada Ltd. reports net earnings for the nine months to Sept. 30 of $39,153,000 or $4.02 a share compared with $30,976,000 and $3.18 a share for the corresponding period last year.

Earnings for last year's nine-month period have been restated to accord with a new equity method of accounting adopted in January to include all significant investments owned less than 50 per cent.

The company says crude oil production in the first nine months this year rose 32 per cent, sales increased 10 per cent and refinery flow expanded by five per cent compared with 1972.

Abitibi Paper

Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. reports net earnings for the nine months to Sept. 30 almost quadrupled to $16,302,000 or 88 cents a share from $4,831,000 and 24 cents in the corresponding period last year.

The earnings figure this year includes an extraordinary charge of $670,000 as against no such charge in 1972.

Net sales for the nine-month period rose 29 per cent to $288,493,000.

$ EXCHANGE

In Victoria today, purchase of U.S. funds in terms of Canadian dollar was .9930 by the Royal Bank with .9940 for cheques and .9830 for coins. Selling rates were 1.0040 for cheques and 1.0060 for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds at noon Monday was down ¼ at $.99 4-5. Pound sterling was up 3-20 at $2.43 9-25.

In Detroit, the Canadian dollar was up 1-25 at $1.00 1-5. Pound sterling was up ¼ at $2.43 17-20.

Imperial Oil

The Imperial Oil Ltd. reports net earnings in the first nine months this year of $155 million or $1.19 a share, up sharply from $111 million and 86 cents in the corresponding period of 1972.

President J. A. Armstrong says in a report to shareholders the increase is due to strong markets for crude oil and chemicals.

Alcan Aluminum

Alcan Aluminum Ltd. reports net income of $54.6 million U.S. or $1.60 a share for the nine months ended Sept. 30, compared with $47.3 million or $1.38 for the same period in 1972.

Income for the third quarter was $16.3 million compared with $14 million in 1972.

The company said its results so far this year have been influenced by a variety of factors, particularly the strong demand for aluminum in all markets and by "generally favorable movement of currency exchange rates."

Saanich Junior Wardens Win

Saanich Junior Forest Warden Club has been named the most proficient and active club of its kind on Vancouver Island.

The club was awarded this year's Canadian Institute of Forestry Challenge Shield by the Canadian Forestry Association of B.C.

Selection was based on club activities carried out at weekly meetings such as conservation studies, hikes, camping trips, projects and community service events.

Acting A-G Bork Shuns Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert Bork, the law school professor who takes over a shaken United States justice department, is described by his colleagues as a first-class intellectual who shuns traditional politics.

President Nixon plucked Bork from the Yale Law School faculty to nominate him as solicitor-general last January. He was routinely confirmed by the Senate a month later and sworn into office last June.

Bork became acting attorney-general Saturday night after Elliot Richardson resigned rather than bow to Nixon's order to fire Archibald Cox as special prosecutor in the Watergate political-espionage case.

Borks's most visible duty as solicitor-general was to argue the government's cases in hearings before the Supreme Court.

Bork, 46, has immersed himself in the law for two decades, beginning as a research associate on a law and economics project at the University of Chicago soon after earning a doctorate degree at the university law school.

He went into private practice in New York City briefly, then returned to Chicago to practise in the firm now known as Kirkland and Ellis from 1955 to 1962.

Then he settled at Yale. When he moved in at the justice department, he was quickly identified as the only top official sporting a beard.

Under Richardson, he assumed a key role in drafting the government arguments that Spiro Agnew could have been indicted prior to impeachement proceedings.

Despite Bork's acquiescence to Nixon's command, a close friend and well-known legal expert said Bork should not be considered a Nixon tool.

"The Robert Bork I know is a man who has much integrity and independence and a mind of his own and a nose of his own as anybody I know," said Alexander Bickel, a Yale law professor.

At the time of Bork's solicitor-general appointment, former Yale Law School dean Louis Pollack called him a man of "tremendous intelligence . . . who follows the truth wherever it takes him."

DON LeBLANC

The appointment of Don LeBlanc as Director, Public Affairs Department, is announced by Edgar F. Kaiser Jr., President and Chief Executive Officer of Kaiser Resources Ltd.

Mr. LeBlanc, born and educated in Nova Scotia, brings to the department 14 years' experience in news and public relations. He spent eight years with The Canadian Press as a reporter and editor posted in Vancouver, Toronto, Saint John, N.B., and Halifax. Entering the public relations field in 1972, he was appointed an account executive with O'Brien Consultants Limited of Vancouver.

In his new position, he is responsible to Mr. Kaiser for developing and carrying out corporate communications programs involving Kaiser Resources operations. He is located at the firm's corporate offices in Vancouver.

Watergate Whiz Readies Goodbye

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even for Archibald Cox, man of reason, it's likely to be an emotional farewell.

The tall, lean law professor, fired Saturday as special Watergate prosecutor, will meet Tuesday with the men and women of his staff to say goodbye.

With his shy smile, consuming sense of duty and prodigious knowledge of the law, Cox, crewcut and greying at 61, inspired an uncommon devotion in the nearly 50 lawyers and other staff members he assembled to investigate wrongdoing in the re-election of President Nixon.

With his discharge by the president and the president's dismantling of the special Watergate prosecution force, Cox's singular role as a government prosecutor virtually independent of the justice department came to an end. He has yet to say what he'll do now.

When his staff reports to work Tuesday morning — today is a government holiday — the staff members will be "employees of the department of justice," said a spokesman for the prosecutor's office.

"As far as possible," the spokesman says, "we will continue . . ."

Cox, who cloaks his brilliance with modesty, began his Watergate responsibilities by climbing the steps of the Lincoln Memorial and reading again the words chiselled on the wall, ". . . that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth . . ."

He surrendered that responsibility by declaring in reply to his dismissal: "Whether ours shall continue to be a government of laws and not of men now is for Congress and ultimately the American people (to decide)."

Like Elliot Richardson, who resigned as attorney-general rather than discharge him, Cox was born into an old, wealthy and respected family. Like Richardson, he attended Harvard. Both men were law clerks for Judge Learned Hand and for Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter.

Cox first came to Washington in 1941. He joined the faculty at Harvard law school in 1945, and was named by President Truman as chairman of the wage stabilization board in 1952. Under President Kennedy, he served in the justice department as solicitor-general.

COX

Bride's Death Fall

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP) — Linda Wright, married last month after a parachute jump with her husband-to-be, plunged to her death Sunday while attempting a solo skydive. The 18-year-old Phoenix woman's main parachute and back-up parachute did not open as she fell 3,500 feet. Her husband, Rod, was watching from the ground. The couple was married at Municipal Airport near this central Arizona town last month after parachuting to earth together.

Clamps Urged on Urban Growth

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadians will face restrictions on their lifestyle unless all levels of government learn to manage urban growth, Ron Basford, minister of state for urban affairs, said today.

"People will find themselves living and working in areas that have become humanly unbearable and in environments destructive of social and cultural values," Mr. Basford told 300 delegates to the second national federal-provincial-municipal conference.

Canadians had to be made aware of the benefits that would come if growth was brought under control and managed more effectively.

Mr. Basford said the federal government wants to attack unbalanced urban growth in concert with the provinces and municipalities.

"Can we act in concert and within provincially-defined frameworks to meet this challenge? It is my conviction that we will do so."

PLANS ESSENTIAL

Mr. Basford said provincial development plans are essential for an effective urban strategy.

"Urban growth, per se, is not an evil. When it moves at a reasonable rate of speed our constitutions can cope with it and shape it into a beautiful thing.

"It is one thing to add nine million people to Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal over, say, 100 years. It is something else to plan for an accommodation for that population increase over a 30-year time frame."

Mr. Basford predicted that in 30 years Canada could have a population of 35 million, with more than half of it concentrated in a corridor between Windsor, Ont., and Quebec City.

"We must ask the question now: What kind of Canada will this be? What kind of Canada do we want?"

Mr. Basford told the delegates he will suggest and strategy initiatives Ottawa is willing to take along with other assistance programs.

The federal government wished to be consulted and was willing to co-operate in framing urban plans and strategies.

A text of his speech was released before delivery.

Health Care Changes Eyed

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government will be making some changes on health care allocations, says Marc Lalonde, health and welfare minister.

Speaking at a weekend meeting of the Association of Hospitals of the Province of Quebec, Lalonde said about five per cent of the federal health budget is spent on health protection, while the other 95 per cent goes to health care service.

Of that, hospitals take about 40 per cent.

SPILL WORSE THAN THOUGHT

HIGH PRAIRIE (CP) — A pipeline which ruptured in the Peace River area of northwestern Alberta Friday spilled about 300 more barrels of oil than originally estimated, says an Alberta Energy Conservation Board spokesman.

One thousand barrels were estimated to have leaked onto surrounding land before emergency crews sealed the hole with a clamp but "now it's more like 1,200 to 1,300, maybe a bit more, "Ed Brushett, assistant manager of environment protection for the board, said Sunday.

A crew of about 40 men has cleaned up approximately 800 barrels of the oil, which spilled mostly onto land although the pipeline is near the East Prairie river nine miles northeast of High Prairie, said Brushett.

Brushett said earlier the hole in the pipeline may have been made deliberately by a rifle bullet.

"You have to be pretty close to a stell pipeline like that to penetrate it with a bullet. The pipeline is bright orange — it would be pretty hard to shoot it accidentally."

However RCMP who are investigating said it would be almost impossible to determine whether the puncture was deliberate.

Saigon Shipping Rice To Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (WP) — The U.S. aid program in Saigon is shipping an emergency load of 3,500 tons of Food For Peace rice to Cambodia this week to offset current shortages.

Saigon's government has agreed to lend the rice to Cambodia, and ships are now preparing to bring it up the Mekong River to Phnom Penh.

Although the Cambodian government of Lon Nol has adequate supplies of rice, distribution has "fallen apart," according to one western official, and merchants from Phnom Penh's black market are hording the grain.

Most official rice distribution centres have been empty for five days.

"I have to provide rice for more than 20,000 people in my district," complained a government supervisor, "and I haven't had enough rice for everyone in more than a month — now there is nothing to sell."

His store was empty. He hoped that rice would come in the afternoon. Rice riots hadn't broken out in his district yet, but in a bordering area trouble was brewing.

Phnom Penh is divided into districts for rice distribution as well as draft induction, and the administrators of these districts, scattered around the city, are the first to spot possible food shortages.

On Oct. 14, a hundred soldiers looted the northern Pochentong marketplace, stealing 220-pound sacks of rice, which privates can't afford on their meagre salaries. One administrator said he had warned the government that something would happen if rice wasn't delivered quickly to offical centres and the marketplaces.

Phnom Penh's central market has little rice for sale officially, and most merchants are putting their grain up for bidding on the black market.

There the rice costs at least five times the official price, even the less prestigious U.S. rice.

The average income for a low-ranking bureaucrat or infantryman is $20 a month. The black market price for a sack of rice which feeds a family of four for a month is $50.

Guerrillas Threaten Sakharov

MOSCOW (WP) — Two Arabs who described themselves as members of the Black September organization Sunday terrorized dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov and his wife for 75 minutes in their Moscow flat.

The two warned Sakharov to make no more statements on the Middle East and said "we can do something worse than killing you."

In a telephone interview Sunday night Sakharov said he interpreted this as a threat against his family.

This is the first known instance of Arab guerrilla activity in the Soviet Union.

Sakharov said he was sure the men were who they said they were and that the threat was real.

He reported the incident to Moscow police who sent four men to his apartment to investigate.

Ten days ago Sakharov gave a brief interview on the Middle East to another Arab who came to his flat and described himself as a journalist from a Lebanese newspaper.

In that interview Sakharov called on the Communist powers not to interfere in the Arab-Israeli conflict and urged Western Nations to "take measures in response" if Soviet and Communist interference continued.

Block Threat: 108 Sell-Out

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — The president of Block Brothers said Friday if the B.C. government continues to hold up the "108" development in the Cariboo, he will sell out at a profit and leave those who have already bought lots with considerable losses.

Henry Block said he cannot fulfill his obligations to the lotholders because the government won't let him. An attempt to release the land from the present land freeze has failed. Block said he will appeal to the land commission if he has to.

Block has publicly supported the Land Commission Act in the past.

Autumn
"Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness . . ."

Autumn is a time of lingering delight as quitness spreads over British Columbia and a glorous range of vibrant corlor assaults the eye. Golds, yellows, reds stand sharply etched in clearcut outlines against a backdrop of multi-shaded greens or are softly blurred by mist rising from nearby waters.

But for the famous British Columbia salmon, fall marks the beginning of the most strenuous time of their lives, culminating in the frenzied struggle to return to their birthplace and achieve regeneration of their species.

Goldstream Creek, spawning bed for the Chum salmon, is always a popular place here on the Island for spectators hoping for a close view of this recurring drama. Young and old alike are magnetized in fascination by the gallant battle of the fish to overcome all odds and to return to the stream where they first saw life — there, to mate, to spawn and to die.

Whatever your special interest—whether capturing the salmon's dramatic swim on film, hiking through the woods with a crunchy carpet of fallen leaves underfoot, or fall touring through the highways and by-ways of British Columbia . . . you'll find a wealth of advertisements in the Classified pages of your Victoria daily newspaper to cater to your needs.

We Can Outlast Israel: Syria

By JIM HOAGLAND
Washington Post

DAMASCUS — The two bullets that smashed gaping holes into the windows of the comfortably appointed office of the Syrian minister of economy were of large calibre.

The minister, Mohamed Imady, who is a dapper 43-year-old holder of a doctorate in economics from New York University, sat in the office Thursday and calmly recounted how an Israeli jet last week strafed the central business district where his office is located.

Outside, a thick black pall of smoke spread over the suburbs of Damascus, rising from an oil depot northwest of the city. Set ablaze by rockets last week, the storage tanks periodically reignite. The fire finally was extinguished Friday.

With the Middle East War's northern front appearing to have settled into what could be a long and costly artillery and tank duel along the Golan Heights, Syria and Israel are increasingly involved in a strategic struggle in which the strength of their respective economies could be decisive.

Despite the damage from what the Syrians see as a deliberate campaign by the Israelis to hit "economic targets" officials here confidently predict that their relatively simple, largely agricultural, economy is much better situated to withstand a grinding campaign than is Israel's sophisticated export-orientated economy.

Diplomats from neutral countries echo Syrian optimism. "Syria can feed itself," said one ambassador. "With a population of six million on fertile land, there is no real population pressure, and mobilization of reserves does not impair the traditional economy nearly as much as it does Israel's."

Sixty per cent of the population still lives on the land and produces most of the wheat, barley and vegetables that the country needs. Cotton and textiles are its main exports, with markets spread evenly across western Europe and Socialist Bloc countries.

Syrian peasants, many of whom could be seen throughout this week continuing to work their fields as artillery rumbled in the distance, are already accustomed to a sparce existence in a country where 60 per cent of all families earn less than 100 dollars a year and the annual per capita income is only 350 dollars.

"In some ways we are lucky to be at a lower economic level right now," Imady said in an interview. "Whatever they destroy we will rebuild. No matter what they destroy we will resist. We are ready for a long war of liberation for our territory," he added, matter of factly.

Imady and other Syrian officials stress that the Syrian objective in this war is to retake the Golan Heights occupied by Israel in the 1967 war and not to destroy Israel.

"Our people are used to fasting," Imady said, noting that the Islamic world is currently observing the month of Ramadan in which a day-long fast is observed. "If they don't find electricity they will manage. If they don't have food, they will manage."

"In 1960 when I was in New York City there was a power failure for three hours and the city nearly collapsed. Here we do not have such problems."

The minister asserted that the war has not brought inflation to the famed market places of Damascus and spot checks in the bazaar bore this out. The government of the Arab Socialist Baath Party subsidizes the sale of staple items to keep prices down for consumers.

With its main ports of Latakia and Tartous damaged by Israeli bombing and closed to civilian traffic and with the prospect of a less generous wheat harvest this year, Syria could run into problems on food and consumer goods, if the war did stretch into the winter. But there are no signs of shortages now, and the land borders with Lebanon and Jordon are open.

This is in sharp contrast to Syria's partner in the war, Egypt, which experiences food shortages in normal times. This difference could be an important factor in the respective approaches of the two Arab allies to the prospect of a long campaign, diplomats here feel.

The biggest economic blow the Israelis have dealt was the total destruction of the $50 million petroleum refinery at Homs last week.

It will take several years to rebuild completely, experts say. This will add significantly to Syria's import bill. Syria will also be losing a portion of the oil transit revenues it normally gets from Iraq while the port of Banias, damaged in an Israeli air attack, remains closed.

Imady, who said he did not know how much the war was costing Syria each day, conceded that the five-year economic plan started by Syria in 1971 had already been set back.

"In many sectors we will have to start from scratch. They have bombed refineries, reservoirs, bridges, and roads. But at least we will have the advantage of being able to get new things."

Syria's main trading partners are Italy and the Soviet Union. The Russians, who took about a quarter of Syria's exports last year, can be expected to supply most of the capital goods that will be needed for reconstruction and the ambitious industrial expansion the Syrians have planned. But Syria can apparently also count on substantial financial aid from Saudi Arabia and other Arab oil producers, who have pledged total support for the war against Israel.

Cotton ginning, textile manufactures and petrochemicals, are Syria's main industries. Industry now accounts for a 20 per cent share of the national income, up from 14 per cent seven years ago, Imady said.

The light, unintegrated industry offers Israel poor targets for a concerted strategic bombing campaign, diplomats feel. "With the Syrian air defence system working so well, it will cost the Israelis much more to destroy these small factories than it will cost Syrians to rebuild them," said one.

But the cost of the war will be a severe drain on a Syrian economy that had begun to move forward under the pragmatic approach of President Hafez Al Assad after a lengthy period of stagnation.

Before the war, defence spending took at least a quarter of Syria's $1 billion total budget, a heavy burden for a country that still carries all the problems of a developing nation.

Marked improvement in health care has raised the population growth rate from 2.2 per cent in the early 1950s to 3.3 per cent now. But there is still only one doctor for every 4,000 persons and a government study of school children showed that two-thirds of them did not have meat to eat in their regular meals.

Less than a quarter of the population above 10 years of age is literate, and the nation's three universities have been closed so students can take part in the war effort.

"The war will set the building of the infrastructure back 10 years," one diplomat predicted gloomily. But Imady and other Syrians say they will pay whatever price is needed to regain their territory.

"If the Israelis destroy our railroads, we will move our goods by road. If they bomb our roads, we will find other means. We are here to stay," Imady said.

FIRE AT SEA – 7 MISSING

HALIFAX (CP) — Only seven of 42 crew from the Greek freighter Eurygenes remained unaccounted for early today following a shipboard fire which forced them to abandon ship about 350 miles southwest of here Sunday.

A spokesman for the search and rescue centre in Halifax said 31 men were picked up safely from a lifeboat shortly after they abandoned ship. Four others, pulled from the chilly Atlantic more than two hours later, were among 11 reported missing when their lifeboat overturned.

The 45,911-ton passenger liner Michaelangelo, along with the U.S. navy ship Hayes and the Japanese cargo vessel Laymon, were searching for the missing seamen.

An Argus aircraft from Canadian Forces Base Summerside, P.E.I., joined the search.

The centre said visibility was good. Winds were 30 miles an hour and seas were running about six feet.

Eurygenes, registered in Piraeus, Greece, was en route to London from New York when fire broke out in three of her six holds at about 8:30 p.m. EDT Sunday.

Dole Drops, Cost Climbs

NANAIMO — An estimated 825 persons received welfare payments here in September, compared to a high of 1,418 in 1971, Mayor Frank Ney said Friday.

While the number of persons receiving social assistance is nearly down to the 1967 level of 783, he said, costs are more than double what they were six years ago.

Costs over the six-year period have risen from $30,700 per month to $71,700 per month this year.

Oak Bay Girls Capture Cup

Michelle Williams scored the only goal in four games in the championship round-robin section Sunday and it was enough to give Oak Bay the Bridgman Cup.

Mt. Douglas and Vic High were first and second in the five-team "A" section and Cowichan and Oak Bay were 1-2 in the "B" section after preliminary round-robin play in the annual invitational field hockey tournament for senior high school girls' teams at Lansdowne Junior High School.

In the first games of the modified round-robin final, Mt. Doug played Oak Bay and Cowichan met Vic High but both games ended in scoreless draws.

Mt. Doug and Cowichan then played to a scoreless tie in their 20-minute game but Oak Bay edged Vic High 1-0 on Miss Williams' goal to take first place.

Mt. Doug and Cowichan tied for second place and Vic High was fourth.

Other schools competing were Norfolk House of Victoria, Brentwood College and Crofton of Vancouver in section "A" and Mount View and St. Margaret's of Victoria and Queen Margaret's of Duncan in section "B".

The consolation round was won by Mount View, which tied Norfolk House 1-1 and then beat Crofton 1-0 on a goal by Jan Crook. Norfolk House was edged 1-0 by Queen Margaret's.

Pirates Climb Near Leaders

Ann Bover, Jenny John and Dianne Whittingham, the Victoria trio named last week to Canada'a national field hockey team, all celebrated Saturday by scoring goals in Vancouver Island Women's Association victories.

Miss Bover fired in two goals and playing-coach Mrs. John scored once as Pirates shocked previously-unbeaten Oak Bay 4-0 to climb to within one point of the league leaders.

And, in the only other first-division game, Miss Whittingham and Gill Hawkins scored two goals each to give Sandpipers a 4-0 win over the University of Victoria.

Castaways handed Sanderlings their first defeat of the season, winning 3-1, to create a first-place tie in the second division.

No weekend matches were scheduled in the men's association.

Hurry Harriet Beats Favorite

NEWMARKET, England (Reuter) — Allez France, the outstanding French filly, suffered her second big race setback in two weeks when she was beaten Saturday by Irish outsider Hurry Harriet in the 1¼-mile Champion Stakes.

Hurry Harriet, who started at 33-1, overhauled the filly to win by three-quarters of a length and carry off the $90,250 first prize.

Sharp Edge was third, four lengths behind Allez France.

Blues Bolster Lead

CHEMAINUS — Chemainus Blues tripped CFB Esquimalt 4-1 Saturday at Fuller Lake Arena to extend a lead to six points in the Vancouver Island Hockey League.

Joe Piper scored twice to pace the Blues while single tallies were added by Vern Lambourne and Don Smith.

Jack Porter ruined shutout bid by Spence Simmons with a goal in the second period.

Jackson's Breakout Helps Believing A's to Overcome

OAKLAND (AP) — Now you have to believe—in Oakland Athletics.

New York Mets coined the catch-phrase, "You gotta believe," but the Athletics made it unbelievable Sunday by winning the 1973 World Series.

Overcoming dissension, a murder threat to Reggie Jackson, and Jon Matlack, the Athletics won baseball's major league championship for the second straight year, beating the Mets 5-2 in the seventh game.

"We finally did everything together to win this thing," said Reggie Jackson, the most valuable player of the series, who hit a two-run homer in a four-run third inning and made a couple of splendid fielding plays Sunday.

The Athletics were rocked with internal unrest early in the series after owner Charles O. Finley tried to put on the disabled list second baseman Mike Andrews, who made two errors in one game.

For six games, their usually explosive bats were muffled for the most part by the powerhouse New York pitching staff.

Jackson was performing under hazardous conditions. His life had been threatened by a letter writer, who promised to murder him if he played in the series. Jackson was protected by FBI men throughout the week.

And if all that wasn't enough, the Athletics had to face the Mets' most effective pitcher in the deciding game — Matlack. The hard-throwing left-hander had given up only one earned run in more than three weeks and none in the National League playoff or the World Series.

They were down to 23 players after Finley shipped Andrews home to Boston for making two errors in last Sunday's 10-7 loss to the Mets.

Andrews eventually returned, but the situation became so controversial that the Athletics showed open hostility—and even hatred—toward their maverick owner.

The Mets took a 3-2 lead in the series as Jerry Koosman and Tug McGraw combined on a three-hit shutout in the fifth game. McGraw worked his way out of a bases-loaded, one-out situation in the seventh inning to save the game, 2-0.

That sent the series back to Oakland and the Athletics were on the verge of an unexpected knockout.

The Athletics faced Tom Seaver in Game No. 6, a pitcher whom Jackson described as "the best in baseball."

Jackson doubled home runs in the first and third against the New York ace and later scored another run as the Athletics tied the series at three games apiece with a 3-1 victory Saturday.

That set the stage for Sunday's deciding game, with probably $20,000 a man for the winning team riding on the outcome.

Matlack was just as tough as expected in the first two innings before the Athletics put it away with their four-run fourth—the first earned runs scored against the Mets' lefthander in 26 innings.

After Dick Green struck out, winning pitcher Ken Holtzman doubled into the left field corner. Then Bert Campaneris, an unlikely home run hitter, pumped a Matlack offering onto the right field catwalk at the Oakland Coliseum for a 2-0 lead.

Rudi singled and after Bando made the second out, Jackson hit one out of sight into the right-centre field bleachers for a 4-0 lead.

Oakland made it 5-0 in the fifth on Rudi's run-scoring hit.

VICTORY LEAP—AGAIN: Oakland Athletics catcher Ray Fosse (10) embraces Sal Bando (left) and pitcher Darold Knowles as they leap into the air to signify A's second consecutive World Series victory. Oakland downed New York Mets 5-2 Sunday in deciding game after 3-1 win Saturday. Knowles made relief appearance in each of seven games as Athletics failed to display excpected hitting power until final two games.

WILLIAMS PACKING IT UP

Times News Services

OAKLAND — A threat against the life of slugger Reggie Jackson and Dick Williams' decision to resign as manager of the Athletics almost overshadowed Oakland's comeback triumph in baseball's World Series.

Minutes after Oakland defeated New York Mets 5-2 to win the world championship for a second straight year, Jackson disclosed the threat against his life on national television.

The threat came in a letter signed by The Weathermen, a splinter group of the Students for Democratic Society, and was received just before the American League playoff with Baltimore Orioles.

"The letter said if I played in the playoffs and the World Series it would be the last time I would play in any baseball game," said Jackson.

When the club went to Baltimore, there were two agents with Jackson at all times. The agents stayed with him through the games in New York and Oakland. During Sunday's game, a reported 100 agents were in the Oakland Coliseum due to the threat.

Williams confirmed that he has decided to resign as Oakland's manager. He cited "personal reasons," indicating he wished to be closer to his family on the Eastern Seaboard, but admitted he "would like" to consider the possibility of piloting New York Yankees.

Yankees lost Ralph Houk as field boss, and Williams had been rumored a prime candidate for the New York job. Williams denied, however, having talked to anyone connected with the Yankees.

Williams' retirement announcement overshadowed a declaration by Dick Green that the 32-year-old second baseman with Oakland also plans to quit.

Finally, Jackson, amid the noise and din of Oakland's dressing-room celebrations, asked reporters "please don't give (Oakland owner Charlie) Finley credit" for the Athletics' victory.

"That takes away from what the guys in this dressing room have done," he said.

Smith Slides To Triumph

Roy Smith of Victoria slid across the finish line sideways Sunday to win the third 100-lap leg of the $47,000 Golden State Classic seven-race series for super-modified cars at Altamount, Calif.

Smith finished fifth in the second California race Saturday in Roseville and was knocked out of contention by a slight accident in the opening event Friday at Stockton.

The series, which attracted the lone Canadian entry as well as one from Mexico, continues Wednesday at Anderson and winds up with three races Friday, Saturday and Sunday at San Jose.

Smith took over the lead on the fifth lap of the feature race Sunday.

Howard Kaeding of San Jose, who boasts a record of 16 straight main event victories on his home track, finished second and Jerry McLees of Seattle placed third.

Don McLeod of Seattle prompted the unusual finish in which all of the top three drivers spun across the finish line, by flipping while coming down the home stretch. No one was injured.

Elsewhere in motor sport: David Pearson cruised to an easy victory Sunday in the American 500, completing one of the most remarkable individual season performances in stock car racing history. The 38-year-old veteran from Spartanburg, S.C., completed the season with 11 major triumphs in 18 starts and more than $200,000 in prize money . . . Rollie Beal of Toledo drove borrowed cars to six and seventh-place finishes in two 50-lap heats in Rossburg, Ohio, Sunday to become the new United States sprint car champion. The event was marred by the death of Carl Bergkvist whose car slammed into a guard rail during warm-ups.

Riders Clip Stamps, Lions Still Alive

Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan Roughriders gets a kick out of his job and his team-mates are glad he enjoys it.

The veteran import used his talented toe Sunday to produce 16 points as Saskatchewan battered Calgary Stampeders 34-7 in Regina to create another traffic jam in the struggle for playoff positions in the Western Football Conference.

Abendschan kicked four field goals, three converts and a single as Roughriders moved into a tie for first place with Edmonton Eskimos less than 24 hours after the Eskimos escaped with a 14-14 deadlock with British Columbia Lions.

The weekend's results left every club within reach of a playoff berth. The first-place battle between Edmonton and Saskatchewan is certain to be settled in Edmonton Nov. 4, the final day of the season.

The points gained by the Lions for their deadlock before 20,688 fans in Edmonton averted their elimination. The Lions must win their two remaining games to capture third place and the final playoff spot now held in Calgary.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers lost an opportunity to take over third spot when they were trounced 34-7 in a Canadian Football League interlocking contest Saturday in Montreal.

Calgary's only scoring was a 24-yard touchdown pass from Peter Liske to Mark Herman in the fourth quarter before 20,379 at Regina. Larry Robinson, converted.

George Reed, who piled up 161 yards rushing on 24 carries, earned one touchdown in a sixyard blast. Al Ford ran one yard for a major and Rick Eber added the other on a 26-yard heave from quarterback Ron Lancaster. Abendschan kicked his field goals from distances of 19, 18, 14 and 42 yards.

Edmonton was fortunate to tie B.C. Garry Lefebvre caught a 43-yard scoring pass from Bruce Lemmerman with 23 seconds remaining in the game.

Lefebvre stepped into the open far behind the nearest defender and had time to return and wait for the ball for nestle in his arms. Then he turned on the speed and scored easily.

Lemmerman, relieved briefly by Tom Wilkinson after Edmonton's attack bogged down, threw a seven-yard pass to George McGowan for Edmonton's first touchdown. Dave Cutler converted both.

Ivan MacMillan, who took over Gerela's job midway through the season, missed two field-goal attempts that could have given the Lions a victory, but he converted touchdowns by Johnny Musso and Jim Young.

OAK BAY NIPPED IN B.C. PLAYOFF

BURNABY — Surrey Rams slipped past Oak Bay Farmer Construction 17-14 to grab the B.C. juvenile football championship Sunday in Swangard Stadium.

In a mainly defensive struggle, Surrey took a 9-0 lead at half time on a field goal by Gary Metz and a touchdown by fullback Greg Lockwood.

Early in the third quarter, Farmers gained ground when Rams attempted a field goal from the Oak Bay eight-yard line. The Surrey centre made a bad snap which sailed over the place-kicker's head. Farmer cornerback Tom Sullivan scooped it up and ran for a touchdown. Quarterback Rick Jones kicked the conversion to pull Oak Bay within two points.

Tim O'Leary's single and converted touchdown by Randy Lucas gave the Rams a 17-7 lead before Oak Bay struck again with less than two minutes remaining.

Jones fired a touchdown pass to Spence Parker in the end zone and then booted the conversion to complete the scoring.

Rams, who displayed a powerful defence to shackle the Oak Bay attack that had averaged 43 points per game in Island League play, now advance to the inaugural Western Canada playoff next Sunday at Winnipeg.

Vikings, Los Angeles Continue Undefeated

By The Associated Press

Los Angeles Rams have a new scoring threat as they prepare for next Sunday's battle against Minnesota Vikings. The threat is defensive end Fred Dryer.

That's right. Defensive end Fred Dryer.

Dryer became the first man in the history of the National Football League to record two safeties—worth four points—when he dropped Green Bay quarterbacks Scott Hunter and Jim Del Gaizo in the end zone Sunday as the Rams beat the Packers 24-7 for their sixth straight win.

The victory for the Rams set the stage for the battle of unbeaten teams at Minnesota, National Conference Central leader, which ran its record to 6-0 by beating Philadelphia Eagles 28-21.

In other games, Miami Dolphins stopped Buffalo Bills 27-6; Washington Redskins topped St. Louis Cardinals 31-13; Dallas Cowboys outlasted New York Giants 45-28; Pittsburgh Steelers downed New York Jets 26-14; Cleveland Browns drubbed Houston Oilers 42-13; Cincinnati Bengals edged Kansas City Chiefs 14-6; New England Patriots nipped Chicago Bears 13-10; Baltimore Colts shaded Detroit Lions 29-27; Atlanta Falcons trounced San Diego Chargers 41-0 and San Francisco 49ers blanked New Orleans Saints 40-0.

Oakland Raiders meet Denver Broncos in a game tonight.

DRYER GETS BOTH

Coach Chuck Knox considered the Rams' performance a balanced team effort, but Green Bay blockers must have thought Dryer was a one-man gang. With the Rams leading 20-7, Dryer dropped Hunter for two points and then sacked Del Gaizo five minutes later.

John Hadl passed 46 yards for a Los Angeles touchdown and Larry Smith plunged a yard for another.

"Today we played one of the best teams in the NFL, if not the best," said Philadelphia quarterback Roman Gabriel after Minnesota beat the Eagles as John Gilliam scored two touchdowns, one a 44-yard run on a reverse and another on a pass reception.

Miami held Buffalo's O. J. Simpson—who went into the game with 813 yards—to just 55 yards rushing. Simpson left when he sprained his right ankle on his 14th carry. Bob Griese passed to Jim Mandich for two Miami touchdowns as the Dolphins broke a first-place tie with the Bills in the American Conference East.

Field Hockey Tourney Won By Lansdowne

Lansdowne defeated Arbutus on a penalty corner to win the city junior high school girls' field hockey tournament Saturday at Lansdowne.

The teams battled to a scoreless tie. The win left Lansdowne with a 4-0 won-lost record in the tournament.

In semi-final play, Lansdowne defeafeated Arbutus 2-0 but Arbutus qualified for the final by breaking a scoreless tie against Colquitz on a penalty corner.

Scorpions Split With Renton

Renton Roadrunners utilized a tight zone defence to defeat Victoria Scorpions 98-91 Sunday at Central Junior High School and gain a split in their two-game senior "A" men's basketball series.

Scorpions topped Roadrunners 85-80 Saturday at the University of Victoria.

Dave Morgan, one of the two top outside shooters for Victoria, retired from the game with three minutes gone because of a bruised heel.

Brian McKenzie, the only other Scorpion able to penetrate a zone defence with long shots, topped Victoria marksmen with 32 points and collected nine rebounds.

Bob Burrows, who added 26 points to Victoria's total, hauled down 13 rebounds while Mike Bishop, who fired four points, had 10 rebounds.

Don Burrows, the only other Scorpion player to hit double figures with 13 points, picked up eight assists.

Renton's six-foot-11 centre, Tom Black, who played for Seattle SuperSonics three seasons ago, led with 21 points as six Roadrunners hit for double figures.

On Saturday, Scorpions outhustled the visiting club as Bob Burrows set the scoring pace with 18 points. Bishop led the team with 12 rebounds and helped Ollie Moilanen hold Black to 23 points.

RENTON (98) — Joe LaDuca 12, Jim Belmondo 12, Tom Black 21, Bruce Sanderson 13, Mike Jordan 19, Kim Estrada 10, Keith Newton 4, George Carter 3, Glen Smick 4, Dave Nissen.

VICTORIA (97) — Bob Burrows 26, Don Burrows 13, Brian McKenzie 32, Ollie Moilamen 3, Dave Morgan, Chris Hall, Mike Bishop 4, Dave McDonald 3, Walt Burrows 6, Sig Kuehn 4.

'Peg Protests Montreal Win

By The Canadian Press

Weekend games in the Eastern Football Conference did nothing to settle final playoff positions, but one of them presented a knotty problem for Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner, to unravel.

Montreal Alouettes defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers 34-7 in Montreal Saturday and Ottawa Rough Riders edged Toronto Argonauts 20-19 Sunday in Ottawa.

That left Ottawa on top of the standings one point ahead of Montreal, two ahead of Toronto and only four up on idle Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Gaudaur's problem arose late in the second quarter in Montreal as the result of a field brawl that ended with Terry Evanshen and Johnny Rodgers of Montreal and Dale Potter and Bob McLaren of Winnipeg being ejected from the game.

At that point Winnipeg held a 7-3 lead on a fumble-recovery touchdown by Paul Williams and a convert by Don Jonas compared with a Montreal field goal by Don Sweet.

On the play after the brawl, Montreal coach Merv Levy sent Jimmy Jones, an import and alternate quarterback, in as a wide receiver to replace Rodgers, also an import.

As designated import, Jones can only be exchanged freely with the starting quarterback. If he replaces any other import, that import is finished for the day.

Winnipeg coach Jim Spavital vehemently maintained that Jones could not replace Rodgers who had been ejected. He immediately protested the game to officials and general manager Earl Lunsford followed this up with an immediate letter protesting the subsequent outcome of the game to Gaudaur.

Fullback Steve Ferrugnelli eventually was pulled from the Montreal lineup and Jones was in for only the one play, but Winnipeg maintains all this has nothing to do with the rules violation on which the protest is based.

After the ejections, which cost Montreal two wide receivers and Winnipeg two linebackers, the Alouettes went wild, scoring 31 unanswered points.

John Harvey, Peter Dalla Riva and Brian Jack scored offensive touchdowns for Montreal and Jim Nettles intercepted a Jonas pass for another.

Leafs Blast Buckaroos

Victoria Maple Leafs will be out to even their record at three wins and three losses tonight when they tackle Richmond Sockeyes in a Pacific International Junior Hockey League game at Richmond.

Leafs picked up their second home-ice victory by blanking Portland Buckaroos 9-0 before 514 fans Saturday night at Memorial Arena.

Goalie Vic Mallt needed only 12 saves, including two in the second period and three in the third, to record the first Victoria shutout.

By contrast, Leafs utilized good positional play to keep up a steady attack and peppered Portland goalie Rick Coulson with 46 shots, 21 in the final period.

Steve Leatham, Larry Hanson and Gord Dumont proved to be the most potent Victoria line by collecting 10 points. Leatham had three goals and two assists, Hanson had a goal and two assists while Dumont had two assists.

Norm Allen (2), Doug Clark, Kevin Woodburn and newcomer Bob Boyd rounded out the Victoria scoring list.

Leafs, who also exhibited a hard-hitting defence as they picked up nine of the 16 minor penalties called by referee Don Bold, grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first period and stretched the margin to 4-0 going into the final 20 minutes.

Buckaroos chalked up their first win of the season Sunday at Seattle, downing the Totems 7-4.

On Saturday, Coquitlam Comets dropped a 9-6 decision to the Stampeders at Surrey.

Happiness Is Winning? Not Among NHL Coaches

By UP International

Perhaps it's become part of the new image of coaching, but winning no longer is a sure guarantee of happiness for today's professional coaches.

On Sunday night, for example, Montreal Canadiens, Buffalo Sabres and Detroit Red Wings were among the winning teams in the National Hockey League, but it was hard to recognize this from viewing the respective coaches after their games.

Scotty Bowman of Montreal was unhappy with the referee after his Canadiens beat New York Rangers, 3-2; Joe Crozier of Buffalo was unhappy with his team following a 4-3 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs, and Ted Garvin of Detroit took it out on the press after the Red Wings walloped California Golden Seals, 11-2.

In the other NHL games Sunday Boston Bruins coasted to an 8-2 decision over Pittsburgh Penguins and New York Islanders and Chicago Black Hawks skated to a 3-3 tie.

The one-goal loss for the Rangers was their second in as many nights to a Canadian-based club. Saturday night, Toronto nipped New York 3-2 in Maple Leaf Gardens while in other games Atlanta Flames upset Montreal 4-2 at the Forum, Buffalo edged the Islanders 2-1, St. Louis Blues and Minnesota North Stars played to a 4-4 tie, Pittsburgh upended California 5-3 and Los Angeles Kings blanked Philadelphia Flyers 3-0 in a game which saw referee Lloyd Gilmour assess 132 minutes in penalties.

Yvan Cournoyer scored two goals Sunday and Serge Savard got the winner on a power play as Montreal snapped a two-game losing streak, but Bowman still was incensed about a five-minute major called by referee Art Skov on Jim Roberts midway through the final period. Roberts also received a game misconduct when he went into a rage over the high-sticking call.

"Because we're the champions, we have to be 25 per cent better," said Bowman, who had a shouting match with Skov in the passageway to the dressing room after the game. "We don't get that kind of refereeing in Montreal. When you're the favorites, everyone's out to get you."

Buffalo rebounded from a 3-1 deficit in the final period on goals by Rick Martin, Norm Gratton and Gil Perreault to overcome Toronto, and although it was the club's third straight success, Crozier was unhappy.

"We turned it on for the first seven minutes and we came on in the third period," he said. "In between, it was just one of those things, nothing was happening. We played the third period like the Sabres of old, but we used to have three periods like that. There's only one way we can play — we have to go all the time. We can't be holding back."

Garvin, a freshman coach, celebrated his first NHL victory by barring the press from the Detroit dressing room. This despite the fact that the 11 goals by the Wings, including three by Guy Charron, was the most they had scored since Feb. 7, 1951.

"It was my final decision," Garvin said. "The players asked for it."

However, when asked about the ban, one of the Detroit players said: "We did? No way. Is that what they told you?" And another said, "We didn't ask for it. I didn't know anything about it."

Bobby Orr scored two goals and assisted on another in Boston's victory over Pittsburgh and Ralph Stewart scored an unassisted goal in the final period to give the Islanders their tie at Chicago.

Blazers Snuffed

Times News Services

Two goals by Gary Veneruzzo and the steady goaltending of Russ Gillow sparked Los Angeles Sharks to their first victory of the World Hockey Association season Sunday, a 4-1 decision over the listless Vancouver Blazers before 8,310 fans at Vancouver's Pacific Coliseum.

Veneruzzo scored both his goals in the second period as the Sharks broke a three-game losing streak.

Gillow stopped 32 shots and was at his best early in the third period when he made spectacular saves on Claud St. Sauveur and Bryan Campbell during a Vancouver power play.

Brian McDonald and Tom Serviss scored the other Los Angeles goals while Danny Lawson goth the only Vancouver goal late in the third period, lifting a rebound over Gillow.

The defeat was Vancouver's first in three games. The Blazers had defeated Chicago Cougars 4-3 18 hours earlier at the Pacific Coliseum.

In other Sunday games, New York Golden Blades beat Quebec Nordiques 4-3, Edmonton Oilers tripped Chicago Cougars 4-1, Winnipeg Jets edged Minnesota Fighting Saints 2-1 in overtime, Cleveland Crusaders shut out Houston Aeros 2-0 and New England Whalers defeated Toronto Toros 4-3.

In other games Saturday, Quebec dumped New York 8-1 and Cleveland downed Toronto 6-4.

Three-Way Tie In Junior 'B'

Saanich Braves, with a little help from Esquimalt A and W, Sunday moved into a three-way tie with Esquimalt and Juan de Fuca Metro Toyota Gulls atop the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Braves tripped Victoria Nixon's Trucking 8-3 at Pearkes Arena while Esquimalt held Gulls to a 4-4 deadlock at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Darryl Borden, Ray Krueger and Biff Car-Hilton each fired two goals for Saanich while singles were added by Kim Bowles and Robbie Coldwell. Tony Valdiva, Larry Donaldson and Mike Paget replied for Victoria.

Cleeve Dheenshaw and John McArthur combined for 29 saves in the Victoria net while Dale Boniface made the same number of stops for Saanich.

Ross McKinstry, who scored the tying goal with just over three minutes left to play, Danny Seible, Bill Parsons and Gordie Brooks counted for Esquimalt while Kevin Alexander (2), Brian McLauchlan and Norm Baker answered for Gulls.

Brock Davies blocked 24 shots for Esquimalt and Mike Coburn parried 26 attempts for Juan de Fuca.

Cougars Lose Two As Deal Unsettled

Times News Services

Victoria Cougars, 3-1 losers to Swift Current Broncos in a Western Canada Junior Hockey League game Sunday night in Swift Curren, have a day off today. But general manager Eric Bishop doesn't.

Bishop was spending the day trying to straighten out a deal with Flin Flon Bombers that went awry Saturday when defenceman Duane Bray, obtained only last Thursday, decided to quit hockey.

Cougars gave up rearguard Kim Clackson for Bray and today Bishop was in touch with Flin Flon manager Pat Ginnell in hopes of obtaining 17-year-old defenceman Tim Williams from the Bombers. Williams played last season with Dauphin of the Manitoba Junior League.

Williams was due to talk with his family today about the possible move to Victoria. If Bombers can't provide a replacement for Bray, Bishop wants Clackson back.

Inability to cash in on at least a half-dozen good scoring chances hurt Cougars Sunday in Swift Current as the team came up with a good skating performance. When Victoria did get in, Bronco goaltender Lorne Moleken turned in some excellent stops. He was tested 18 times.

Cougars opened the scoring when Mel Bridgeman beat Moleken early in the second period.

But Terry Ruskowski tied it less than two minutes later with his first of two goals and the Broncos took the lead before the period was half over on a goal by Willie Friesen from a wild scramble in front of Cougar goaltender Glen Anweiler.

Ruskowski's second goal with nine seconds to go in the third clinched the outcome.

Anweiler played the entire game and faced 28 Swift Current shots.

Cougars played without defenceman Lorry Gloeckner, who suffered an ankle injury in the team's 8-4 loss to Medicine Hat Tigers Saturday in Medicine Hat. Gloeckner was due for X-rays today on the badly swollen ankle.

Cougars are at Saskatoon Tuesday night against the Blades and move on to Regina Wednesday for a game with the Pats to close out their five-game road swing.

Late Tally Drops Boxers After Johnson Jolts Gorge

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

Coach Bill Hartle apparently knew what he was doing when he decided to break away.

When Hartle quit the strong Burnaby Norburn athletic organization this year to move to North Vancouver and form the new Pegasus soccer club, he took half of his old team with him.

He also took Glen Johnson, and that was the master stroke!

For Johnson, the Vancouver-born striker who played out a three-year contract with West Bromwich Albion in the English League, has scored nine goals in six games and Pegasus sits alone atop the B.C. Soccer League standings.

His latest effort was to mastermind a 4-3 win over Gorge Molsons Saturday in the first episode of a weekend doubleheader bill of disaster for Victoria clubs.

Chris Bennett, another striker with English League experience, scored just seconds before the final whistle in North Vancouver Sunday to give North Shore Pauls a 3-2 win over London Boxing Club.

It's a little unfair to suggest Pegasus is a one-man team — Mike Robb played well in goal and wingers Mike McLenaghen and Eric Weberschlager showed class, but the whole unit certainly revolves around Glen Johnson.

Johnson limped onto the field at Royal Athletic Park with a heavily-bandaged left leg and then, moving better than most of those with two good legs, he thrilled the crowd of about 300 by hammering in three beautiful goals, two from just outside the penalty box.

Dan Murray, on a fine pass from McLenaghen, got the other Pegasus goal and Steve Forslund, Ken Paton and Bobby Duncan scored for Gorge.

Molsons were shorthanded — Waining Lee and John McGuire were helping B.C. win the Canadian juvenile championship — but that didn't detract from Johnson's performance.

The hat-trick put Johnson into a tie with Simon Fraser University winger Ken Whitehead for the league's individual scoring lead.

Tom Forrester scored for the Boxers and Ken Legge netted for Pauls to leave the score tied 1-1 at half time Sunday. Victoria took a 2-1 lead on Garnet Moen's goal five minutes into the second half but couldn't quite hang on for victory.

Bill Rawson scored in a goal-mouth scramble three minutes from the end and then Bennett got the winner when he made a fine solo run and beat goalkeeper Kjeld Brodsgaard with a curving shot.

Goalkeeper Peter Greco recorded his fourth shutout in five games as Vancouver Italia blanked University of British Columbia 2-0 to move into a second-place tie with Gorge. Victor Kodelja and Bruce Wilson got the goals.

And in Sunday's other games, Westminster Blues, with five goals from John Connors and four from Gary Thompson, hammered luckless Hungarians 10-2 and Vancouver Sporting Club, with three goals by Reg Newmark, came back to edge Greek Olympics 4-3.

John Sneddon scored the other Westminster goal while Alex Nyerges scored both goals for the Hungarians.

WHITEHEAD PACES B.C. TO WIN OVER ONTARIO

VANCOUVER — Outside-right Ken Whitehead scored four goals Saturday before about 500 fans as British Columbia downed Ontario 6-1 in a driving rain to win the Canadian juvenile (under-18) soccer championship.

Ontario went ahead at 12 minutes on a goal by Frank Laurie, but Keith Davidson knotted the count on a penalty shot eight minutes later and Whitehead sent B.C. ahead at 22 minutes.

Dale Larson's tally at 37 minutes made it 3-1 and Whitehead wrapped up the victory in the second half, scoring three times during a 10-minute span.

James Bay Forwards Overpower Castaways

James Bay Athletic Association used forward power to defeat Castaways 20-9 Sunday and remain the only unbeaten team in the Victoria Rugby Union's first division.

Both teams put on an entertaining show for about 300 fans who lined both sidelines at Carnarvon Park but Castaways, although they tried to run the ball, could not crack the solid James Bay defence and had to rely on the kicking of fullback Cliff Yorath.

The mobile James Bay pack, with Al Foster and Casey Walt both having great games, dominated the Castaways forwards throughout, despite a fine effort by Blaise McDonald, and led 10-3 at half time.

James Bay, league and playoff champion last season, has a game in hand over Oak Bay Wanderers, who share the first-division lead but dropped a 3-0 decision Saturday to University of Victoria Vikings for their first loss of the campaign.

CFB Esquimalt moved into a first-place tie with James Bay in the second division Saturday by edging UVic Norsemen 9-6.

Saanich Agrarians downed Castaways 14-3 Saturday and in a second-division game Sunday, Nanaimo blanked Oak Bay 7-0.

In third-division play Sunday, James Bay shut out UVic Saxons 10-6, Titans beat Oak Bay 28-4 and Saanich Velox downed Camosun College 26-0.

Cowichan, trailing team in the first division with three straight losses, shocked the first team of Vancouver Kats 14-12 Sunday in an exhibition match at Cowichan.

In a clash between second sides, Kats crushed their Cowichan hosts 44-6.

McCORMICK CLINCHES CUP WIN FOR CANADA

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP) — Canada clinched its North American Davis Cup tennis tie against the Commonwealth Caribbean Saturday when Don McCormick scored a 6-3, 6-3, 6-4 victory over Leo Rolle of the Bahamas.

The triumph by McCormick, a former Victoria resident who now plays out of Vancouver, gave the Canadians a 3-1 lead in the best-of-five series, sending them against Mexico in the next round in November.

Richard Russell of Jamaica won the final singles match, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4, over Tony Bardsley of Vancouver, leaving Canada with a 3-2 over-all victory.

I.Q. of 145 And a Poor Memory?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name, address, and zip code to: Memory Studies, 555 E. Lange St., Dept. 630-49, Mundelein, Ill. 60060. A postcard will do.

Claremont Runners Collect Team Title

VANCOUVER — Victoria runners stole a lot of the glory Saturday in the Pacific Northwest cross-country championships at the University of British Columbia.

John Wheeler of Victoria, who is now attending UBC, won individual honors in the 10,000-metre open men's race and helped his team into second place behind the Vancouver Olympic Club.

Charlie Thorne of Victoria, who runs for VOC, was third across the line.

University of Victoria was sixth in the men's team standings.

Mt. Douglas of Victoria took the team title in the 6,000-metre race for high school boys when Tom Griffin was second, Tony Elwell fifth, Mike Long 13th, Colin Harris 16th and Neil Salmond 27th. John Martens of Burnaby South edged Griffin to win the race.

Claremont of Victoria was second in the 3,000-metre high school girls' team event with 68 points under the reverse-scoring method. Shirley Russell of Claremont was 17th, Nancy Brandstetter 25th and Michelle Brownsey was 26th. Leslie Stubbs of Winston Churchill school of Vancouver was the individual winner and Fraser Valley Christian school of Coquitlam won the team title with 38 points.

Thelma Wright won the 4,000-metre women's race and led UBC to victory in the women's team event. UVic was fourth.

Want to Retire at 60? Now It's for Everyone

One of the most amazing examples of a delayed public reaction that I can recall is the strangely slow realization that in this province it is now quite possible and proper for a man and wife to drop out of the rat race at the age of 60.

Of all the well-publicized benefits of the provincial government's Mincome program the one that's received the least attention by the public and by the press is the fact that early retirement, the dream of every toiler in an unloved job, is now a reality, that there's no need whatever to hang around until the age of 65.

Any husband and wife who have reached the age of 60 may call it a day and live on $5,000 a year without sacrificing any of their possessions or the cash they've accumulated in their married life.

Earlier this month, chatting with Premier Dave Barrett, I listened with some skepticism to his advice that people who are getting on in years should try and get over their security hang-ups. "You've a little nest egg for the future? the premier was saying. Blow it. Take the old girl by the hand and fly off to the Hawaiian sun. Get over that out-dated thinking that the financial future is uncertain, even if you've spent a lifetime nurturing it. Live it up. Your future is secure under Mincome.

My skepticism—the skepticism of a man who has spent a lot of time and worry making dam'd sure that the roof wouldn't fall in when he's put out to pasture on his 65th birthday—evaporated completely when I spent an hour last week up on the fifth floor of the Belmont Building in the busy offices of Mincome.

The top men there are equally surprised that, so far, there's been no general awareness that the program, apart from its benefits to the over-65s, opens up an entirely new future for men and women who have reached the age of 60, that they may have a well-earned life of leisure and a cheque each and every month for $418.04 without in any way sacrificing the things—or the cash—they've acquired.

An infinite variety of possibilities has opened up for every couple who would like out while they're still young enough to adapt to and enjoy the pleasures of early retirement—by no means everyone, of course, but certainly those men in jobs that mean only drudgery.

A man with a company pension, for example, could cash it in at 60, pay off absolutely every debt, put what remains in the bank and go fishing, sure in the knowledge (if his wife, too, has reached 60) that he has close to $100 a week to make ends meet.

A man with any kind of modest investment in bonds or stocks or equity in a house that's become too large with the sons and daughters gone, could wrap everything up, buy a rose-covered cottage in the country, have a nest egg in the bank for any emergencies, and let the rest of the world go by.

It does not matter one little bit how much cash or how many possessions a couple may have. You could have two cars, a swimming pool and a nine-room house. You could have $10,000 or $100,000 in the bank. The Mincome people couldn't care less.

True, every asset must be declared, but this isn't a means test, in the usual sense of the phrase, but only for Mincome's internal purpose of billing the federal government when an applicant qualifies as "needy." Otherwise, the provincial treasury takes the rap on its own.

All that Mincome cares about is your actual income. This simply means that, to qualify for the full $209.02 monthly per person you'll put that cash in a bank chequing account (or a sock) rather than in a savings, interest-paying account. You'll make no wages, earn no dividends or receive any other kind of income, or, if you do, that will be subtracted from the Mincome cheque.

On the other hand, if you want to hang on to that company plan for the pension it will start paying at 65 Mincome says to go ahead. If you receive a gift or an inheritance or win the Irish that's okay with Mincome, too, and, though policy is still in the making with the program less than a month under way, it appears that the odd "windfall" job (post office work at Christmas is a cited example) will also be allowable without cutting into that monthly cheque.

The head people up there in the Belmont offices are guessing that a lot of older people are simply unaware that they're entitled to the benefit and, of course, there are some who consider it a matter of pride not to accept "government charity," but they expect that more and more people in their sixties will be weighing it as an option and that anywhere from 18,000 to 21,000 people will be taking right away what, in Davey Barrett's view, they've every right to take.

Sewer Bilking Bared

Fast-buck artists are soliciting sewerage and drainage jobs in Saanich.

This was the warning issued today by municipal authorities who claim the "artists" are doing the jobs under false pretences.

The fly-by-night contractors are also charging exorbitant rates for inferior work, says the municipality.

PREY ON ELDERLY

Licence inspector Roy Wootten reports the contractors mainly "prey on elderly people," sounding plausible and being careful to leave no evidence that could be used against them.

"They follow behind our crews laying trunk sewers," Wootten explains. "They tell the unsuspecting homeowner, 'We're from Saanich' and offer to hook up his or her home's sewage system to the main trunk."

He says the contractors' favorite "beats" lie in the sewer enterprise area.

"Too many people are calling us after the damage is done," he says. Explaining there are many competent, legal contractors who can do the work inexpensively and speedily, Wootten says the fly-by-nighters hold no municipal licence.

CHECK WITH US

He asks that homeowners faced with men soliciting work at their door check with the municipal hall before allowing them to go ahead with drainage and sewerage work.

Better Business Bureau director Bill Tindall, a city alderman, cites cases brought to his attention during the past few days:

—An elderly woman in the Hillside area was charged $1,000 for cleaning her septic tank and replacing drain tiles. Her house has been on a sewer hookup since 1925.

—An elderly woman in the Crease Avenue area was charged $1,000 for putting in some drainage tiles to prevent flooding of her basement. She paid. When a neighbor complained to the authorities, however, the "contractor" reduced the price to $450.

Both Victoria and Saanich police are investigating activities of such operators with a view to laying fraud charges in some cases.

OH! WHAT A PROFIT THERE'LL BE!

Police seizure of the film Oh! Calcutta! last week has sparked the curiosity of Victoria movie-goers of all ages and line-ups at the Fox Cinema this weekend stretched block-lengths.

Fox manager Barney Simmons attributes the film's recent lucrative success to a brief screening interruption after two citizens complained to police a week-ago Friday the movie was pornographic and obscene.

Obscenity charges laid the following day were dropped on instructions of the B.C. attorney-general's department.

"Certainly," said Simmons "publicity like this you can't buy".

He reported all showings since the movie returned to the screen Thursday have had capacity audiences.

"At first we felt the movie had limited appeal and scheduled one showing a night at 8:30," said Simmons. "But when this thing broke wide open, we had a fast talk on it Friday and decided to have two showings (at 7 and 9 p.m.)

Simmons reports "incredible lineups. Most people are coming out of curiosity. Some feel it was a raw deal not being able to see a film at their decision."

He said the line-ups consist predominately of the 18 to 30 year bracket, "but there's an incredible number of elderly people lining up too."

He describes the film as taking "an irreverent look at sex and an irreverent look at the people with sexual hangups."

It's For Fish

A $200,000 stream diversion project which should be completed by the Greater Victoria Water District later this month has little or nothing to do with our supply of drinking water — but a whole lot to do with conservation.

The 1.5 billion gallons of extra water produced by the Council Creek diversion will ensure once and for all that an adequate supply of water can be let down Goldstream form the reservoirs each year for the benefit of spawning salmon, water board members were told on a weekend tour of the district.

Council Creek, which now runs into the Sooke River, is being diverted to Sooke Lake, the main storage area for Greater Victoria's water supply.

The flow released annually for the salmon to make their way upstream to spawn — equivalent to 60 per cent of the total capacity of the Goldstream watershed — will be replaced by the diversion.

ALL TIME LOW

However, water commissioner Ron Upward said Council Creek itself, like all other streams in the area, is at an all-time low level this year due to the extremely dry weather of the past eight months.

If and when the fall rains really set in, the creek will provide up to 50 million gallons a day, he said.

Upward said he doesn't expect the main flow to be released into Goldstream this year until at least the last week of October, as past experience indicates that's when the salmon run starts, reaching its peak in the second or third week of November.

But already, he admitted, with only a handful of salmon in the river, concerned citizens are contacting the water district offices and demanding action.

2,000 Likely At Reading Conference

The Vancouver Island branch of the International Reading Association is holding a conference in the Empress Hotel Thursday to Saturday and is expecting more than 2,000 teachers from Western Canada and the United States.

Dr. Lloyd Qlila, chairman of the conference and past-president of the Vancouver Island association, said the conference is the first to be held in Canada.

Its main purpose is to study and discover ways of improving methods of teaching children how to read.

The conference will feature more than 60 speakers during the three days, including B.C. education commissioner John Bremer who will speak at a Friday luncheon.

Sections in the conference include what a teacher should know about reading, individualized reading programs, communications in the classroom, reading in primary grades, secondary reading, language arts and reading, comprehension, reading materials and content areas, Indian children and reading, behavior modification, remedial reading, administrators and supervisors and a general section which deals with how parents can prepare their preschool children for reading, teaching poetry and using creative dramatics in the reading program.

Two Thefts Net $3,000

Police are investigating two weekend robberies in which thieves made off with a total of $3,000 from two local businesses.

About $2,285 was stolen from the manager's office at Miller Sound Centre, 726 Yates, early Saturday.

In another incident a middle-aged man, holding what appeared to be a gun, robbed the shift manager of the A and W drive-in, 1921 Oak Bay.

Mrs. Brenda Otten, 10049 Judson Place, Sidney, told police she was taking $600 from the drive-in to deposit it at the Toronto Dominion Bank at Fort and Richmond when the robbery occurred.

'Moonlighting' Forces Men Hit

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

A Victoria labor spokesman today condemned the federal government's refusal to stop moonlighting by armed forces personnel at a time when unemployment is a major problem.

John Schibli, first vice-president of the Victoria Labor Council, says the government is "asking the taxpayer to subsidize moonlighting" by the billions of dollars poured into the defence budget.

An army veteran, employed as a watchman by a local company, was released "because of lack of work" during the past few days. A check with the company supports his claim that two army corporals have been working for the company for the past two years on a part-time basis.

The veteran, who says he has to work to supplement a $151 disability pension, says his own son is a corporal, serving overseas, and earns "close to $900 a month."

"With winter coming on and unemployment so high, Ottawa should do something about moonlighting in the armed forces," he claims. "What about the poor devils who would willingly work for two bucks an hour just to get off welfare?"

Schibli agrees.

"Back in the old days the forces were sadly underpaid," he admits. "But with the pay they get now it's an entirely different ball game. They should respect other people's rights to earn a living."

He states that at one time so many personnel attached to CFB Comox were moonlighting "they just about wiped out the work force (in Comox)."

An armed forces spokesman said today moonlighting by military personnel is perfectly legal, providing the outside job is "some employment with good taste" that didn't affect their ability to carry out military commitments.

He said he, himself, had moonlighted in the past, playing as a member of civilian dance bands.

"At one time half of the Edmonton symphony orchestra were service personnel," he said.

Schibli reports the labor council has pressured Ottawa for action but met nothing but rebuffs.

"They refuse to set a policy on moonlighting," he says. "They say they respect the guys' right to do whatever they wish."

This type of stand was taken by former Liberal member of Parliament David Groos three years ago when Rear-Admiral Richard Leir spoke out publicly in favor of moonlighting by the armed forces.

Schibli reports the council received the same response by provincial Liberal leader David Anderson, then MP for Esquimalt-Saanich.

"Anderson told us to clean our own house first," Schibli said. "He didn't give us any support whatsoever."

Schibli said that many unions have signed contracts that include stiff anti-moonlighting penalties, including fines of up to $300.

He said that similar policing should be carried out among the taxborne ranks of the armed forces.

Milk Down Four Cents

Milk dropped four cents a quart in Victoria today to 42 cents — three cents less than it cost last month.

The cut is made possible by a four-cent-per-quart federal government subsidy to producers to last 12 months.

Milk went up one cent a quart at the first of this month through an increase allowed by the B.C. Milk Board.

The subsidy, passed in to retailers, may take a few days to show in retail outlets.

Oil Spill Threat At Sooke Over

A 200-gallon oil spill which posed a threat to marine life in Sooke Harbor has been cleaned up, a Sooke Capital Regional Board member said today.

Howard Elder said a number of 45-gallon oil drums were emptied on a parking lot owned by Camex Developments at Sooke and Maple roads Thursday.

A work crew from Wigmar Construction (B.C.) Ltd., accused of causing the spill, cleaned the oil but Friday night's rain raised it to the surface again, he said.

The oil then flowed in a pond about 100 yards from Sooke Harbor, said Elder.

The highways department spread sand over the highway Thursday evening, he said, and federal fisheries department workmen moved in Sunday and completed clean-up operations.

Fisheries department spokesman Lloyd Goodwill, who described the spill as "minor," said he would not comment on the possibility of charges being laid "until we find out who's responsible."

Chris Hatfield, environmental emergency co-ordinator for the province, said, "We're collecting evidence and the decision will be made within the next day or two."

Hatfield said his department will attempt to recover the costs of the clean-up.

Wigmar Construction property manager Jack Gillis said he is not sure who caused the spill but Wigmar employees began cleaning the oil Thursday.

"We took it very seriously," he said. "We went right after it as soon as we were aware of it being a problem. I thought we were doing everything possible assuming that we were responsible."

Local fisheries officer Jack Brook said there are young herring, oysters and other fish which would have been endangered if the oil had not been retained.

Two More Hopefuls In Nov. 17 Election

A candidate each for Saanich school board and Saanich council have been added for the Nov. 17 municipal elections.

More effective management of school board finances has been promised by Ted Clayards, seeking a trusteeship, while Major Charles E. Goodman — an armed forces officer who retires next year — says his bid for an aldermanic post is rooted in his concern over lack of town planning.

Clayards, 49, was a Central Saanich alderman for four years until he was defeated in last year's election.

He is civilian personnel administrator and training officer for department of national defence civilian employees. Prior to that he was in the navy 27 years.

Clayards says his policies are:

—an expanded counselling and guidance program.

— more emphasis on teachers teaching their professional subjects.

— implementing full management procedures in the school district.

— having the school board concentrate on setting policy, leaving administrators and volunteer groups to carry the policies out.

Goodman, 47, of 1519 Winchester, says he is "very impressed with the quality of life in Saanich."

Married with three children, he asserts: "We should take a real hard look at the conversion of apartments to condominiums unless there's a real demonstrated need."

Goodman would also like to see a system of bicycle paths instituted in Saanich and an expansion of the Borden Street recycling depot.

He is running for a two-year aldermanic term and also for a place on the Capital Regional Board.

Also running for two-year terms and a place on the board are incumbents Ald. Fred Severson and Ald. William Noel.

Severson says the regional board should move quickly to establish an industrial park to encourage the development of light industry in Victoria. He suggests the Colwood-Langford area as a possible site.

Such a park, he says, would make Greater Victoria less dependent on tourism.

"Tourism is great for the city of Victoria," he says, "I'm just a little worried about Saanich and the surrounding areas."

Noel, the second most popular of 10 candidates in the 1971 election, states simply:

"I still want to be the people's representative on the council and my aim is to do the best for the taxpayer that I possibly can."

He says he is running for a position on the board "in view of our municipal affairs merging in the regional area."

Other aldermanic candidates announced earlier include housewife Mary Casilio of 1150 Union and lawyer Eugene M. Johnson of 2229 Arbutus.

Incumbent aldermen Frank Waring and Edith Gunning are running with greenhouse operator Ed Lum in a three-way race for the mayoralty seat.

Land Reserve Meetings Set

Two public information meetings on the Agricultural Land reserve bylaw will be held Tuesday and Thursday at the Capital Regional board room at 524 Yates starting at 7:30 p.m.

A public hearing on the plan Oct. 29 is scheduled to start in the board room at 9 a.m. and continue until everyone who wishes to speak on the plan, has done so.

B.C. Foster Care Best in N.A.

British Columbia is leading North America in foster child care, according to Professor Mary Reistroffer of the University of Wisconsin.

In Victoria for a two-day seminar sponsored by the department of human resources, Miss Reistroffer said B.C. is "about five years ahead of any state in the U.S." in both legislation and application of legislation affecting children who must be removed from their natural parents.

The involvement of "natural parents" in planning the lives of chidren away from them is a major advancement in which B.C. has lead, she said.

"You must understand the scaring and the guilt of a family when a child is taken away. They really feel they have failed," she said.

Miss Reistroffer said the major concern of agencies concerned with placing children in foster homes should be to return the child as soon as possible to his natural parent.

The child who has been taken away from his natural parent is in a "constant state of grieving" with a "constant yen to return."

She said children placed in foster care must be allowed to take part in the planning of their own future. "We often underestimate the capaicty of a youngster to understand what is going on," she said.

Miss Reistroffer is considered a leader in foster parent programs in the U.S. and is special consultant to the B.C. Federation of Foster Parent Associations.

Shorter Hours For Bus Drivers

Local bus drivers are now working a half hour less each day.

A provision in the 160 drivers' latest contract with B.C. Hydro, which provides for a seven and a half hour day, has come into effect.

Although the contract came into effect in February, implementation of the shorter work day was delayed till October so new schedules could be prepared and more drivers hired.

Bus drivers in Vancouver will also get the shorter work day.

Cooking of Soybean Needn't Be Mystery

By HILDA BEASTALL

On the days you are using oven heat for two or three kinds of baking, plan ahead to have soybeans cooking gently in the coolest part. Use a covered casserole which fits into a spare space, leaving the beans to simmer for the whole period the oven is on.

The preparation of soys is still a bit of a mystery to some homemakers but it is little different to that for dry white "navy" beans.

Soak 1 cup of dried soybeans overnight in refrigerator using salted water to well cover the beans in a jar with a lid.

Next day measure the salted water and add enough hot water to make 4 cups. Bring to a boil with the beans then transfer to an oven dish with lid.

Put dish into oven when temperature reaches about 300 deg. When cooked for about the three-hour period, the beans are ready to serve in any of your favorite ways.

I have found more people enjoy soybeans when put through a coarse grinder (a hand mouli shredder using number 3 disc). If you strain off the juices and grind while warm, it will be a less messy job. I did my first lot when cold with all the thickened juice on the beans and it was, well — really a lovely gooey mess though it turned out fine.

Here is an easy recipe (once the beans are cooked and ground) for Soybean Loaf, a delicious wholesome, economical meal full of good things for active people of any age.

SOYBEAN LOAF

3 cups cooked ground soybeans
¼ cup chopped onion if liked
½ cup finely chopped celery with leaves
¼ tsp. vegemite plus all juice from soys
1 cup fresh red tomato or canned
1 cup soft wholewheat breadcrumbs
½ cup wheat germ
2 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dried or fresh thyme
2 medium eggs, beaten

Mix lightly together in order; spoon into greased casserole and bake at 350 deg. for about 30 minutes. Will serve 5 or 6. Use hot with steamed green broccoli, spinach, or green beans. Or cold in sandwiches with salad or sliced tomatoes.

When you work out the easiest way for grinding the cooked soybeans, you will be using them to make cool weather soups for lunch by adding finely cut celery, vegetable water saved from cooking carrots, broccoli, a piece or two of squash, or a handful of fresh chickweed tops (without stems) at the last moment.

Have a covered jar of ground beans on hand (they keep three days refrigerated), just bring to a boil with the other ingredients and serve.

Rights Stage Needs Stronger Act

Kathleen Ruff, head of British Columbia's Human Rights Commission, is no sideline-sitter.

She's been right in there fighting from the first moment she took office. Mainly, as she will tell you for a "fair and just system for everybody. Not only for the ones who have a good case and the gumption to complain."

Right now she's waiting for a more effective Human Rights Act in British Columbia which "hopefully" is to come during the present session of the legislature.

"One that will permit more effective action and give the commission more power to initiate investigations and deal with some of the exemptions scattered through the present Act."

In the six months since she took office, Kay Ruff's workload has grown to such an extent, she tells you she needs a much larger office (as yet that has not materilized), more staff (right now she is working with a lone secretary) and "ideally", a section devoted entirely to women — as the Human Rights Commission has in Ontario (There it is the Women's Bureau that works with the Commission in this field).

She needs a bigger budget, too "so we could get out literature and posters and perhaps institute a small training program in the schools and amongst concerned organizations."

As she says "it is no good having a Human Rights Act if you don't get the message out to the people."

Real purpose of a Human Rights Commisssion, as she sees it, is "to get down to brass tacks . . . forget sentimentality and idealism and look at the causes of discrimination in a practical way."

There is also need for liaison with other provinces to facilitate an exchange of information and formulate co-operative plans across Canada."

This liaison is already made possible through the two-year-old Canadian Association of Statutory Human Rights Agencies (CASHRA).

When I talked to Kay Ruff, recently named president of CASHRA, she was fresh from an executive meeting of that association, held in Victoria.

It was a day of "stimulating discussion," with vice-president Caroline Cramer of Winnipeg, the head of Manitoba's Human Rights Commission, and association secretary, Earl Wiseman, of the fair employment practices branch of the federal government.

Talks included the establishment of a federal human rights commission, responsible to Parliament, as promised recently by Justice Minister Otto Lang.

"Lack of such a federal commission has meant a gap in Canadian human rights legislation," Mrs. Ruff says.

There was also full discussion regarding a joint meeting of CASHRA and the Secretary of State's department to be held in Ottawa at the end of November.

"At that time we hope to establish an inter-governmental structure to promote program co-ordination and communication between the provinces and the federal government and to see national programs established that might eventually eliminate all forms of discrimination."

As we talked, Mrs. Ruff reminded me that on December 10 we mark the 25th anniversary of the Declaration of Human Rights by the United Nations. Canada was among the 48 signatories of that declaration.

RUFF
. . . a fighter

As a part of the 25th anniversary celebration the United Nations has declared a "decade to combat racism".

It would be a definite step in the right direction if, at the November meeting in Ottawa, the federal government agreed to sponsor a national program in conjunction with the UN aims, Kay Ruff says.

She would also like to see that program include some form of Canada-wide training in human rights.

It's a whole new ball game, as far as Commissioner Ruff is concerned. And she is quick to tell you that in today's world, thinking about human rights should develop in people a sense of their human responsibilities.

"To enjoy human rights they must deserve them by caring deeply about the rights of others."

Already some provinces are spending money to carry out extended human rights programs.

Manitoba has a new Human Rights Act. Saskatchewan is working on one. Ontario has extended its Human Rights Code. "Now it is British Columbia's turn," she says.

Then she concluded with the belief that the human rights movement is no longer "an ugly duckling."

It is now a bright beacon around which public opinion may mobilize to compel action against discriminations — no matter what form they take.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tuesday, Oct. 23
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look to future rather than attempting to hang on to past. Libra person could play key role. Finish rather than begin — improve relations with co-workers, those who serve you. Aggressive individual is vying for attention. Know it and react accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What seems a dead end may be only a temporary stop along the way. Leo, Aquarius persons could be involved. Accent is on basic tasks, new ways of gaining momentum. Those who aided in past may now need help themselves.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Give logic equal time with impulse. You may see clearly in some areas but could be victim of wishful thinking on financial level. Don't give up something of value for a mere whim. Heed words of one who taught you in past.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Highlight versatility. Refuse to be pushed, cornered, restricted. Age does not necessarily equate with wisdom. Know it and speak your own mind. Message will become increasingly clear. Property value is subject to argument.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Obtain valid hint from Cancer message. Check details, apparent minor points. Relatives are entitled to their views—but you have life of your own to live. Aquarius, Scorpio persons could play important roles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be analytical. Friend who is gloomy may be trying to tell you something. Whatever you do, avoid mixing money and friendship — or you might lose both. Gemini is likely to be in picture. Protect valuables.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Change is beneficial. Give and you also will receive. This applies especially now to relations with family. Cycle is such that you have no need for ego nourishment. You know. You feel fulfilled. You are assured. Make concession and you will gain plenty.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Much that occurs has aura of mystery, romanticism. Key now is to be subtle. Avoid being aggressive in manner which creates tension. Work behind the scenes. Express understanding for one close to you who complains of pain, emotional stress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have more strength on your side than might be apparent. There is no need for you to be cowed, frightened, shoved or chided. One who pulls financial strings will not forget. You are going to be vindicated in poetic fashion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What you thought suited you may suddenly become outmoded. Now be careful and mature. Applies to personal and professional areas. You need not become a prisoner of your own emotions. You can and should be free. Allow yourself a choice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Learning process may seem laborious. You are not satisfied with old ways. You want to break through — you can but there won't be thunder and lightning. Process is apt to be slow and steady. Leo could play significant role.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Feelings run deep. Nothing now is apt to occur halfway — it is all or nothing. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons figure in prominent ways. Heed inner voice. Don't attempt to force issues or go against your own feelings.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are analytical, a natural writer, an individual who can get to root of problems. You are better at helping others than when it comes to understanding yourself. In November, you are due for a new start, vital experiences. Gemini, Virgo persons are drawn to your sphere. You have way of retaining youthful spirit. You are attractive and stubborn.

Woman Joins Fraternity But Novelty Wears Off

TORONTO (CP) — When Debbie Pollock graduated this year with a bachelor of arts degree in philosophy and English from Dalhousie University in Halifax, she became the first woman accepted at the Niagara Parks Commission's school of horticulture.

But, E. C. Henning, superintendent of the 37-year-old school, said in an interview: "Debbie is not here as the result of women's lib."

Henning said other girls have applied to the school, which has been considering them for five years. But, there was no residence.

Miss Pollock, 20, was given a bedroom and washroom in the residence, but was not allowed to sleep there. She lived in the YWCA for a time, but later found a boarding house.

Like all students, Miss Pollock was required to become a brother in the Glen Horticulturist Fraternity.

Ken Beattie of Renfrew, Ont., her student foreman for a week, said Miss Pollock was not given special consideration.

"She got the same treatment as everyone else, only we were more careful," he said. "It was a novelty at first. Now the novelty's worn off.

"I think she's got guts." A native of Oshawa, Ont., Miss Pollock wants to set up public gardens near small towns.

"A girl can't put out exactly the same quantity of work in some area as a guy can," she said, giving examples of laying a patio or wrapping tree roots in burlap.

Myth Will Vanish

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a mother should cover up for Father so the children won't know what a louse he is?

I've made excuses for my husband ever since I can remember. It's "Daddy is sick." (Daddy was hung over.) Or, "Daddy didn't come home for supper because he had to work late." (Daddy didn't call to say he wouldn't be home. I don't know where he was, or what he was doing.)

I've said: "We can't afford a new car—or a vacation this year because Daddy needs the money to put back into his business," when the truth was, "Daddy likes to gamble."

I ask myself, why should I protect Daddy? When the kids get older they'll learn the truth anyway.

So, Dear Abby, you're supposed to have all the answers. Can you answer this one?—Protecting Daddy.

DEAR PROTECTING: At an age where children believe that Daddy is the greatest, what's to be gained by being brutally factual? I don't recommend crowning him with a halo—neither do I support your suggestion that he deserves a noose. Like the Santa Claus myth, childrens' illusions about Daddy (and Mama) vanish soon enough. Don't shove.

DEAR ABBY: as a minister's wife, I get some really dumb questions, but when someone hands me the money for church rental (for non-members) and then asks: "Is there supposed to be a gift for the minister, too?"—well, that's too much.

Where the church is concerned, some people are unbelievably cheap. A minister must pay for his education just as any other professionally trained person must. He drives his car to and from the church for counseling sessions, again for rehearsal, and finally for the wedding ceremony. The minister is not part of the rented property.

Would anyone expect the services of a doctor or dentist for a total of 5 or 6 hours, and then ask: "Is $5 enough?"

Please urge ministers to set up a scale of fees for members and non-members. (The latter seem to think they are entitled to more than members.) And don't be afraid to say: "My fee is!" And then collect the fee, or send a bill as everyone else does, Minister's Wife.

DEAR WIFE: And to your letter, may I add an appropriate, "AMEN!"

DEAR ABBY: My brother is being married soon. His fiancee asked me to be one of her bridesmaids, and I accepted.

Today I was informed that all the bridesmaids dresses were ordered, and mine will cost me $49.95, and I will have to buy shoes to match! The bride didn't discuss the style or color or price with me, she just went ahead and ordered what she wanted. I don't know any of the other bridesmaids as they are her friends, so I don't know if they had anything to say about the choice.

Abby, I don't like paying for a dress I may not like or wear again. I have already purchased a shower gift which cost me $10, and later on there will be a wedding gift. I think this whole thing is getting out of hand.

How can I bow out of this wedding party without making a big stink? Groom's Sister.

DEAR SISTER: You may not be able to. Why not wait until your gown arrives? (You may like it.) If you don't, simply state your objections. They are legitimate.

DEAR ABBY: How would you feel if you found your 16-year-old daughter and her 17-year-old boy friend asleep on her bed with the door closed? —Rockport.

DEAR ROCK: Nervous.

As more and more washable fabrics hit the market, homemakers find it increasingly difficult to know how to care for the many different fibres.

You will never be in this quandary if you keep the four-page "Laundry Care Guide" handy. It explains the relatively new fabric care symbols which you find on permanently attached labels on most textile products you buy.

The Guide also mentions the characteristics and trademarks of popular natural and man-made fibres and tells you how to look after each.

The last page of the Guide explains how to protect your automatic washer from costly wear and tear.

One of the most important rules is not to overload your washer, because an overloaded machine cannot function properly. Never wash more than three large pieces (tablecloths, sheets, etc.) in the same load. Fill the rest of the machine with smaller items. Bulky items such as blankets or chenille spreads are best washed alone.

You will also learn what you can do before you call a repairman. For instance, check if the electrical cord is plugged in properly, check the fuse box or circuit breaker and make sure the hot and cold water faucets of your machine are turned on.

The guide also suggests that it may be more economical to wash two or three loads during the week, instead of doing the entire laundry on the same day. With spread-out washdays, your family needs fewer clothes and household items will last longer if they are washed soon after they have become soiled.

Developing Countries Have Lots to Show Nurses in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — "The health problems of developing countries are often different from those in Canada, but Canadians can learn a lot from them," says Dr. Helen K. Mussallem, executive director of the Canadian Nurses' Association.

She recently returned from a five-week visit to Uruguay, one of several recent visists for the World Health Organization and the Pan-American Health Organization to help developing countries plan their nursing curriculum. She also has been to Venezuela, Cuba and Brazil.

She went to Montevideo at the request of the University of Uruguay's school of nursing, one of the two nursing institutions in the country.

"That's one of their problems right there," she said in an interview. "There are only two schools of nursing to serve a population of about three million people.

"There are only about 1,000 practising nurses."

The school of nursing at the Uruguay university plans to increase its classes to graduate 100 students a year. Present classes number 30. Medical schools are graduating 300 to 500 doctors a year.

"They have about one nurse to every three or four doctors, the reverse of the situation in Canada."

Mussallem acted as a consultant to the Montevideo nursing faculty, helping to determine the philosphy behind planning for the curriculum.

The school was trying to recognize the health needs of the country—the need to have workers who could aid in solving such basic health problems as better water and sewage services, yet ensure that standards of teaching and nurse-training are acceptable to other countries.

. . . back from trip

"Another purpose was to help them draw up a study on career patterns, such as finding out why students drop out of nursing school and why gradutates drop out of nursing later."

This study also would try to find out whether the students are adequately prepared for their nursing positions.

One of the things Mussallem thinks Canada could learn frof Uruguay is the emphasis given to health care for the well person.

Students in Uruguay spend their first two years doing nursing in the community rather than in hospital wards.

Canadian nursing schools might learn from this, Mussallem said, "especially if they want to put emphasis on preventive medicine."

She said the influence of doctors has to be weighed, because they are asking for changes in the curriculum so that nurses will be better prepared to work in hospitals. However, this is not "where the people are."

Health professionals have to be more aware of developing the kind of worker who is right for the community, she said.

"We must be more creative in using new kinds of workers to get health, not treatment, to the people.

"I believe nurses are more dedicated to seeking new ways of health care. Doctors are more interested in the medical and scientific side."

Paying for Mistakes? '. . . Tell Them I Have'

By GLENNIS ZILM
Third of Three

Four years ago Anne C. had an abortion.

She was in her final year of an Ontario college; the man was in his second-last year of medical school. Although they later married they did not believe that step possible just then.

"Nor could I have had the baby. I'd just have gone to pieces."

She and her husband now are expecting their first baby — a planned one.

"It was just ignorance and an uncontrollable emotion in college," she said. "And for those who think I should have paid for such a mistake, let me tell them I have."

For Anne it was an agonizing decision. It still is, as she shows when she talks about it.

"I'd have had to leave college if I had gone through with the pregnancy. Probably Ron would have had to leave, too. We couldn't have afforded to stay.

"It would have made my mother, a widow, extremely unhappy. And Ron's parents, who had sacrificed a lot to get him to medical school, well . . ."

She also thinks she might have resented the baby if she had let the pregnancy go on.

"It would have been bad to think: 'If we hadn't had you, we'd be doing this-and-such. No baby deserves that."

But she still wonders and still wakes up at night and asks herself if it was a selfish decision.

"Other people make you feel guilty," she says.

"What really makes me furious is to read about some pompous politician saying women aren't taking their responsibilities seriously, that abortion laws are too liberal.

"Politicians and medical committees can't say how it will affect our lives, and maybe the baby's, too. They don't know what it's like.

"They make it hard for me, for us. They make us feel like criminals."

Anne hates to read newspaper stories about abortion.

"Those politicians saying that there shouldn't be any unplanned pregnancies because the means exist to prevent conception. Haven't they ever heard of emotion, for God's sake?

"Haven't they ever made a mistake?"

She also talks about how frightened she was. And circumstances complicated the matter, so she was twice as frightened.

Anne flew to New York, had it done one afternoon, stayed at a hotel with a woman friend for the weekend and then flew back to Ottawa.

"It made me feel guilty — as though I had to sneak across the border."

Under the same circumstances, she'd do it again.

"But I'll never do it twice — I've learned it's better to prevent a pregnancy than go through that trauma.

"It's not easy. It's like having a piece cut out of you — a breast removed or something — to save your life and the sanity of those who love you.

"It's not something you do because it's the easiest thing. It's just the better of two really terrible things."

Canadian Press

BROOD FOR THOUGHT

Last year there were 648 therapeutic abortions performed at hospitals in the Capital district, according to provincial statistics.

This year, by the end of September, the total was 598, meaning abortions will likely reach 800 by year-end.

In order to illustrate—with other than statistics—what the abortion program on southern Vancouver Island means, the Times took this picture of the entire enrolment—800—at George Jay elementary school in Victoria.

Belt Safety Law May Hurt Tots

DETROIT (UPI) — The U.S. safety law that requires adults to buckle up seat and shoulder belts before they drive away in a 1974 car may be a hazard for children.

A citizens safety group Thursday asked transportation secretary Claude Brinegar to issue a consumer protection bulletin to warn purchesers of new cars of the danger of using the shoulder harness on small children.

The group cited several studies which showed children up to about the age of 12 could suffer neck and spinal cord injuries during sudden braking. But General Motors says it has "no field accident evidence showing that use of belt restraint systems increases the likelihood of injuries for children.

All automakers recommend using special child restraint systems for children up to four or five years of age.

The new ignition interlock system requires front-seat occupants to buckle up the combination seat belt-shoulder harness before the car can be started.

The consumer group action for child transportation safety (ACTS)—said Ford and General Motors have not included any warning in the owners' manuals of the alleged built-in hazard.

Chrysler and American Motors warns of the possible danger and suggests ways to place the shoulder harness behind a child.

ACTS thinks similar warnings should be prominent in all operating manuals.

"Since the interlock system requires any passenger in that seat to use both the lap and shoulder belts, and since the interlock system is advertised as a safety feature, parents will assume their children should be restricted in that manner," ACTS said in the letter to Brinegar.

Deborah Richards, a founder of the New York-based safety group, recommends that children under four use special seats.

"Over that age, they should be seated on a firm cushion, three inches or less in height, with the adult lap belt fastened over their hips," she said. "If a child must ride in the front seat of a 1974 car, the shoulder belt should be slipped behind his back until he is tall enough to wear the belt properly."

GM contends its combination seat and shoulder belt has been redesigned for 1974 models and affords the belt front seat protection for a child or small person.

"If the shoulder belt causes neck or face irritation because of the child's size, this may be reduced by positioning the child further inboard," GM says. "If serious discomfort continues, the child should be lap-belted in the rear seat."

Ford, GM and Chrysler offer special seats for infants and young children. They have been judged the best available by the Independent Consumers Union.

Dominant Approach Upsets the Patient

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dentists can use hypnosis and hypnotic techniques to calm nervous patients and help patients who are allergic to anesthetics, Dr. F. I. Yoreh of Vancouver told a conference of the Canadian Dental Association here.

He said the hypnotist should use a permissive rather than a dominant approach and should induce hypnosis by talking quietly and steadily.

He said a course in hypnosis given at the University of British Columbia dental school is the "first of its kind in the world."

Dr. Eric Banister, a physical fitness researcher at Simon Fraser University, told the delegates that dentists are usually "quite naive" about their own physical condition.

"You look after other people's mouths but you don't look after your own bodies," he said.

Banister said dentists are prone to cardiac and circulatory problems from standing and stooping all day and the way they hold their instruments restricts blood circulation to their hands.

He advised the dentists to find a good plan to provide at least 30 minutes exercise a day.

In response to a question from the floor, Banister said Vitamin E seems to benefit some people but improvement may come from auto-suggestion.

• the leisure craftsman

by Phyllis Fiarotta

There is a craft project that utilizes dried flowers placed between two single sheets of facial tissue. The tissue is then painted with a mixture of half liquid white glue and half water. When finished, the tissue should look transparent, like parchment, and it should preserve the flowers. The glue can be used over white note paper, too.

The problem is that when I tried this craft, something went wrong.

My basic mistake was in thinning the glue. It is the glue that holds the tissue and the flowers together. If you thin the glue too much, it won't hold properly. Thin with just enough water to allow easy handling.

You might also try making the bottom layer two-ply instead of one-ply.

Always place the tissue collage on wax paper when you start gluing. When the glue has dried, peel away the wax paper from the tissue as opposed to lifting the tissue away from the paper.

One last suggestion: If the tissue still does not hold up after one coating of glue, give it a second coating. Apply the second coating only after the first has thoroughly dried.

OLD POP ART

Never throw anything away because it might be considered art tomorrow. Some of the items I've used for pop art masterpieces are fold-out cameras and old typewriters. I paint all the parts with bright enamel paint. For instance, I paint the keys of the typewriter different colors, as well as the case, spools and hardware. When they are completely painted, these oldies look like wild sculptures.

TURTLE SHELL

Here is a shell craft I recently spotted. Glue a piece of paper to the underside of a small dome-like shell. Glue four small web-like shell feet and a pointed shell tail to the underside. Glue a bit of wire underneath a round shell head. Insert the wire into the paper and glue.

ZOO'S NEW REPTILE BOOK PRETTY SNAKY

HONOLULU (AP) — A new book published by the Honolulu Zoo, Snakes of Hawaii, has been hailed as the most definitive work extant on the subject.

One critique said the 20-page book is "completely devoid of zoological, grammatical and typographical errors."

Wives Left Little

OTTAWA (CP) — An increasing number of elderly women will outlive their husbands and find themselves with little to live for, a Hamilton professor suggested today.

Population projections for North America indicate that women over 65 years will outnumber men over 65 by a 3-to-2 ratio by 1985, Prof. Victor Marshall of McMaster University told the first biennial meeting of the Canadian Association of Gerontology.

A study he made indicated that the love and companionship of a spouse was the only reason many elderly persons had for living. The study was made in two Ontario senior citizens' homes.

In the study he found not a single elderly person willing, without qualification, to live to 100.

The association was told that the Depression contributed to the alcoholic or unemployable condition of some indigent old men in the cities.

Joseph Tindale, of Hamilton, said a study he did in Hamilton of unattached men over 65 who depend on old-age security showed most live in rundown rooming houses on an annual income of less than $2,500.

Tindale said the men often talked to him of the Depression and made the point that they are little better off now.

He said the men need more money, "but not a lot more money because they wouldn't know what to do with it."

Spotlight on Earthly Concerns After Focus on Outer Space

WASHINGTON (WP) — The bedroom and the bath and other such earthy concerns are beginning to regain the attention they lost when man focused on outer space.

Some 400 members of the Human Factors Society (scientific, engineering and technical professionals) are meeting here with "the consumer factor" as their theme.

It was the consumer factor that was not taken into account in the design, for example, of NASA's zero-gravity shower "developed at considerable cost and effort, for use in the Skylab flights."

"To our great surprise," said Dr. Walton Jones, deputy director for NASA life sciences, "we find that of the three astronauts on Skylab II, one took two showers, one took one, and one did not use the shower at all during the entire 59-day flight.

"All of which led to Johnny Carson's memorable remark that 'the three astronauts are fine. The guy who opened the hatch is on the critical list.' The problem with the space shower, it became obvious later, was the hour-and-a-half it took to set up and use."

Earthly bathroom fixtures, however, have hardly changed at all, according to Alexander Kira, a Cornell University design professor, through the technology and the design is available to manufacturers.

"The wash basin is the same design we used when everyone poured water from a pitcher into a bowl to wash their hands. Now we wash hands under running water. We need a different shaped bowl and a fountain-type faucet.

"Washing your feet is most difficult if you are 40 and fat. Neither the tub nor the shower is designed to help you. What's needed is a raised area to either sit on or put your foot on."

Kira condemned the bathtub on other scores: "The rim is too wide to get in or out of the tub with any degree of safety. The sunken tub is fashionable now in high-cost homes, but it's impossible to clean without climbing down into it."

The perfect bathtub has yet to be made, Kira said. "The only reason to take a bath is to relax. You can't get clean in a bath. Yet American bathtubs are not properly designed for relaxing. You need a tub with a slanted back, to lean against."

Kira said that getting clean ranks with riding on the highway for danger: "Try to keep your balance while standing on one foot on a wet soapy surface and washing the other."

But Kira sees little chance for improvement in the bathroom "as long as plumbing manufacturers have a six-month backlog of orders and mass builders have no interest in finding out what better bathroom fixtures are available."

Kira claimed that European plumbing is well ahead of American. He showed a picture of a Swiss toilet which flushes when you lean against a bar on the back and a German pushbutton, fountain-style faucet.

THE TOILET

The bedroom in "human factors research" has also been neglected, according to Henry Parsons, a psychological consultant in New York City. He said that friends had pointed out gaps in his research; "That I have failed to include hiding under the bed as a bedroom activity that imposes certain design requirements. Here children should be considered in the user population."

Parsons said that other neglected factors were "lying, sleeping and sexual behavior . . . with regard to the last, the design of the supporting platform has been as much disregarded by ergonomists and engineering psychologists as by Masters and Johnson . . . no one has sought to discuss with me the design questions raised about optimizing sexual performances."

To a question from the audience about the waterbed, highly touted by some as an aphrodisiac, Parsons said he knew of only two pieces of research: One by Alex Comfort, "only a paragraph in his book The Joy of Sex and a more extensive study in the Village Voice."

For sleeping comfort, the softness of a bed is open to debate, Parsons said. "Orthopedic medical practitioners often recommended a very firm mattress because this increases the sleeper's motility (movement). The more often the sleeper changes position, the less likely pain will accumulate in back or joints. But of course he changes position because of the advance effect of the hard platform on his surface tissues."

Of the kitchen, Dr. Lewis Hanes, Westinghouse Electric Co. Consultant of Pittsburgh, said not enough research is being done.

"For instance, a recent survey shows that only 20 per cent of users utilize the automatic delayed cook set on ovens, yet these controls cost them a great deal.

"England has more interest than we do in kitchen standards. Recent studies there show the need for adjustable work heights in the kitchen. But we do know that in the United States, the changing lifestyle, with more women working away from home, is increasing demand for work-saving appliances."

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By WALTER ALVAREZ

If you have had an attack of acute diverticulitis, you have probably been told that the way to prevent further attacks is to stay on a "low residue" diet—one that eliminates fibrous, uncooked vegetables, whole wheat bread, nuts and raw fruit, especially those with seeds. Now it appears that such a diet, except during an acute attack, may in fact do more harm than good.

Diverticulitis is an inflammation of the small, sac-like pouchings present in the walls of the colons of at least a third of men and women over 45 years of age.

The diagnosis is made by x-ray studies of the colon. When there is no inflammation in the little sacs, we refer to it as diverticulosis. When they are inflamed, we call it diverticulitis.

We do not know why these little pouches occur, but we do know that they protrude at the places where blood vessels enter the wall of the bowel, between the columns of muscle that course along its outer surface. And we understand that when these sacs are obstructed and no longer communicate freely with the interior of the bowel, they are subject to infection.

Usually this rights itself with prompt treatment, and the infection drains harmlessly into the moving contents of the main bowel channel. When it does no do so, it can become complicated, even requiring surgery because of abscess formation, or perforation with peritonitis, or obstruction of the bowel.

According to new studies, diverticulosis is largely confined to highly civilized man, and is apparently very rare in primitive societies in which a high-residue diet, consisting mainly of coarse grains, fibrous vegetables, nuts and raw fruit, prevails. An interesting question now arises: could the high bulk diet, which gives the bowel its proper work to do, be better than the low bulk diet, which may actually encourage the formation of the diverticula?

Some investigators, encouraged by the initial results in stopping the low-residue regimen, are cautiously putting their diverticulosis patients on diets that are deliberately rich in bulk and fibre, in an effort to determine whether they will do better than those on the time-honored, low-residue regimens which, in their view, may just be perpetuating the disorder.

No certain conclusion can be drawn yet, but the question is now open and the possibility exists that perhaps a more rugged diet may prevent those troublesome little sacs from forming in our all too civilized colons.

DARK SUNGLASSES

I often marvel at the way in which thousands of people wear dark sunglasses — even at night, and in dim-lighted places. One summer, while driving in my car across a Western American desert, the sun ahead of me was so brilliant, and my eyes were so distressed, that I put on sunglasses such as I very rarely have used.

The glasses gave me great relief, until I stopped for luncheon and went into a hotel. When I went into the poorly lighted lobby, I was surprised to note how little I could see. And, as I looked around at a dozen persons wearing dark glasses, I wondered why they were doing that in a room where they did not need the glasses. Ever since, I have wondered whenever I have seen people wearing dark glasses in a place where such glasses could only interfere with seeing well. I have seen many such a person trying to read the menu in a restaurant, but having a hard time doing it. When evening comes, I often see a number of people still wearing dark glasses with discomfort.

Since then, I have been much interested in the scores of published magazine pictures which I see of people, like Jackie Onassis and others, who often wear the dark glasses. I keep wondering why they keep doing this. If the person wore them only outside in summer, or in a car being driven across a sunny desert, I could understand, but why do they wear them at other times, when there is no need to protect their eyes from bright lights. Still I am puzzled.

B.C. PEN PROBE PUSHED BY MP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Progressive Conservative MP John Reynolds will ask the conservative caucus next Wednesday to demand an independent inquiry into the British Columbia Penitentiary in New Westminster.

Reynolds, the member for Burnaby-Richmond-Delta, toured the institution for more than three hours Saturday, talking with administration officials, guards and prisoners. The tour, made with the approval of solicitor-general Warren Allmand, confirmed everything he had been told about a disturbance by prisoners on Oct. 5, he said.

Damage was extensive and ran well in excess of $50,000, he added.

DISEASE WARNING

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver agriculturist says an irrigation sewage disposal program in Vernon will cause animals eating sprayed forage to become diseased.

Stan Weston told a UBC seminar a similar project in Australia in 1933 ended with cattle grazing on the forage developing beef measles and being unsafe for eating.

Mr. Weston said a similar disease will occur in Vernon to animals eating the forage and humans handling it, he warned, urging that the project be discontinued.

b.c. briefs

VANCOUVER (CP) — A total of 480 persons cast ballots in the three-day advance poll for Vancouver's Oct. 24 vote to fill a vacancy on the school board and rule on several money questions. The vote next Wednesday will elect a new member to the school board, and decide whether the city should purchase the Four Seasons property at the entrance to Stanley Park, adopt a full partial ward system, and whether community ice rinks should be built.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — This city's $2.7 million airport terminal was officially opened by Sen. Ray Perrault Saturday, six weeks after the 20,340-square-foot structure opened for business. Perrault said the airport is an indication of the growth of civil aviation in Northern B.C., pointing out that the present 140,000 passengers a year will reach 200,000 passengers a year by 1980.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Research chemist says metal concentrations in sewage could be reclaimed better and more economically if waste was treated at the source rather than at municipal treatment plants.

John Leach said such a system would reduce the risk of metals poisoning entire cleaning systems and eliminate the threat of metal pollution in rivers and oceans where treated sewage is dumped.

MEGAVITAMIN THERAPY DEFENDED

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Saskatoon psychiatrist and pioneer of megavitamin therapy for schizophrenics — persons with split personalities—says critics of such therapy have not followed his procedures and therefore have not obtained the same results.

Dr. Abraham Hoffer charged the average physician knows nothing about the treatment.

Duke Off to London

NEW YORK (AP) — Duke Ellington left today for London, where his third sacred concert will have its premiere Wednesday in Westminster Abbey.

Much of the music for the new sacred concert was written by Ellington in Chicago. "I'll be writing up to the day of the performance," he said. "That's my style."

Previous sacred concerts have been premiered in Grace Cathedral in San Francisco in 1965, with the theme, "David Danced," and the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, in 1968, with the theme the 150th Psalm.

Theme of the London concert will be: "Every man prays in his own language that God does not understand." Among the new songs for band and singers with titles like Aint' Nobody Nowhere Without God and Is God a Three-Letter Word for Love and Is Love a Four-Letter Word for God?

Prime Minister Heath will attend the concert and has invited Ellington to 10 Downing St. for supper afterward.

TORONTO — A book on Canadian painters published last fall to mixed reviews has been awarded the Leipzig Medal, an East Germany-sponsored award for exceptional literary words.

The book, by Paul Duval, a Toronto critic, is Four Decades: The Canadian Group of Painters and Their Contemporaries, tracing the history of Canadian art from the Group of Seven to the present. It is published by Clarke-Irwin Ltd.

CONSORT, Alta. — Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener paid a surprise visit to this small central Alberta community Saturday night to talk about a project he endorsed several years ago.

The Governor-General, who supported a fund for a community centre, met with community officials, took a close look at the centre, and went bird hunting with eight others, bagging a total 110, mostly geese.

KINGSBRIDGE, England — Britain's oldest cinema usherette, 86-year-old Emily Wood, is job-hunting.

Next Saturday, the theatre where she has worked for 40 years closes down. She guided people to their seats at the first film shown in the theatre. "Its been my life going to the cinema most nights since my husband was killed in the First World War," she said.

LONDON — If Adam really wore a fig leaf, a British doctor said, then he had real problems.

Dr. Thomas Smith wore one himself as a test of the old story, and reported that a fig leaf has a . . . well, its . . . its rough like sandpaper on the underside. "I tied the leaf around my waist with a piece of string and I was most surprised at my findings," he said.

CARMAN, Man. — Several months work went down the drain on the weekend as plane rebuilder Bob Diemert crash-landed his reconstructed Japanese Zero in a second attempt to get the Second World War relic airborne.

Diemert was unhurt but damage to the plane caused by troublesome landing gear will probably postpone a third flying attempt until the spring. It's the only airworthy Zero in the world and a Japanese import-export firm is negotiating its purchase on behalf of war veteran employees.

YORKTON, Sask. — The National Film Board of Canada won four awards at the Yorkton International Film Festival, ended Saturday, including the best nature and wildlife film, the best sports and recreation film, the best sound editing and the best cinematography.

There were 125 entries in the week-long festival. Sheridan College of Applied Arts and Technology at Oakville, Ont., won the New Dimension award and the award for the best amateur film.

MONROE RELIC SALE BAGS LOOK-ALIKE

LOS ANGELES — Thirty-one lots of items owned by Marilyn Monroe were sold separately for a total of $3,585 by auctioneers Sunday and a bewitching platinum blonde with blue eyes and a whispery voice was a prime bidder.

Janet Raymond, 21, a Pepperdine University student who works as a hospital typist looks enough like the late actress to be her daughter. "But I'm not trying to be a Monroe imitation. I'm Janet, not Marilyn," she said.

She was outbid for a letter to Miss Monroe from a friend named Sid.

Burbank, Calif., car importer Bill Sherinyan's $100 got the April, 1952, letter from Little Rock, Ark., addressed to "Dearest Sunshine."

Miss Raymond paid $75 for three 1962-63 copies of Eros Magazine with a Monroe photo spread. One of the more expensive items was the contract which led to Miss Monroe's breakthrough in the movie "Asphalt Jungle." It went for $350.

As for why Miss Raymond wanted the letter from Sid, she said:

"I've been fascinated with Marilyn Monroe for — well, I guess for all my life. Maybe it's because I was adopted, too."

Stanfield Pricks Euphoria

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The position of leader of the opposition is a job in the Canadian democratic system that is difficult to explain when visiting the Peoples Republic of China, or touring the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

With that pertinent observation Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield helped dispel the euphoria that hung over the House of Commons when Prime Minister Trudeau made his rapturous report on his week-long visit to China.

With just the right note of good humour touched with wryness Bob Stanfield rose after listening to the enthusiastic words of the P.M., to poke a bit of fun at his chief adversary in Parliament.

He congratulated Trudeau on having observed a birthday during the trip — the prime minister's 54th.

Knowing how touchy Pierre Trudeau is over birthdays and his aging image the opposition leader hastened to reassure the Commons that marking yet another birthday for the prime minister was relevant in connection with the China trip because Trudeau was quoted after his meetings with Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai paying tributes to the aging leaders of that centuries-old society.

The prime minister was reported as saying in regard to the aging leadership, in China: "It is this kind of faith that leaves me full of admiration when I see these really aging leaders prepared to begin all over again."

The speech was Stanfield at his best. It was polite, but pointed. He praised the new agreements which had been formally signed in the fields of trade, economics, and medical science. They were good moves strengthening the relations between the two countries.

But while paying those tributes Stanfield in a witty and gentle way slid in the odd shaft that carried much more sting than the sharp slim needles used in the technique of acupuncture.

His address and method of delivery was much like the droll manner used by Stanfield when he speaks to the annual parliamentary press gallery dinner. In recent years he has stolen the show, aroused storms of laughter from his audiences behind the doors closed for that event, and led all those listening to wish aloud that he would make similar speeches from the public platform.

His comments in the Commons had both government and opposition sides laughing appreciatively at some of his sly digs. He gently reminded the members that he had visited Russia in 1970 and China in 1971.

"I found on both occasions," he said, "that while I was most hospitably received that within the system of government operating in those states, an identifiable and active leader of the opposition was a rather foreign concept. I came to understand that in certain parts of the world it was accepted that by the time you found out there was an effective opposition, it was perhaps too late."

There was applause from all sides for that observation. It pointed up the fact that in China and the Soviet Union there is no provision for an official opposition under their systems of government.

With a grin Stanfield said the relevance of his observation regarding an "effective opposition" to the contemporary Canadian scene was self-evident. (Loud applause from the chuckling Tory ranks.)

Their leader said the exchanges of people and ideas in the areas of medicine and the media should be very beneficial. There is much that Canadians and the Chinese can learn from one another.

The House was lapsing again into the serious-minded mood that Trudeau's speech had left it when zap, Stanfield lightened it again. He said that there is no doubt about Canadians learning from the Chinese because in the field of acupuncture alone they have already seen remarkable results.

"Just look at what it has done for the Ottawa Roughriders!" he commented, referring to the relief Ottawa's quarterback on its football squad has obtained from acupuncture on his shoulder. The Roughriders have climbed from the bottom of the eastern league to first place. Again there was loud applause and laughter as a slightly perlexed and somewhat puzzled Pierre Trudeau watched and listened while the No. 1 man in the official opposition displayed one of his best performances of the year as a debate in the House. This was a new confident Stanfield that Trudeau was watching and hearing.

BILL WEAKNESS

A proposed bill to control noxious weeds may result in a greater introduction of alien chemicals into the environment for weed control, Derrick Mallard, president of the Citizens Association to Save the Environment, said Saturday.

The legislation introduced by Agriculture Minister David Stupich would provide a fund between $72 and $78 million to control noxious weeds.

While certain aspects of the legislation are good, he said the section providing financial assistance to farmers and industries for weed control would lead to the greater use of chemical herbicides.

"This is the weakness of the bill," he said. "If you don't have to pay for herbicides, you are inclined to use more."

He said the government should ensure that the new legislation provides priority assistance to municipalities, farmers and others using non-chemical methods of weed control.

"It is necessary that hand clearing of weeds and other growths be stimulated to replace our devasting chemical technology," he said. "Besides it provides employment."

Tanker Driver Dies in Blast

MONTREAL (CP) — Rheaume Ayotte, 38, was killed Sunday when the tanker he was driving went through a guard rail on a south shore highway and fell onto its side, exploding immediately on impact.

Six or seven explosions devastated the tanker as separate fuel compartments heaed tand ignited.

The mishap occurred when an automobile struck a light standard with its front fender and skidded into two cement blocks dividing the six-lane highway, throwing the blocks onto the road surface.

The car "flipped over in the air" and landed on its roof on the other side of the highway, said Gilles Meyer, a wintess.

He said the car "was spinning like crazy" and as the truck driver swerved to avoid it, the truck hit a divider block and slammed into the steel guard rail, ripping out a 100-foot section.

Denise Mitchell, 26, a passenger in the automobile, was taken to hospital for treatment of spinal injuries and Claude Bessette, 27, the driver of the car, suffered minor cuts.

S. African, Portuguese Liquor Sales Ban Sought

A Vancouver citizen's group today presented a brief to the New Democratic Party caucus urging the government remove all South African and Portuguese alcoholic beverages from liquor stores.

The Southern Africa Action Coalition called on the NDP to take the move in protest of South African apartheid and Portuguese colonialism.

Spokesman for the group, Rev. Philip Thatcher of St. Simon's Anglican Church in North Vancouver, said the gesture "would give concrete expression to the statements of NDP policy and would be recognized as a strong gesture of moral support for the people of southern Africa,"

Thatcher called special attention to a resolution on South Africa passed at the 1971 federal NDP convention which stated "a New Democratic Party government would spearhead a boycott of products from the Union of South Africa."

"It would be dishonest," Thatcher said, "to pretend that this action would have any profound economic effect either on the white regimes of southern Africa or, for that matter, upon the revenues of the Liquor Board of B.C."

However, such action, he stated, "would reaffirm the position of moral leadership which has been the role of the NDP in this country."

Basford Giving Land-Bank Lift

EDMONTON (CP) — A major new land-banking proposal designed to lift some of the financial burden from municipal shoulders will be outlined by Ron Basford, federal urban affairs minister, informants say.

They say the federal government will also describe plans for a national transit development corporation to design, build and market urban transportation systems for domestic and world markets.

These are expected to be the most concrete programs offered by Ottawa at a two-day federal-provincial-municipal conference begun today.

The meeting will be an important test of the value of national tri-level conferences. It is the second such meeting and some provincial municipal affairs ministers are skeptical about their usefulness.

It is understood the government will outline new measures to beef up recently-approved land assembly and new communities provisions in the National Housing Act.

The government earlier this year set aside $100 million annually for land-banking programs. The new-communities plan would enable governments to acquire large tracts of land for entirely new towns.

The aim of the land-banking plans is to curb rising land costs by assembling large blocks of cheap land for rapid development. Housing experts say piecemeal development of urban land helps drive up land costs.

Basford and other federal officials have said they are disappointed at how slow response has been to the land-bank programs.

One obstacle is thought to be fears that municipalities would be saddled with the high costs in sharing land banking with senior levels of government.

But it is understood the federal government will suggest that Central Mortgae and Housing Corp. provide funds to install all services on publicly-owned land. The cost of servicing land has been a prime stumbling block in land-assembly provisions.

CMHC would also provide land necessary for public services such as schools at no cost to municipalities.

Faced with cheaper land costs in publicly-owned land banks. Private developers will be forced to compete, say informed sources.

The government may also outline plans for an expanded sewage-treatment program. The program was first mentioned late last year but legislation is not expected for some time, perhaps even a year.

Federal cost sharing for sewage treatment will be stretched to include storm sewers under current plans.

The transit development corporation will mirror, on a national level, the Ontario Transportation Development Corp., a provincial agency.

The Ontario corporation has been set up to market the West German Krauss-Maffei system, specially adapted for Canadian conditions. The Krauss-Maffei system is an elevated train.

Ontario Treasurer John White said Sunday he accepts the federal idea but would like to see details before fully committing himself.

The new national corporation would conduct research and development work and market Canadian transit systems domestically and internationally.

Canadian industry is considered behind in the growing transit manufacturing field.

Sources say the new national body could help industry attain 5 to 15 per cent of world transit system market. It would also disperse manufacturing and development activities to all regions.

Ottawa Said Lax Over B.C. Gas

VANCOUVER (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said Sunday the federal government and the National Energy Board have not been sufficiently energetic in seeking a solution to the energy crisis facing B.C. this year.

At a press conference after a two-day regional meeting of Tory caucus, Stanfield said not enough is being done to meet a shortage of natural gas which has developed in the Westcoast Transmission system.

Because of operational difficulties in northern gas fields, Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd., primary transporter of natural gas in B.C., has advised its customers supplies will be cut back on a pro-rata basis this winter.

"I'm sure that members of our caucus will be going back to Ottawa to press the minister to show the necessary leadership," said Stanfield.

He said he knew there were engineering studies under way and Energy Minister Donald Macdonald has said more information is needed before action is taken, but federal leadership is needed.

He said the natural gas shortage was a result of a tight supply situation in relations to commitments both in B.C. and to the U.S.

Stanfield said it was his impression there was very little reserve supply built into the system to take care of this contingency.

The B.C. government has asked the federal energy board to reduce Westcoast's exports to El Paso Natural Gas Co., of Texas, which buys 70 per cent of the company's daily flow.

Attorney General Alex Macdonald estimates if the gas shortage takes place as predicted about $20 million in production will be lost by various B.C. companies that depend solely on natural gas for energy.

Stanfield said in a tight supply situation the export commitments on B.C.'s natural gas output are part of the problem.

Small Fruit Bushes Give Big Returns

The fall planting season continues as "small fruit" canes and bushes become available. These kinds of fruits are useful to new gardeners who want the fresh produce while waiting for tree fruits to bear crops. Also, their use in small gardens allows maximum sunlight for vegetable growing which is less successful when large fruit trees occupy much of the space.

Small fruits is a term applied to gooseberries, black and red currants, raspberries, logans and boysens, and even strawberries.

When these fruits are grown in the home garden and gathered at peak ripeness, they are such a rich source of vitamins that every family should grow three or four kinds to cover the seasons from spring to fall.

Since the plants continue in production for years with minimum care, cane and bush fruits represent a good investment.

Pruning each year according to the kind, and a yearly topdressing of soil from the compost heap is the total care needed for most. Suitable watering is required in this area from about April through to late September in most years.

Black and red currants are low growing bushes about 30 inches tall; blacks are lower and bushier than red because the method of pruning is to cut off all the twigs (growths) bearing fruits at the time of picking.

Gooseberries are usually prickly bushes 24 to 30 inches high; though a spine-free variety has been on the local market.

Gooseberries need to be fully ripened on the bush before you can get used to their flavor, but this applies to all fruits. If you gather strawberries before they ripen inside the fruits, you never know the true strawberry richness.

In a partly shaded location in a garden, raspberries bear well. They like a warm soil and warm air but the berries ripen in shade.

Two fall raspberry varieties will bear small crops in early summer and a much larger crop in late September or early October. For average garden locations choose the earlier bearing variety. Pruning of these can only be done after the fall crop is picked. Encouraging new canes to grow during summer ensures fruiting the following year.

Logans and boysens rival in rich flavor the juicy wild blackberries. Two plants of each, trained to wires strung between posts in an open sunny place will give ample fruit for a family of four in August before apples are ready.

For a wet spot, blueberry plants may be the fruit answer. Add plenty of peatmoss for acidity, and plant two bushes.

Blueberries are pretty to look at when in flower and brilliant in fall when the leaves turn red. The fruits are a rich source of vitamins, principally A.

Instead of planting one of each kind of fruit tree in your garden this fall, think about some of these small fruit. They give you quick returns, every year, for a less amount of pruning. And the pruning can all be done from ground level instead of with long handled pruners or from a stepladder.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It is a fact of bridge living that the expert has an aversion to taking finesses, except as a last-resort play. The reason is simply that his standard of living requires something more than staking his destiny on a 50-50 proposition.

In today's deal, we have an example of the avoidance of a finesse which, if it had been taken, would have resulted in the defeat of declarer's contract. Sitting South was Charles J. Soloman, of Philadelphia. The deal arose in the World Championships of 1956, in the match between Great Britain and the United States. North-South vulnerable. West deals.

| Pass | Pass | 1 ◇ | Dbl. |
| Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass | 1 NT |
| Pass | 2 NT | Pass | 3 NT |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

Opening lead: Ten of ◇.

South's bidding was according to the book; his original take-out double, followed by a one notrump rebid over his partner's forced response of one spade (on possible zero points) showed a notrump type hand containing 18-20 high-card points. Appreciating this, North's raise to two notrump was automatic, as was South's rebid of three notrump.

On West's opening lead of the diamond ten, dummy and East both played low, Solomon capturing the trick with his jack. If one were to glance superficially at the North-South hands, it would appear that the success of declarer's contract depended on the spade finesse. As Solomon played the hand, however, the finesse turned out to be unnecessary.

At trick two, Soloman laid down the ace of hearts and then followed by playing the heart king. With East's queen dropping on the latter lead, South's jack was cashed next. Then came the king, queen, and ace of clubs, in that order. With the six adversely-held clubs being divided 3-3, South's remaining club became the sole surviving club in the deck. Solomon now had his contracted-for nine tricks: one spade, three hearts, one diamond, and four clubs.

Admittedly, the queen of hearts did not figure to fall on the second lead of that suit. Nor did the six outstanding clubs fugure to be divided 3-3. But surely Solomon's play was absolutely proper, for the spade finesse could always be taken as a last resort. His play was an unspectacular, but neat, display of technique.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. HUNTER

"Your son, eh? A fine boy," said Greg, handing back the photo. "I guess he'll be in his teens now."

Charlie smiled. "That's right. When I was three times his present age out two ages added up to just 40 years."

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: Magic Total 142. Numbers from 28 to 43.

Outsider Wins Cesarewitch

NEWMARKET, England (Reuter) — An outsider, Flash Imp, owned by Mrs. O. Negus-Fancey, won the S.K.F. Cesarewitch by four lengths here Saturday.

9 IN MEMORIAM

JENKIN — In loving memory R. V. "Dick" Jenkin — October 22, 1969.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach,
Sweet to remember him who once was here
And who, though absent, is lust as dear.
—Sadly missed by his loving family, Merna, Miles, Richard and Lisa-Ann.

SHAMBROOK — Gone dear father gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember.
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enioyed
How sweet the memory still
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Fondly remembered by his daughter Shirley, Pat, grandchildren Patti, Arnold, Kenny, George.

SHAMBROOK — Died October 22, 1972.
The face I loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine,
Lies now in death's cold chill
When I am all alone,
For memory is the only thing
—Remembered by his wife, Mary.

SHAMBROOK — In loving memory of our dear Father, William Shambrook, who passed away October 22, 1972.
Not lust today but every day in silence we remember.
—Sadly missed by his son and daughter-in-law, Alf and Tip.

SIMPSON — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Michael, who left us so suddenly October 21, 1972.
—Always remembered by Mother and Dad, Mark, Robert and Valerie.

Announcing the beginning of the end

The last self-owned apartments on Beach Drive

Frankly, when we started we never expected to be able to build such an exceptional apartment featuring such spacious and luxuriously appointed rooms throughout, still provide a planned recreation complex that has its own sauna room, exercise pavilion, therapeutic pool, hobby room, freezer room and underground electronically secured parking.

Naturally, the location and setting here on Beach Drive can never be replaced. This is your year 'round view.

Close by the world-famous Oak Bay Marina and Restaurant, a constant parade of graceful yachts and cruisers, lovely Windsor park rose gardens and just about anything else you would want at the Oak Bay Village.

As we say . . . each apartment is larger and more luxuriously appointed than you would expect at these prices.

If you've ever wanted a place in Oak Bay now is the time to get it before they're all gone.

Triple Delight By Symphony

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

A triple delight is in store for Victoria Symphony audiences tonight with the second of the current pair of concerts at the Royal Theatre.

The premiere, Sunday, sent a capacity audience away in a glow of musical enchantment and civic and national pride.

With Laszlo Gati conducting, the symphony presents three young Canadians who are not merely talented, but are altogether exceptional in artistry, technical achievement, poise and authority.

The fact that one is Victoria's trans-Atlantic commuting pianist, Linn Hendry, adds a special element to the occasion.

Except for a Rossini overture opener, the orchestra's role is confined to partnering the soloists.

La Scala di Seta is a spritly piece and Gati established a brisk, light tempo with the strings demonstrating an improved degree of flexibility, bite and cleaness of attack and a limpid oboe passage accenting the fine woodwind section.

Anna Chornodolska could charm her audience by personality alone, but what a superb voice she has. Its rich timbre is uniform over a considerable range.

Resonance, power smoothness of transition from chest to head tone, technical ease in matters of breathing and diction — all these she possesses.

In addition she reveals true temperament, warmth, sensitivity of insight into the nature of the song.

The two arias were dramatically effective; Butterfly's One Fine Day capturing the wistfulness as well as the optimism of mood, and Silence Reigns from Lucia di Lammermoor superbly phrased and colored.

But for sheer musical satisfaction and revelation of artistry the Villa Losbos Bachianas Brasilieras No. 5 was the outstanding achievement.

Performed to a beautiful accompaniment of eight cellos this was something to linger on the musical palate.

Violinist Malcolm Lowe chose the enormously difficult Sibelius concerto and proceeded to sail through its technical intricacies with the fluency of a master.

He produces a full, sumptuous tone and, without a suspicion of forcing, easily carries it through and above the thickly textured orchestration of the concerto.

A finely balanced bow, secure rhythmic sense and intonation, excellent dynamic control and suppleness are also qualities that this violinist possesses to an exceptional degree.

The opulent romanticism of Rachmanioff's Concerto No. 2 found in Linn Hendry a luminous interpreter.

With Gati and the orchestra providing her with a firm, dramatically effective accompaniment, Miss Hendry gave us a powerfully virtuosic reading that was also a revelation of the range and depth of her artistry and the sensitive taste that disciplines it.

All three young artists will be heard in a joint recital at McPherson Playhouse, Thursday.

LAND COMMISSION ACT S.B.C. 1973, C.46
AGRICULTURAL LAND RESERVE BY-LAW AND PLAN

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

TAKE NOTICE that a proposed by-law intended to enable the adoption of an Agricultural Land Reserve Plan to preserve agricultural land for farm use within the Regional District has now been prepared and the said proposed by-law together with the proposed Agricultural Land Reserve Plan will be presented at a Public Hearing to be held at the Capital Regional District Boardroom, on the third floor, 524 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C., on Monday the 29th day of October 1973, between the hours of 9:00 a.m. to 12 noon, 2:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., and 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. and will continue at the same location on subsequent dates and at the times as aforementioned until all presentations are heard.

(a) The lands deemed affected are all of those lands within the Capital Regional District classified as Classes 1, 2, 3, and 4 (and minor components of Classes 5 and 6) of the Canada Land Inventory Soil Capability Classification for Agriculture as prepared by the B.C. Soil Survey and the Canada Soil Survey (B.C.).

(b) The intention of the by-law is to adopt an agricultural land reserve plan setting out clearly land suitable for farm use, for the purpose of filing the by-law and plan with the Provincial Land Commission for its consideration and designation of the land in question as an Agricultural Land Reserve, after approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, pursuant to Section 8 of the Land Commission Act, S.B.C. 1973 C.46.
The object of the Provincial Land Commission in considering the by-law and plan is to preserve agricultural land for farm use.

(c) The proposed by-law and Agricultural Land Reserve Plan may be inspected at the offices of the Capital Regional District, 524 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C., through Friday, the 26th day of October 1973, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., (Saturdays, Sundays and statutory holidays excepted).

Assistant Secretary-Treasurer

Teamsters May Return to CLC

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Teamsters Union said Friday it is willing to consider reapplying for affiliation with the Canadian Labor Congress to facilitate a merger with the International Brewery Workers Union.

Representatives of the 45,000-member brewery workers union will vote Nov. 5 on the proposed merger with the two-million-member Teamsters international.

At present the brewers' international has about 12,000 members in Canada while the teamsters has about 70,000 members in this country.

Colonels Fume

ATHENS (Reuter) — Nicholas Makarezos, one of the leaders of the Greek army coup in 1967, will form his own political party to contest power with the civilian politicians, it was announced Sunday. The announcement was made by former state undersecretary Constantinos Aslanides, himself a former colonel. Makarezos was overlord of the Greek economy as deputy premier in the army-backed cabinet until he resigned last month in apparent protest just before the appointment of a civilian government under Premier Spyros Markenzinis.

Ouster Cry Swelling

WASHINGTON (CP) — Members of Congress, shocked and confused over President Nixon's sudden firing of his tough Watergate special prosecutor, were returning today to a Washington suddenly alive with talk of impeachment.

Both houses are in recess in observance of Veterans' Day and the rapidly developing crisis caught many legislators out of town.

However, a number of congressmen said they will introduce impeachment resolutions in the House of Representatives when it reconvenes Tuesday.

Among those out of town were a dozen members of the House, in Ankara for a NATO meeting. They were recalled hurriedly by telephone at the orders of Speaker Carl Albert.

Senators scheduled to join their colleagues at the Turkey meeting cancelled their trips.

In Miami Beach the AFL-CIO unanimously called today for President Nixon to resign or be impeached to preserve democracy in the United States and restore a fully functioning government.

The resolution passed on a voice vote with no dissent.

However Nixon, described as confident there are "no grounds" to impeach him, worked quietly in his office today, with indications he was preparing a report to the nation shortly — perhaps in a nationally televised speech — to explain the firing of Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

White House officials — who made it plain they were reflecting Nixon's views — said the president is confident there are "no grounds" to impeach him as a result of his ouster of Cox, whom he believed set himself up as a "fourth branch of government."

Nixon was said to be studying some public response to counter hostility displayed in some quarters against the weekend events.

Officials said that Nixon felt Cox's position was intolerable and felt "in retrospect the establishment of a special prosecutor's office was an error."

White House staff members and secretaries made dozens of telephone calls Sunday, polling Congressmen and local Republican leaders on their reaction to Nixon's course.

These were the events which touched off the crisis:

Fired — Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox, Harvard law professor who has served under four presidents in special assignments and who vowed to pursue the Watergate case "wherever the trail might lead"—even into the White House.

Ferries' Aldous Shifted

The provincial government is looking for a replacement for long-time B.C. Ferries general manager Monty Aldous, 58.

In a written statement this morning Transport Minister Robert Strachan said "growing demands on the service and future expansion plans require new management capabilities."

It did not state specific reasons for Aldous' replacement but said he has been offered "an opportunity to remain with the ferry service in another senior position."

Aldous was not avaiable for comment today and Strachan's office reported the minister was tied up with meetings and would not be able to make any further statements.

The government is advertising across Canada for the new manager and is offering a salary of $31,000 to $33,000 a year.

The position of general manager, according to Strachan's statement, involves responsibility over fleet operations, maintenance depots and a staff of 2,800 ferry employees.

Aldous was appointed general manager of the system in 1960 after serving as an assistant to the premier.

'Smell Of A Coup'

New York Times

WASHINGTON — During his few minutes as acting attorney general, William Ruckelshaus had a telephone call from the White House chief of staff, Gen. Alexander Haig. Haig conveyed President Nixon's order to fire Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor. Ruckelshaus, like Elliot Richardson, refused. Then Haig said:

'Your commander-in-chief has given you an order."

There it was, naked: The belief that the president reigns and rules, that loyalty runs to his person rather than to law and institutions. It is precisely the concept of power against which Americans rebelled in 1776, and that they designed the constitution to bar forever in this country. It is in fact a form of power that no English monarch has exercised since George III.

Haig's military phrase was significant in another sense also. Over this extraordinary weekend, Washington and the smell of an attempted coup d'etat. Like the plotters in a novel, Nixon and his men invoked threats abroad. They skillfully enlisted political elders enfeebled by years of subservience. They tried to cut out the judges, the lawyers, the constitutionalists. They sent the police to seal

Davis Unveils Plan for Seas

VANCOUVER (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis says Canada wants to either licence or sweep its seas clear of far-ranging fishing fleets deployed by Japan, the Soviet Union and other countries.

The minister made the statement at a meeting with west coast fishermen to outline Canada's likely presentation to the Law of the Sea conference next year in Chile under the United Nations.

Davis said Canada will ask that coastal states be given responsibility for managing fish stocks on their continental shelves, a move that would push Canada's jurisdiction 200 miles into the Pacific and 450 miles into the Atlantic.

He said if two-thirds of the 125 nations and states attending the conference approve the measure, countries like Japan will be pushed off the seas.

But, he said, some countries would be allowed to remain to continue fishing in Canadian coastal waters.

"We would phase out rather than abruptly shut out other countries and in some instances we might allow foreign fishermen to remain and pay for exploiting our fish stocks. After all, there are many fish we do not harvest ourselves that others could be allowed to take."

Davis suggested foreign ships could be licenced to harvest twice the present Canadian catch without disturbing proper management of fish stocks on continental shelves.

Ken Lucas, senior assistant deputy minister of fisheries, said one of the key points of Canada's fishing claims will be that coastal states should have exclusive or preferential rights to fish stocks confined to continental shelf waters.

Another point will be that there should be no fishing on the high seas for anadromous fish, like salmon, which range between oceans and inland waters, and no anadormous species should be taken except by agreement with the country where they originate.

Canada will also ask that countries of origin of anadromous types be charged with over-all management of these fish stocks and have preferential rights to harvest them. The countries of origin of anadromous fish types should also have jurisdiction over the fish even if they stray into foreign territorial waters, as in the case with West Coast Canadian salmon swimming into United States waters.

Davis said Canada's full claims may not be recognized and it may have to settle for management of fisheries out to the 200-mile mark.

Homer Stevens, president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, warned that Canada's demands may be rejected or ratification of them may take years.

He said Canada is only asking for proper recognition of its rights to its offshore fisheries.

Shaky Truce For Mideast

Times News Services

A shaky ceasefire was imposed on the Middle East today with the two major combatants — Israel and Egypt — warily accepting it, other Arab states refusing to abide by its terms and the Palestinian guerrilla movement vowing that it would continue to wage war against Israel.

Arranged by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, it went into effect 12 hours after the United Nations security council passed a joint Soviet-American resolution.

Fighting went on for positions in the hours before the deadline and 15 minutes after it was supposed to take effect, an Israeli national radio correspondent reported the Egyptians were still firing artillery and anti-aircraft shells "apparently deciding to finish off their clips."

The U.N. resolution called for a ceasefire and peace negotiations "under appropriate auspices."

It also called for implementation of the 1967 U.N. resolution ending the Six-Day Middle East War but there was still wide disagreement of whether that meant Israel would have to withdraw from all the Arab territories it occupied then.

There has been no word about how the truce would be policed.

Israel Claims Victory

Israel immediately claimed victory in the war by virtue of the bridgehead it occupied on the Egyptian side of the Suez Canal.

The ceasefire left Egyptian troops on the East Bank of the Suez canal. The Israelis said the Egyptian penetration was three to five miles deep but the Egyptians said it was up to nine miles.

However, Israel succeeded in driving a wedge across the canal into Egypt which it said was 475 square miles and within 45 miles of Cairo. The Egyptians said it was much smaller.

The Israelis claimed they beat off Egyptian counter-attacks in the final hours before the ceasefire.

They also said they pushed the Syrians off their last outpost on Mount Hermon in the north in hand-to-hand fighting.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union and the United States agreed in principle not to renew their arms lift to the combatants, diplomatic sources said today in London.

This understanding of the superpowers was an important driving force behind acceptance by Israel and Egypt of the ceasefire, they said.

Arms Running Short

The superpowers left their respective client governments in no doubt that they would receive no new major weapons shipments if they chose to go on fighting, the sources added.

Neither, apparently, could afford to face such eventuality.

Both sides were already running out of important weapons when Soviet and U.S. arms lifts were set in motion last week.

Col. Moammer Khadafy of Libya, in a Paris newspaper interview, criticized the ceasefire as a "time bomb" and blamed the Soviet Union and other Arab leaders for Arab military failures.

Speaking to Eric Rouleau of Le Monde, Khadafy said, "a ceasefire imposed by the Americans and the Soviets? Never!"

Khadafy said Arabs and been duped by the Soviet Union.

"If the Russians hadn't done so much gabbing about their arms deliveries to Arab states, if their propaganda machine hadn't spoken so much about the air lifts, the Americans would never have supplied Israel.

"We are the victims of Soviet demagogy.

SEATTLE DIM-OUT

SEATTLE (AP) — Every other light brightening Seattle's arterial streets will be turned off as part of a program to conserve electricity, Mayor Wes Uhlman has announced.

Turning off the lights between November and March will save one million kilowatts of electricity, he said.

He also announced support for a plan by the billboard industry here to voluntarily turn off "all lights on outdoor advertising structures during the winter months."

Loyalty Guides Nurses

Federal government-employed nurses at Veterans' Hospital in Victoria came to work today while their colleagues in some other Canadian cities stayed off the job.

Illness and the urge to study was expected to grip many of the 2,200 federal government-employed nurses across the country at 8 a.m. local times as the nurses vent their dissatisfaction with a contract arbitration award Thursday.

The 95 Veterans' Hospital nurses plus several nurses at Canadian Forces Base Esquimalt voted Friday not to take part in the protest.

"I believe it was because of loyalty to the patients, loyalty to the administration and the nurses' own integrity and conscience," said Irene Deeks, an assistant head nurse who is chairman of the local nurses' sub-group.

The nurses felt it was their professional duty to come to work today, she said.

Hijackers Threaten To Kill

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Four guerrillas who hijacked an Argentine jetliner in a bid to get to Cuba threatened to begin killing their five hostages today unless they got a smaller plane to take them out of the country.

Bolivian President Hugo Banzer refused the smaller plane but sent word to the terrorists that he would grant them the necessary papers to leave Bolivia if they released the hostages. He said if they made any attempt against the lives of the hostages the hijackers would be killed.

The hijacked Aerolineas Argentinas Boeing 737 cannot take off from the small airfield in the Bolivian city of Yacuiba, 900 miles southeast of La Paz.

The plane is surrounded by heavily-armed soldiers and policemen, who have refused to provide food or drinks to those on the plane since it landed.

The four hijackers — two men and two young women — released 40 passengers and crew Sunday. But they held as hostages the pilot, the co-pilot, a congressman, a Frenchman and another passenger whose nationality is not known.

Gastown Fire Claims Five

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five people died here Sunday in a downtown hotel fire that could have been safely extinguished with a proper sprinkling system, acting Vancouver Fire Chief Jim Tuning said.

Tuning said the Commercial Hotel, 340 Cambie, was one of a number of older hotels that had been ordered by city council to install adequate fire escapes or a sprinkler system — but given until 1975 to comply.

"If the building had a sprinkler system we wouldn't have the tragedy we had," said Tuning.

He noted that the four-storey hotel had no sprinkler system and only one fire escape on the fourth floor. The fire escape was accessible only through another room.

The fire, extinguished in little more than an hour, apparently started in a washroom or adjacent storage room and quickly engulfed the top floor, blocking a nearby stairway.

A fire officer at the scene said at least two men died after jumping or falling out of the fourt-floor windows.

Several others dangling by their hands from window ledges on the top floor of the old brick building were urged to hang on until firemen could get to them with ladders. Blood stains from cut hands streaked the front of the hotel.

Injured in the fire and in critical condition was Moladie Durant, 38. In satisfactory condition were Don Kirchner, 38, Alex McKay, 86, and Paul Bruno, 62.

Don Thargo, 24, whose room was on the third floor, said two men fell from window ledges just seconds before firemen arrived.

"The firemen got there 30 seconds too late to save Wally and Don," he said. "They were coming around the corner when Wally fell.

It was 2:20 a.m. by my watch when the alarm bell went off. People were running along the halls waking other people up. It was too long before the alarm was turned in.

"But the firemen sure worked fast as soon as they arrived. They saved two men trapped in their rooms at the back. One was hanging by his hands and the other had his legs and part of his body out the window."

It was estimated there were more than 40 persons in the hotel when the fire broke out.

Police said rooms in the hotel, on the edge of Vancouver's Gastown district, were generally occupied by transients.

Cellist Casals Dies

SAN JUAN — Pablo Casals, 96, the world's greatest cellist who became a symbol of resistance to dictatorships during 34 years of self-imposed exile from his native Spain, died today.

Casals, renowned as one of the 20th century's greatest musicians and conductors, died of massive lung, kidney, circulatory and heart complications which developed from a heart attack suffered in September.

Casals' wife Marta, 36, and his brother Enrique, 81, who had flown to Puerto Rico from Barcelona, were at his bedside when he died.

Rallies Woo Quebecers

MONTREAL (CP) — With Quebec's election day one week away, the Parti Quebecois and the Parti Creditiste held large rallies in Montreal Sunday.

The Parti Quebecois packed the Montreal Forum with a huge go-go rally complete with rock band. Estimates of attendance ranged up to 16,000.

The Creditistes met in an east-end arena with a brass band on hand. Their attendance was about 6,000.

Such rallies cannot be considered a reliable guide to party strengths — particularly when, as was the case Sunday, many of those attending come from out of town.

Premier Robert Bourassa, meanwhile, campaigned with Jean Chretien, federal Indian affairs minister and the only federal minister so far to make public appearances in support of the provincial Liberals.

Bourassa told a meeting of 350 persons in Grand' Mere, 90 miles northeast of Montreal, his Liberal government can provide Quebec with a coherent social system within economic federalism.

In Beloeil, near Montreal, Bourassa accused the Parti Quebecois of racism in its campaign to have persons struck off electoral lists.

The campaign came to light last week when Immigration Minister Jean Bienvenue said persons with non-French names were being removed from voters' lists by Parti Quebecois workers who signed statements saying individuals were not entitled to vote.

Gabriel Loubier, Union Natinale leader, took a rest Saturday after encountering a strikers' picket line at a radio station where he was to participate in an open-line show. In addition, his voice was be-

Want to Retire at 60? Now It's for Everyone

One of the most amazing examples of a delayed public reaction that I can recall is the strangely slow realization that in this province it is now quite possible and proper for a man and wife to drop out of the rat race at the age of 60.

Of all the well-publicized benefits of the provincial government's Mincome program the one that's received the least attention by the public and by the press is the fact that early retirement, the dream of every toiler in an unloved job, is now a reality, that there's no need whatever to hang around until the age of 65.

Any husband and wife who have reached the age of 60 may call it a day and live on $5,000 a year without sacrificing any of their possessions or the cash they've accumulated in their married life.

Earlier this month, chatting with Premier Dave Barrett, I listened with some skepticism to his advice that people who are getting on in years should try and get over their security hang-ups. You've a little nest egg for the future? the premier was saying. Blow it. Take the old girl by the hand and fly off to the Hawaiian sun. Get over that out-dated thinking that the financial future is uncertain, even if you've spent a lifetime nurturing it. Live it up. Your future is secure under Mincome.

My skepticism—the skepticism of a man who has spent a lot of time and worry making dam'd sure that the roof wouldn't fall in when he's put out to pasture on his 65th birthday—evaporated completely when I spent an hour last week up on the fifth floor of the Belmont Building in the busy offices of Mincome.

The top men there are equally surprised that, so far, there's been no general awareness that the program, apart from its benefits to the over-65s, opens up an entirely new future for men and women who have reached the age of 60, that they may have a well-earned life of leisure and a cheque each and every month for $418.04 without in any way sacrificing the things—or the cash—they've acquired.

An infinite variety of possibilities has opened up for every couple who would like out while they're still young enough to adapt to and enjoy the pleasures of early retirement—by no means everyone, of course, but certainly those men in jobs that mean only drudgery.

A man with a company pension, for example, could cash it in at 60, pay off absolutely every debt, put what remains in the bank and go fishing, sure in the knowledge (if his wife, too, has reached 60) that he has close to $100 a week to make ends meet.

A man with any kind of modest investment in bonds or stocks or equity in a house that's become too large with the sons and daughters gone, could wrap everything up, buy a rose-covered cottage in the country, have a nest egg in the bank for any emergencies, and let the rest of the world go by.

It does not matter one little bit how much cash or how many possessions a couple may have. You could have two cars, a swimming pool and a nine-room house. You could have $10,000 or $100,000 in the bank. The Mincome people couldn't care less.

True, every asset must be declared, but this isn't a means test, in the usual sense of the phrase, but only for Mincome's internal purpose of billing the federal government when an applicant qualifies as "needy." Otherwise, the provincial treasury takes the rap on its own.

All that Mincome cares about is your actual income. This simply means that, to qualify for the full $209.02 monthly per person you'll put that cash in a bank chequing account (or a sock) rather than in a savings, interest-paying account. You'll make no wages, earn no dividends or receive any other kind of income, or, if you do, that will be subtracted from the Mincome cheque.

On the other hand, if you want to hang on to that company plan for the pension it will start paying at 65 Mincome says to go ahead. If you receive a gift or an inheritance or win the Irish that's okay with Mincome, too, and, though policy is still in the making with the program less than a month under way, it appears that the odd "windfall" job (post office work at Christmas is a cited example) will also be allowable without cutting into that monthly cheque.

The head people up there in the Belmont offices are guessing that a lot of older people are simply unaware that they're entitled to the benefit and, of course, there are some who consider it a matter of pride not to accept "government charity," but they expect that more and more people in their sixties will be weighing it as an option and that anywhere from 18,000 to 21,000 people will be taking right away what, in Davey Barrett's view, they've every right to take.

Sewer Bilking Bared

Fast-buck artists are soliciting sewerage and drainage jobs in Saanich.

This was the warning issued today by municipal authorities who claim the "artists" are doing the jobs under false pretences.

The fly-by-night contractors are also charging exorbitant rates for inferior work, says the municipality.

PREY ON ELDERLY

Licence inspector Roy Wootten reports the contractors mainly "prey on elderly people," sounding plausible and being careful to leave no evidence that could be used against them.

"They follow behind our crews laying trunk sewers," Wootten explains. "They tell the unsuspecting homeowner, 'We're from Saanich' and offer to hook up his or her home's sewage system to the main trunk."

He says the contractors' favorite "beats" lie in the sewer enterprise area.

"Too many people are calling us after the damage is done," he says. Explaining there are many competent, legal contractors who can do the work inexpensively and speedily, Wootten says the fly-by-nights hold no municipal licence.

CHECK WITH US

He asks that homeowners faced with men soliciting work at their door check with the municipal hall before allowing them to go ahead with drainage and sewerage work.

Better Business Bureau director Bill Tindall, a city alderman, cites cases brought to his attention during the past few days:

—An elderly woman in the Hillside area was charged $1,000 for cleaning her septic tank and replacing drain tiles. Her house has been on a sewer hookup since 1925.

—An elderly woman in the Crease Avenue area was charged $1,000 for putting in some drainage tiles to prevent flooding of her basement. She paid. When a neighbor complained to the authorities, however, the "contractor" reduced the price to $450.

Both Victoria and Saanich police are investigating activities of such operators with a view to laying fraud charges in some cases.

OH! WHAT A PROFIT THERE'LL BE!

Police seizure of the film Oh! Calcutta! last week has sparked the curiosity of Victoria movie-goers of all ages and line-ups at the Fox Cinema this weekend stretched block-lengths.

Fox manager Barney Simmons attributes the film's recent lucrative success to a brief screening interruption after two citizens complained to police a week-ago Friday the movie was pornographic and obscene.

Obscenity charges laid the following day were dropped on instructions of the B.C. attorney-general's department.

"Certainly," said Simmons "publicity like this you can't buy".

He reported all showings since the movie returned to the screen Thursday have had capacity audiences.

"At first we felt the movie had limited appeal and scheduled one showing a night at 8:30," said Simmons. "But when this thing broke wide open, we had a fast talk on it Friday and decided to have two showings (at 7 and 9 p.m.)

Simmons reports "incredible lineups. Most people are coming out of curiosity. Some feel it was a raw deal not being able to see a film at their decision."

He said the line-ups consist predominately of the 18 to 30 year bracket, "but there's an incredible number of elderly people lining up too."

It's For Fish

A $200,000 stream diversion project which should be completed by the Greater Victoria Water District later this month has little or nothing to do with our supply of drinking water — but a whole lot to do with conservation.

The 1.5 billion gallons of extra water produced by the Couneil Creek diversion will ensure once and for all that an adequate supply of water can be let down Goldstream form the reservoirs each year for the benefit of spawning salmon, water board members were told on a weekend tour of the district.

Council Creek, which now runs into the Sooke River, is being diverted to Sooke Lake, the main storage area for Greater Victoria's water supply.

The flow released annually for the salmon to make their way upstream to spawn — equivalent to 60 per cent of the total capacity of the Goldstream watershed — will be replaced by the diversion.

ALL TIME LOW

However, water commissioner Ron Upward said Council Creek itself, like all other streams in the area, is at an all-time low level this year due to the extremely dry weather of the past eight months.

If and when the fall rains really set in, the creek will provide up to 50 million gallons a day, he said.

Upward said he doesn't expect the main flow to be released into Goldstream this year until at least the last week of October, as pas experience indicates that's when the salmon run starts, reaching its peak in the second or third week of November.

But already, he admitted, with only a handful of salmon in the river, concerned citizens are contacting the water district offices and demanding action.

2,000 Likely At Reading Conference

The Vancouver Island branch of the International Reading Association is holding a conference in the Empress Hotel Thursday to Saturday and is expecting more than 2,000 teachers from Western Canada and the United States.

Dr. Lloyd Ollila, chairman of the conference and past-president of the Vancouver Island association, said the conference is the first to be held in Canada.

Its main purpose is to study and discover ways of improving methods of teaching children how to read.

The conference will feature more than 60 speakers during the three days, including B.C. education commissioner John Bremer who will speak at a Friday luncheon.

Sections in the conference include what a teacher should know about reading, individualized reading programs, communications in the classroom, reading in primary grades, secondary reading, language arts and reading, comprehension, reading materials and content areas, Indian children and reading, behavior modification, remedial reading, administrators and supervisors and a general section which deals with how parents can prepare their preschool children for reading, teaching poetry and using creative dramatics in the reading program.

'Moonlighting' Forces Men Hit

Times Staff

A Victoria labor spokesman today condemned the federal government's refusal to stop moonlighting by armed forces personnel at a time when unemployment is a major problem.

John Schibli, first vice-president of the Victoria Labor Council, says the government is "asking the taxpayer to subsidize moonlighting" by the billions of dollars poured into the defence budget.

An army veteran, employed as a watchman by a local company, was released "because of lack of work" during the past few days. A check with the company supports his claim that two army corporals have been working for the company for the past two years on a part-time basis.

The veteran, who says he has to work to supplement a $151 disability pension, says his own son is a corporal, serving overseas, and earns "close to $900 a month."

"With winter coming on and unemployment so high, Ottawa should do something about moonlighting in the armed forces," he claims. "What about the poor devils who would willingly work for two bucks an hour just to get off welfare?"

Schibli agrees.

"Back in the old days the forces were sadly underpaid," he admits. "But with the pay they get now it's an entirely different ball game. They should respect other people's rights to earn a living."

He states that at one time so many personnel attached to CFB Comox were moonlighting "they just about wiped out the work force (in Comox)."

An armed forces spokesman said today moonlighting by military personnel is perfectly legal, providing the outside job is "some employment with good taste" that didn't affect their ability to carry out military commitments.

He said he, himself, had moonlighted in the past, playing as a member of civilian dance bands.

"At one time half of the Edmonton symphony orchestra were service personnel," he said.

Schibli reports the labor council has pressured Ottawa for action but met nothing but rebuffs.

"They refuse to set a policy on moonlighting," he says. "They say they respect the guys' right to do whatever they wish."

This type of stand was taken by former Liberal member of Parliament David Groos three years ago when Rear-Admiral Richard Leir spoke out publicly in favor of moonlighting by the armed forces.

Schibli reports the council received the same response by provincial Liberal leader David Anderson, then MP for Esquimalt-Saanich.

"Anderson told us to clean our own house first," Schibli said. "He didn't give us any support whatsoever."

Schibli said that many unions have signed contracts that include stiff anti-moonlighting penalties, including fines of up to $300.

He said that similar policing should be carried out among the taxborne ranks of the armed forces.

Milk Down Four Cents

Milk dropped four cents a quart in Victoria today to 42 cents — three cents less than it cost last month.

The cut is made possible by a four-cent-per-quart federal government subsidy to producers to last 12 months.

Milk went up one cent a quart at the first of this month through an increase allowed by the B.C. Milk Board.

The subsidy, passed in to retailers, may take a few days to show in retail outlets.

Two Thefts Net $3,000

Police are investigating two weekend robberies in which thieves made off with a total of $3,000 from two local businesses.

About $2,285 was stolen from the manager's office at Miller Sound Centre, 726 Yates, early Saturday.

In another incident a middle-aged man, holding what appeared to be a gun, robbed the shift manager of the A and W drive-in, 1921 Oak Bay.

Mrs. Brenda Otten, 10049 Judson Place, Sidney, told police she was taking $600 from the drive-in to deposit it at the Toronto Dominion Bank at Fort and Richmond when the robbery occurred.

Oil Spill Threat At Sooke Over

A 200-gallon oil spill which posed a threat to marine life in Sooke Harbor has been cleaned up, a Sooke Capital Regional Board member said today.

Howard Elder said a number of 45-gallon oil drums were emptied on a parking lot owned by Camex Developments at Sooke and Maple roads Thursday.

A work crew from Wigmar Construction (B.C.) Ltd., accused of causing the spill, cleaned the oil but Friday night's rain raised it to the surface again, he said.

The oil then flowed in a pond about 100 yards from Sooke Harbor, said Elder.

The highways department spread sand over the highway Thursday evening, he said, and federal fisheries department workmen moved in Sunday and completed clean-up operations.

Fisheries department spokesman Lloyd Goodwill, who described the spill as "minor," said he would not comment on the possibility of charges being laid "until we find out who's responsible."

Chris Hatfield, environmental emergency co-ordinator for the province, said, "We're collecting evidence and the decision will be made within the next day or two."

Hatfield said his department will attempt to recover the costs of the clean-up.

Wigmar Construction property manager Jack Gillis said he is not sure who caused the spill but Wigmar employees began cleaning the oil Thursday.

"We took it very seriously," he said. "We went right after it as soon as we were aware of it being a problem. I thought we were doing everything possible assuming that we were responsible."

Local fisheries officer Jack Brook said there are young herring, oysters and other fish which would have been endangered if the oil had not been retained.

Two More Hopefuls In Nov. 17 Election

A candidate each for Saanich school board and Saanich council have been added for the Nov. 17 municipal elections.

More effective management of school board finances has been promised by Ted Clayards, seeking a trusteeship, while Major Charles E. Goodman — an armed forces officer who retires next year — says his bid for an aldermanic post is rooted in his concern over lack of town planning.

Clayards, 49, was a Central Saanich alderman for four years until he was defeated in last year's election.

He is civilian personnel administrator and training officer for department of national defence civilian employees. Prior to that he was in the navy 27 years.

Clayards says his policies are:

—an expanded counselling and guidance program.

— more emphasis on teachers teaching their professional subjects.

— implementing full management procedures in the school district.

— having the school board concentrate on setting policy, leaving administrators and volunteer groups to carry the policies out.

Goodman, 47, of 1519 Winchester, says he is "very impressed with the quality of life in Saanich."

Married with three children, he asserts: "We should take a real hard look at the conversion of apartments to condominiums unless there's a real demonstrated need."

Goodman would also like to see a system of bicycle paths instituted in Saanich and an expansion of the Borden Street recycling depot.

He is running for a two-year aldermanic term and also for a place on the Capital Regional Board.

Also running for two-year terms and a place on the board are incumbents Ald. Fred Severson and Ald. William Noel.

Severson says the regional board should move quickly to establish an industrial park to encourage the development of light industry in Victoria. He suggests the Colwood-Langford area as a possible site.

Such a park, he says, would make Greater Victoria less dependent on tourism.

"Tourism is great for the city of Victoria," he says, "I'm just a little worried about Saanich and the surrounding areas."

Noel, the second most popular of 10 candidates in the 1971 election, states simply:

"I still want to be the people's representative on the council and my aim is to do the best for the taxpayer that I possibly can."

He says he is running for a position on the board "in view of our municipal affairs merging in the regional area."

Other aldermanic candidates announced earlier include housewife Mary Casilio of 1150 Union and lawyer Eugene M. Johnson of 2229 Arbutus.

Incumbent aldermen Frank Waring and Edith Gunning are running with greenhouse operator Ed Lum in a three-way race for the mayoralty seat.

Land Reserve Meetings Set

Two public information meetings on the Agricultural Land reserve bylaw will be held Tuesday and Thursday at the Capital Regional board room at 524 Yates starting at 7:30 p.m.

A public hearing on the plan Oct. 29 is scheduled to start in the board room at 9 a.m. and continue until everyone who wishes to speak on the plan, has done so.

B.C. Foster Care Best in N.A.

British Columbia is leading North America in foster child care, according to Professor Mary Reistroffer of the University of Wisconsin.

In Victoria for a two-day seminar sponsored by the department of human resources, Miss Reistroffer said B.C. is "about five years ahead of any state in the U.S." in both legislation and application of legislation affecting children who must be removed from their natural parents.

The involvement of "natural parents" in planning the lives of chidren away from them is a major advancement in which B.C. has lead, she said.

"You must understand the scaring and the guilt of a family when a child is taken away. They really feel they have failed," she said.

Miss Reistroffer said the major concern of agencies concerned with placing children in foster homes should be to return the child as soon as possible to his natural parent.

The child who has been taken away from his natural parent is in a "constant state of grieving" with a "constant yen to return."

She said children placed in foster care must be allowed to take part in the planning of their own future. "We often underestimate the capaicty of a youngster to understand what is going on," she said.

Miss Reistroffer is considered a leader in foster parent programs in the U.S. and is special consultant to the B.C. Federation of Foster Parent Associations.

Shorter Hours For Bus Drivers

Local bus drivers are now working a half hour less each day.

A provision in the 160 drivers' latest contract with B.C. Hydro, which provides for a seven and a half hour day, has come into effect.

Although the contract came into effect in February, implementation of the shorter work day was delayed till October so new schedules could be prepared and more drivers hired.

Bus drivers in Vancouver will also get the shorter work day.

B.C. PEN PROBE PUSHED BY MP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Progressive Conservative MP John Reynolds will ask the conservative caucus next Wednesday to demand an independent inquiry into the British Columbia Penitentiary in New Westminster.

Reynolds, the member for Burnaby-Richmond-Delta, toured the institution for more than three hours Saturday, talking with administration officials, guards and prisoners. The tour, made with the approval of solicitor-general Warren Allmand, confirmed everything he had been told about a disturbance by prisoners on Oct. 5, he said.

Damage was extensive and ran well in excess of $50,000, he added.

DISEASE WARNING

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver agriculturist says an irrigation sewage disposal program in Vernon will cause animals eating sprayed forage to become diseased.

Stan Weston told a UBC seminar a similar project in Australia in 1933 ended with cattle grazing on the forage developing beef measles and being unsafe for eating.

Mr. Weston said a similar disease will occur in Vernon to animals eating the forage and humans handling it, he warned, urging that the project be discontinued.

b.c. briefs

VANCOUVER (CP) — A total of 480 persons cast ballots in the three-day advance poll for Vancouver's Oct. 24 vote to fill a vacancy on the school board and rule on several money questions. The vote next Wednesday will elect a new member to the school board and decide whether the city should purchase the Four Seasons property at the entrance to Stanley Park, adopt a full partial ward system, and whether community ice rinks should be built.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — This city's $2.7 million airport terminal was officially opened by Sen. Ray Perrault Saturday, six weeks after the 20,340-square-foot structure opened for business. Perrault said the airport is an indication of the growth of civil aviation in Northern B.C., pointing out that the present 140,000 passengers a year will reach 200,000 passengers a year by 1980.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Research chemist says metal concentrations in sewage could be reclaimed better and more economically if waste was treated at the source rather than at municipal treatment plants.

John Leach said such a system would reduce the risk of metals poisoning entire cleaning systems and eliminate the threat of metal pollution in rivers and oceans where treated sewage is dumped.

MEGAVITAMIN THERAPY DEFENDED

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Saskatoon psychiatrist and pioneer of megavitamin therapy for schizophrenics — persons with split personalities—says critics of such therapy have not followed his procedures and therefore have not obtained the same results.

Dr. Abraham Hoffer charged the average physician knows nothing about the treatment.
